General Notes: Joseph P. Drewett, 62 5 9mo. 1898 Arnside.

Born at Luton in 1836, the son of the late William and Gulielma M. Drewett, the subject of this memoir was in boyhood very impressionable to kind and gracious influences, and, more than many perhaps, to such as come to sensitive young minds in hours of public worship. In recent years it sometimes surprised his friends to hear him refer to sentiments set forth in meeting whilst he was a scholar at Ackworth, the influence of which had never died out of his life, nor the memory of the individuals to whom he was indebted for them. His reverence for sacred things was probably natural to him, but owed much of its early cultivation to his mother, a God-fearing woman who carried her religion into practical every-day duties in a manner which could not fail to have its effect upon her children. Of this good mother's counsel and encouragement he had the privilege almost down to the end of his life, her death preceding his own by only one year.

His choice of a career - that of a teacher - was happily in accord with almost every element of his character. Its varied associations with young life undoubtedly very favourably developed the best points of his nature. Having passed successfully through his apprenticeship at Ackworth School, forming many friendships on the way, and a course of study at the Flounders Institute, he went upon the staff of the Friends' School at Kendal, upon which he remained nine or ten years. During his connection with that School, his conscientious devotion and loyalty to the various duties which fell to him won for him the esteem of the members of the house, older and younger. His gentleness and his readiness to help them in every laudable enterprise quickly gained him the regard of the boys, and his charitable construction of their defects was often warmly appreciated. His heart was so true, and discord so hateful to him, that he was led so to rule his life that the only source of discomfort or unhappiness which ever seemed to oppress him arose from the occasional discovery that his dicipline was, for the moment, alienating the spirit of an insubordinate one. Then, restless and disturbed by the consciousness that sweetness had gone out of his life, he would declare how hard it was for him to endure the sense of being at variance with anyone. He was a very "all round" man. There was no department of school-life in which he did not manifest interest. Whatever the movement of the hour, it was always known by masters and boys alike that his support was to be relied on. He was full of sympathy with youth. The Friends of Kendal were not slow to recognise his worth outside the school precincts, and the place he then commenced to make in their regard was the forerunner of the still higher appreciation they entertained for him, when, after many years, he again made his home amongst them.

He left Kendal after the death of his father, in order to assist his mother to conduct the business. But the love of his profession was too strong to allow him to abandon it, and he, in partnership with Cranston Woodhead, established a school at Hitchin. He had, in the meantime, married Anne Marshall, the second daughter of Samuel Marshall of Kendal. His wife's health was, however, too feeble to sustain the cares of school-life, and thus obliged Joseph Drewett to live in a house apart from the school, whilst his partner's wife became responsible for the domestic arrangements within the establishment. These conditions by no means lessened J. Drewett's anxieties or the weight of his responsibilities. But the old joy of training young lives was upon him, and for the seven years between 1873 and 1880, he devoted himself to his duties with an ever increasing earnestness and sense of their sacredness. Services ably and zealously performed met with their reward in the appreciation of parents and the affection of pupils; but the increasing infirmity of his wife, together with other circumstances he could not control, led him to retire from active life and settle at Arnside in Westmorland, where he was near his wife's relatives and the scenes of many cherished associations. Here for several years the best of his energy and a large proportion of his leisure were lovingly devoted to his suffering wife, upon whom a creeping paralysis was slowly but irresistibly gaining ground, and which was eventually to prove fatal. Yet it was impossible that his active mind and his love of doing something to the advantage of his fellow-men should be altogether confined to the sick room. He saw in the village of Arnside, a need for the working classes of greater facilities for intellectual pursuits, and was the chief instrument in the formation of the Educational Institute. To the prosperity of this organisation he liberally devoted time and labour down to a very recent date, when one of those untoward events, which sometimes intrude into well-regulated lives, led him to sever his active connection with it. Finding, some years after the foundation of this Institute, that its operations- did not extensively reach the class for which its benefits were especially intended, Joseph Drewett devised a "Magazine Society," which should take reading into the homes of the people. This had for many years been widely appreciated, and rarely less than thirty families have been members of this Society, into whose homes no fewer than ten or twelve good periodicals thus regularly find their way. But Joseph Drewett's most distinguished effort to ameliorate men's lives was, perhaps, his mission work in a neighbouring hamlet. This isolated cluster of cottages was inhabited by a peculiar people who rarely connected themselves, more than they could help, with other communities, and who bore, rightly or wrongly, but a very indifferent reputation with their neighbours. A clergyman held a little Sunday afternoon service in the village school, but the means of awakening spiritual life among the people were of the slenderest nature. A good man of light and leading, who had settled close by the hamlet, did what he could for a few years to improve the state of things ; but, when he passed away, the old inert condition again settled down upon the cottagers. A few excellent Wesleyans of Arnside next organised a little religious effort, and out of this movement, with which Joseph Drewett had much sympathy, grew his scheme for establishing a mission room in the place. Mr. Watson of Rochdale, the original inventor of the manufacture of silk-plush, found the money for the erection of a substantial and commodious building; J. Drewett organised a Sunday morning school and a mission meeting for the evening, gradually adding various helpful accessories, the latest of which was a successful class for carpentry in winter evenings. All these operations he sedulously watched, down to the time of his death, devoting very considerable time and exertion to them personally, in addition to the work of organisation. But his labours were not confined to the mission room. He was vigilant in his interest in the affairs of the individuals of the community, frequently visiting their homes r doing what lay in his power to alleviate their hardships, and to win some of them from evil ways. It is neither easy nor necessary to tabulate the results of such efforts. It is perhaps best to leave the estimate of them to the eye of faith. Disappointments many there were of course, and compensations sufficient. The words of a poor bed-ridden woman, addressed to Joseph Drewett, "I think our Saviour walks with you reg'lar,' 1 will show what manner of personality he was to the few more tender-spirited ones of the rude little hamlet. Time brought him helpers and supporters from the neighbourhood. Upon these the continuation of his work will now devolve, and there is no reason to anticipate its failure. Without being, in the specialist's sense, a scholar or a man of science, Joseph Drewett interested himself in all such intellectual pursuits as his choice of life and work rendered serviceable to him. In this regard he was eminently practical, and his acquirements were always at the service of those who could benefit from them. He desired few things more than to use his talents, and to share with others pleasures at his command. In 1887 he paid a visit to the United States with William Ransom of Hitchin, the enjoyment of which he not only regarded as a favour to be thankful for, but, as he wrote on his return voyage, as a stimulus, not only by word but by a more devoted life to show his gratitude to Him who had, through the instrumentality of human means, given him the pleasure, and watched over all of them during the enjoyment of it. And it was surprising on how many subsequent occasions he made this visit do duty, in varied ways, in giving pleasure and instruction to others.

Joseph Drewett had his ideals but did not rest in them. When an ideal took possession of his mind, he hastened to convert as much of it as he could into an actuality. He did not allow an idea to evaporate in the search for perfection, knowing something doubtless of the virtue underlying the old proverb : "The best is the enemy of the good." It must be granted that there was a certain enthusiasm in him which made him at times exceedingly tenax propositi. Perhaps this was the side of his character which met with least appreciation. He saw his side of a question in so bright a light that he had sometimes extreme difficulty in yielding to the judgment of others who differed from him on method or policy. His life was built up upon a keen realization of its seriousness. There was absolutely no particle of the frivolous in his nature. Yet there was a bright and amiable cheerfulness that recommended his Christian profession, and made him a grata persona to thoughtful people. 'He had many close friends among such, and golden opinions of him were not hard to find among those who knew him well. On religious subjects he cultivated a broad charity. His own convictions of Christian truth were clear, and his aversion from formality and ritual was emphatic, but he found no difficulty in associating deep spirituality with views widely different from his own. A month before his death he wrote to one of his sisters : "The divine roof covers all those who are honestly seeking to know God, in whatever direction they are searching." Some years ago he wrote to the same correspondent : "Tell not to go by the wisdom of this man or that man, but to seek, as Paul tells us, to be ruled by the power of God, with no human being between us and Him. I believe that God reveals Himself and His will to us in different ways, according to the nature He has given to us, and that we see the truth from a different point from one another; else how could there be true servants of God in sections of the church so widely opposed as Catholics and Friends? God will reveal Himself through the face of His dear Son through the Holy Spirit, if only we are really seeking Him, and then nothing can shake us, even if we meet with good men holding diverse views." Of one thing he was, however, very intolerant. Amongst those in whom he interested himself were some who occasionally lapsed from the better life into which he had been the means of leading them, and, in such cases, any reflection upon the offender roused his anger. He regarded such censure as a proof of mischievous incapacity to comprehend the magnitude of the struggle between a man and his besetting sin.

He had for some time a country-house in Dentdale, and there also he threw himself into the interests of the people, especially of those around the old meeting-house at Leavet. His character and services were perhaps more appreciated by none than by the honest-hearted, intelligent people of that valley-head, many of whom are descendants of Friends, who saw in him only what stirred worthy reminders of ancestors whose characters they revere.

In the small gatherings of Friends at Arnside, his ministry - thoughtful, unconventional and promotive of spiritual seriousness - was much valued, and not less so in some neighbouring country meetings where his appearance was always cordially welcome.

Although apparently never expressed to his friends, there is reason for supposing that he had for some time had some apprehension that his life would not be a long one, and in writing to one of his sisters on Seventh Month 7th of last year, he says, in allusion to a brief but rather alarming attack of illness : " I feel deeply thankful for the so gentle reminder of the need of ' working while it is day."

He was able to be present, the following month, at the Scarborough Summer School, which was to him a time of very great social and spiritual enjoyment. He rejoiced in the occasion, as one calculated to give courage to the student of the Bible, by showing how much richer a truth was often substituted for a conventional form of it, by a prayerful confronting of difficulties. Recognising how disturbing and almost alarming to some minds were certain new statements and interpretations, he believed that investigations, entered upon in a prayerful spirit, were not to be feared, and that, eventually, good only could proceed from them. For himself, he says by letter : " I am humiliated by the evidence that many points of Scripture truth I have never really studied at all. I have tried to elucidate, and now I see that I have been in the dark all the time."

The brightness of Joseph Drewett's later life was much increased by his marriage, in 1892, to Deborah Wilson, of Thornton in Craven, whose love and sympathy were a great gain to his happiness. In her he found one who warmly entered into his various interests, who was strength to him in hours of disappointment and discouragement, and a support and cheer to him in whatever he undertook.

His last illness was very brief. A cold of a few days duration was suddenly succeeded by eclampsia, aggravated by defective action of the heart of some standing, of which a second attack within thirty hours proved fatal.

A favourite thought of his has been expressed in a German couplet, the original and a translation of which formed the motto of his pocket-book : -" Let me die before I die, That when I die, I may not die."

Many of those who knew him will be able to unite in the sentiment expressed by a friend : "We shall always have fragrant memories of him, and think of him now as of one whom the Lord has looked upon with love, and wanted for higher service."

General Notes: Lt. Archibald Stafford Allen. 8th Battalion Royal Fusiliers (City of London) Regiment

Date of birth: 3rd May 1890 Date of death: 3rd October 1915

Archibald Stafford Allen was born at Enfield in Middlesex on the 3rd of May 1890 the only son of John Archibald Allen, a publisher, and Elizabeth Mary (nee Smee) Allen of "Wynnstow", Limpsfield in Surrey. He left Hazelwood School in the spring of 1904 for Wellington College where he was in the Stanley from 1904 to 1908. He had intended to go on to Pembroke College Cambridge, but his father's ill health prevented this, and, instead, he went straight into business. "Although this was a great disappointment to him, he bore it with his usual cheerfulness". He devoted much of his spare time to a boys club in Walworth which he had started for poor boys.

On the on the 28th of April 1909 he enlisted as Private C/406 in the Inns of Court Officer Training Corps and served with them for four years, during which time he was learning the printing trade. Following the outbreak of war he was commissioned a 2nd Lieutenant in the 8th Battalion Royal Fusiliers on the 12th of September 1914 and was promoted to Lieutenant on the 20th of January 1915.

On the 15th of May 1915 he was married to Florence Mary (nee Hammond) at St Mark's Church Walworth and he embarked for France on the 1st of June 1915. He was commended by 36th Brigade to 12th Division for the "good work" he had done during a German bombardment on the 9th of August 1915. On the 3rd of October 1915 the battalion were holding a trench at Vermelles near Loos. The battalion war diary takes up the story:- "In trenches, heavily shelled all day but considering volume of shelling, casualties were fairly small. A digging party ordered to dig a trench from H 13 C 09 directly south for 700 yards. We were unable to do this as our own guns were heavily shelling this bit of ground. Trench marked out but two men killed in doing so; Lt Allen killed instantly by a shell and buried together with Lt Gullick (Lieutenant Arthur Louis Gullick of Pirbright in Surrey) of the 6th Buffs who was killed in reconnaissance outside German wire and brought in by our men at G17 B36. A very good young officer and much missed. Other casualties, 9 men killed and 9 men wounded, mainly by shell fire. In evening, about 10pm 200 men at work on new trench". He was mentioned in Field Marshall Sir John French's dispatches of the 1st of January 1916 "for gallant and distinguished service in the field" His Colonel wrote:-

"I wish his friends to know the pride we all had for him. Others who knew him would like to hear how he was loved by one and all, what a gallant boy he was, and how he maintained the name of the grand regiment to which we all have the honour to belong. A braver and more gallant boy I have never seen; we all loved him and his men simply adored him.....it was with difficulty we could get him to rest."

He was buried, along with Lieutenant Gullick, behind the trenches at the junction of the Hulluch-Vermelles and Loos-La Bassee roads; his body was later re-interred. He is commemorated on the war memorial at Wellington College.

Killed in action aged 25

Buried at Philosophe British Cemetery Mazingarbe Plot III Row N Grave 1A" (from Hazelwood School, War Memorial).

13-Rt. Hon. John Edward Ellis^{2,5,63,65} was born on 15 Oct 1841 in Castle View, The Newarke, Leicester, Leicestershire, died on 1 Dec 1910 in 37 Prince's Gate, Knightsbridge, London at age 69, and was buried on 6 Dec 1910 in Scalby, Scarborough, Yorkshire.

General Notes: Ellis was returned to Parliament for the newly created constituency of Rushcliffe in the 1880 general election. In December 1905 he was appointed Under-Secretary of State for India in the Liberal administration of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, a post he held until 1907, and was sworn into the Privy Council in January 1906.

John Edward Ellis, 69 1 12mo, 1910 Scalby and London, Died in London, John Edward Ellis, the eldest child of Edward Shipley and Emma Ellis, was born at Leicester in the year 1841. When only ten years old he was sent to a small Friends' school in Hertford, and later he went to Kendal to the school there. When he was sixteen years of age, his father offered him the choice between a university career, or of accompanying him on a tour through the United States, which he proposed to take for the purpose of inspecting American railways. He chose the latter, and though he was apt to speak, in later life, with some regret of what he had missed, there is no doubt that the journey was of great educational value to him in many ways. On his return to England, he entered the engineering works of Kitson and Hewitson at Leeds, working as an ordinary apprentice. It is told of him, at this time, that on one occasion he worked without any sleep, from 6 a.m. on Friday to noon on Saturday, in order to help finish some engines for India, and was afterwards found in an adjacent boiler fast asleep. It was in this experience of artisan life, that he gained the intimate knowledge of working men which in after years made him such a good employer. He would not begrudge his men anything that was needed for turning out first- rate work. With a very keen eye, and with direct speech, he generously appreciated all efficiency of service, and this characteristic, whether in the colliery, or later in his farm at Wrea Head, was one of the secrets of the willing response of his employees to his high standard of work. His grandfather had, in conjunction with George Stephenson, laid the first railway south of the Trent, and his father had long been Chairman of the Midland Railway Company, therefore it is little wonder that the cares of business soon came upon him. Settling at Hucknall, then quite a small place, it was not long before he was faced with the practical problems of employer and employed, and with the social and political conditions of a rapidly-growing mining population. It was perhaps only to those in the humbler walks of life, accustomed to the old relations between rich and poor, that it was a surprise to find the young colliery manager taking a real interest in the daily life of the community - an interest which found its expression in the local saying that "Mr. Ellis made Hucknall, and Hucknall made Mr. Ellis.'* " A Conservative by nature and a Liberal by grace," as he often said of himself, there was much in this sphere to exercise his keen and independent spirit, and in after life he was fond of telling stories of his diversified experiences and of the way in which he came to champion the cause of freedom and self-development amongst the people of the district. In due time, largely by his instrumentality, there grew up local self-government, a School Board with fine schools, a Public Hall, a Free Library, Technical Schools, Public Baths, etc. It was during the coal strike of 1893 that his sympathy with the poor and his power of determined pursuit of what he thought to be right were strikingly united. It was to Lord Rosebery that the settlement of the dispute was commonly attributed, but the real beginning of the end occurred when John Edward Ellis having entered a large room where some of the miners' children were being fed, felt the pathos, and determined to end it at once, so far as lay in his power. Business grew under his able management, and his life must have been already pretty full when, in 1867, he brought Maria Rowntree from Scarborough to share his home at Nottingham. There it was that the happy family life began,, and there that their five children were born. Local duties increased upon him as time went on, and at one or another period, in addition to mining, he was connected with banking, gas and electric companies, besides filling the positions of Justice of the Peace and Deputy Lieutenant in Nottinghamshire and Yorkshire. In 1885, the newly enfranchised constituency of Rushcliffe had its Liberal candidate ready when the election of that year came, and from that date till within a few days of his death, John Edward Ellis held the seat against all the opponents who tried issues with him. Perhaps less well known than his work in the House itself, but by no means unimportant, was his educational work amongst his constituents, carried on quietly between elections by means of the circulation of pamphlets and speeches full of figures and facts. Instead of giving money to bazaars, and other things usually supported by rich Members of Parliament, he spent freely in printing and circulating good literature, ever endeavouring to help the electors to think for and to help themselves. He, indeed, could never be reproached with the saying of Professor Henry Jones, " that it is an insult to the intellect of the British elector to offer him the rubbish which does duty for argument in electioneering speeches." Between John Edward Ellis and his constituents there grew up a relationship which deepened in cordiality as the years passed on and the political horizon changed, until at last the Liberal Committee begged to be allowed to put him in again without a contest, whilst he stayed at home in London to recruit. It pained him to refuse the offer, but he did not waver. Five days before his death, he dictated his last letter to the constituency, and thus finished a representative career of a quarter of a century, honourable alike to the electors and the elected. In the House, his clear instinct for procedure, and his business capabilities, gradually won for him positions of considerable eminence, and he became a Chairman of Grand Committees and one of the few Deputy Chairmen of the House. Finally, as Under-Secretary of State for India, under Lord Morley, he entered for a time the inner circles of the Government. The post was one of great interest to him, and his chief was a leader whom he served gladly. But the work was not really his : the routine of office life tried his health, never very strong, and to those who knew him intimately it was neither a surprise, nor perhaps a disappointment, that at the end of eleven months he left the India Office and retired, as a Privy Councillor, to his own independent position. For it is as a private Member, and as an acknowledged authority upon constitutional and Parliamentary procedure that he will be best remembered in the House. With a strong attachment to historical sequence, and the loyal observance of rules and procedure, he was no mere party man; and during both the South African war and the recent naval scare he showed that he had the quiet and constant courage of his convictions. Perhaps one of the bravest things he ever did was to lead a forlorn hope against his own side in the latter episode, facing the obloquy of the so-called patriotic party, by moving an amendment to the vote on the increase to the Navy. During the later years of his Parliamentary career, although he was always a staunch Liberal, he would say that the coming work must be done by yoiuiger men accustomed to newer methods. And so he was gradually drawn to take a yet keener interest in some of those questions which should be treated on larger lines than those of party. The cause of Temperance had always been dear to him, and he not only worked for it in many ways in the country, but fearlessly sounded a note of warning to Members of Parliament against the dangers attendant on the refreshment bars in the House, where he had known habits of indulgence fostered to the blasting of some lives. It was a great satisfaction to him to take an active part (not easily to be overestimated in value) in bringing about a complete change of policy in the Anglo-Indian opium trade with China. Up to the very last the Anti-Opium Board had his personal support and advice. But perhaps first and foremost in his thoughts during the last two or three years was the cause of peace and the release from the economic peril entailed by inflated armaments. In 1909, he was one of the deputation from the Churches of England which visited Germany, and the impression then made on his mind was, in no small degree, responsible for his giving himself so ardently to the work of the Continuation Committee. He was fond of telling incidents of the journey to Germany, of the warmth of the receptions with which they were everywhere welcomed, and of the visit to the Emperor, and his words to some of the party. One of John Edward Ellis's last acts was to go to see the Archbishop of Canterbury, in order to secure his active co-operation in the work of conciliation, and it was to this work that he himself was looking forward as likely to be his special care when the time of unwonted leisure should have really come. During the last weeks of his life, he had agreed to be the principal speaker at a Peace meeting in Guildford, arranged for by twenty-two or three different churches, chapels and other societies in union with Friends and the Adult Schools. In all this it is not hard to trace the ripening and development of character. The stepping aside from the conflict of parties, the desire to be one of the peacemakers, points to a readiness for the higher service, which even those closest to him had not perhaps altogether appreciated. The success of the man whose work lies amongst practical affairs depends largely on his having clear-cut aims, unhampered by vague theorisings; and the late Member for Rushcliffo could not have done the work he did if he had not kept firmly to his own tools and to his own mission. Essentially a man of action, his strength lay in an almost severe self-limitation to the matter in hand. We shall not therefore seek him among the mystics or theologians, but no one who was privileged to join in his family devotions, or to worship with him in Scarborough meeting, could help perceiving that his direct, arrow-like life was the outcome of a faith which was that of a child in its unquestioning simplicity and sincerity. Death came to him in its most reassuring form, not as a struggle, not as a mere ending, though all his work was found to be almost strangely completed, but as a peaceful departure to a life of even larger issues than the present, of expansion and ampler capacities for service in the fuller light of the Divine Love. Such was the belief that pervaded the quiet company at Wrea Head on the day of his funeral, and such found expression in the triumphant tones of the hymn sung in the village church : - " O Breather unto man of breath, O Holder of the keys of death, O Giver of the life within, Save us from death, the death of sin ; That body, soul, and spirit be For ever living unto Thee."

Ellis, John Edward (1841–1910), colliery owner and politician, was born on 15 October 1841 at Castle View, The Newarke, Leicester, the eldest of the five children of Edward Shipley Ellis (1817–1879), railway chairman and social reformer, and his wife, Emma Burgess (1809–1899), both of whom came from Ouaker families. Educated at Friends' schools at Hertford and Kendal, in 1857 Ellis accompanied his father (by that time chairman of the Midland Railway Company) on a trip to the USA to study the American railway system. From 1858 to 1861 he served an apprenticeship with Kitson and Hewitson, railway and general engineers, of Leeds. In 1861 he was appointed to a management position at the Hucknall colliery then being sunk by a partnership in which his father and uncle were initially joined by two others, and Ellis soon assumed overall managerial control. This was the first mine to be sunk in Nottinghamshire's Leen valley, which was to become Britain's most prosperous coalfield. A paternalistic employer, Ellis was concerned to provide fair wages and good working conditions, as well as decent housing and social infrastructure. He was largely responsible for the establishment of a local board in the Leen valley in 1866, a school board in 1871 (he served as chairman of both bodies for some years), a town water supply, and adult schools (in which he himself lectured for a time). In 1867 Ellis married Maria (1845–1941), the fifth child of John and Jane Rowntree of Scarborough, whom he met at the Quaker meeting there. They lived at The Park, Nottingham, and had three sons (two of whom died in early adulthood), and twin daughters, one of whom, Marian Ellis, became a philanthropist and political activist. In Nottingham, Ellis again became involved in educational work and was a member of the city's school board. Between 1882 and 1886 he was also chairman of the Nottingham Joint Stock Bank. Ellis promoted the formation of a Liberal association in north Nottinghamshire in 1880, and in 1885 he became MP for the newly created seat of Rushcliffe, which then included Hucknall. He held this seat until shortly before his death in 1910. A highly principled man, as befits a Quaker, Ellis campaigned against Irish injustices and for home rule; supported the temperance movement; opposed the arms trade and the South African War; and supported free trade. In 1902 he welcomed the emergence of labour representation in parliament. He chaired many standing and select committees of the house; in 1895 he became temporary chairman of ways and means, but subsequently declined nomination as speaker. From December 1905 to December 1906 he was under-secretary for India under John Morley, and he was sworn of the privy council in 1905. Because of his early belief in classical economic doctrine Ellis was unsympathetic to trade unions in the 1860s and 1870s, but he gradually came to recognize their value; soon after the formation of the Nottinghamshire Miners' Association in 1881, he gave it encouragement and support. He formed a particularly close relationship with the association's second agent, William Bailey (appointed 1886), and the good relationship then established with the association continued after Bailey's untimely death in 1896. Ellis, assisted by two other Nottinghamshire colliery owners who were Liberal politicians, induced the Leen valley colliery proprietors to break the owners' lock-out by their men in 1893 by re-opening their pits on the pre-stoppage conditions and by forming a breakaway owners' association. This split in the coal owners' ranks was subsequently exploited by the union. Ellis was asthmatic and it was partly for this reason that he bought a country estate near Scarborough (Wrea Head, Scalby) in 1883. On his election to parliament in 1885, he also bought a London residence, 40 Pont Street; in 1906 he moved from there to 37 Prince's Gate, Knightsbridge. He died from acute bronchitis at his London home on 1 December 1910, and was buried in the churchyard at Scalby on 6 December.

14-Marian Emily Ellis⁵ was born on 12 Jan 1878 in Standard Hill, Nottingham and died on 6 Jul 1952 in London at age 74.

General Notes: Ellis, Marian Emily [married name Marian Emily Cripps, Lady Parmoor] (1878–1952), philanthropist and political activist, was born at The Park, Standard Hill, Nottingham, on 6 January 1878, one of the twin daughters of the colliery owner and Liberal MP John Edward Ellis (1841–1910) and his wife, Maria Rowntree (1845–1941), philanthropist, both of whom were Quakers and radicals. She was educated at home and became her politician father's secretary at the time of the Jameson raid (1895). At the close of the subsequent South African War she was involved in Ruth Fry's Quaker relief projects for women victims of that war.

When the First World War rallied young men on both sides to massacre one another for righteousness's sake, Marian Ellis was a steadfast voice against that madness. Not only did she and her twin sister Edith give huge sums of money to relieve the suffering of families of conscientious objectors and finance the No-Conscription Fellowship, but they also gave tirelessly of their moral and intellectual energy. Edith Ellis was imprisoned in Holloway under the Defence of the Realm Act in 1918 for joining with other Quakers to print a leaflet, A Challenge to Militarism, without first submitting it to the government censor. Meanwhile Marian Ellis had made a major contribution to Quaker thinking on the issue of 'just war'. The collaborative, anonymous Quaker pamphlet Looking towards Peace (1915), which she had helped to draft, stated:

War, tyranny and revolt have produced tyranny, revolt and war throughout time ... We maintain that the moral law is binding upon States as upon individuals ... We hold that the fundamental interests of humanity are one ... The time for absolute isolated sovereignty is gone by ... Our aim should be a very loose international federation ... the reasoned worship of force [is] the real devil-worship ... We therefore keep alight the hope that, late or soon, the intercourse of nations will be carried on without armed force. In 1917 Marian Ellis wrote:

At the end of this war the world will have to decide which way it desires to go, towards disarmament or destruction ... Disarmament is not merely scrapping our guns and our battleships. It is the working out of a national policy, which, being inspired by love for all men, cannot be antagonistic ... it is the problem of India, of Ireland, of our relations with Russia and Persia, Germany and Belgium as God would have them to be. (M. Ellis, 'Disarmament', Friends' Quarterly Examiner, 1917, 182– 3) She testified to her unweaponed faith for the rest of her life.In 1919 Marian Ellis helped Kate, Lady Courtney of Penwith, to establish the Fight the Famine Committee. Lady Courtney later wrote of Marian Ellis: 'what a splendid worker she is— capable and selfless— a volunteer who does all the grind and most of the paying too' (Courtney, 177). On 14 July 1919, she married, as his second wife, Charles Alfred Cripps, first Baron Parmoor (1852–1941), politician; she became the respected sister-in-law of Beatrice Webb. There were no children of the marriage; Marian was, however, an influence upon the youngest son of her husband's first marriage, (Richard) Stafford Cripps. From 1924 to 1928 Lady Parmoor was president of the World YWCA and she helped found the Fellowship of Reconciliation. A founder member of the Wornen's International League for Peace and Freedom, she became president of its British section in 1950; she was treasurer of the Friends' Peace Committee and an active vice-president of the National Peace Council. But none of her official committee responsibilities adequately reveals the quality of her spirit. At every depressing turn of world politics she would follow the direction of the redidustic conscience and struggle for the implementation of those ideals in international relations. Thus she advocated the admission of communist China to the United Nations, she urged an end by negotiation to the Korean War, and at the age of seventy she began a serious study of nuclear fission in order to speak with some author

Marian Ellis was a gifted cellist and an attractive and eloquent speaker, whose 'obstinate optimism made her one of the most lovable of a notable generation of women' (The Times, 18 July 1952). She died at her home, 1 Endsleigh Street, London, on 6 July 1952 and was cremated at Golders Green; her ashes were taken to Frieth, Buckinghamshire.

They had four children: Christine Bernard, Colin Dare Bernard, Oliver Bernard, and Richard White Bernard.

Marriage Notes: ELLIS-EVANS.-On the 4th September, 1891, at Leicester, Bernard Ellis (1873-6), to Isabel Clare Evans.

14-Christine Bernard Ellis² was born on 5 Jun 1894 in Leicester, Leicestershire and died in 1972 in Uppingham, Leicestershire at age 78.

Noted events in her life were:

• She was educated at The Mount School in Jul 1909-Aug 1912 in York, Yorkshire.

14-Colin Dare Bernard Ellis^{20,87,88,89,90} was born in 1895 in Uppingham, Leicestershire and died on 4 Jul 1969 at age 74.

General Notes: Colin Ellis was born in near Uppingham, Leicestershire, into the Ellis family one of the most important Leicester families of the 19th and 20th centuries. The grandson of the 19th century railway pioneer and industrialist John Ellis, Colin Ellis followed his father, Bernard Ellis JP (Lit and Phil President for 1916-17), into both the family business and also into the Lit. and Phil. (joining in 1923 and remaining a member for the rest of his life). At the same time he pursued his life-long interest in both local history and literature '96 he was a noted writer and poet of the period, and he was the Joint Local Secretary for the 1933 Leicester Annual Meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, and the President for the Lit. and Phil's Centenary in May 1935. He brought to this office his knowledge of the history of the city and county that was unparallelled in his day. This was reflected in a presidential address that explored the social, political and economic state of Leicester and Leicestershire around the time of the formation of the Society in 1835, complementing the account of the origins and founding of the Society in the official Centenary history: F.B. Lott's Centenary Book of the Leicester Literary and Philosophical Society (1935).

Professor Jack Simmons wrote a substantial obituary and appreciation of Colin Ellis for the Leicestershire Archaeological and Historical Society, in which he said: Mr. Colin Ellis died on 4 July 1969. He was elected a Vice-President of the [Leicestershire Archaeological and Historical] Society in 1937. He succeeded Sir Robert Martin as President in 1961, and on his retirement in 1966 he became President Emeritus until his death.

Colin Dare Bernard Ellis was born in 1895. His great-great-grandfather, Joseph Ellis, was a Quaker farmer, who established the family in Leicestershire as an immigrant from Yorkshire. His two sons were both men of note: John, who became Chairman of the Midland Railway; and Joseph, the founder of the well-known firm of coal and builders' merchants Ellis & Everard. Colin Ellis was descended from Joseph. He was educated at Bootham School, York, and King's College, Cambridge. He joined up in 1915, and served as a Lieutenant in the Leicestershire Royal Horse Artillery throughout the remainder of the war. He was mentioned in despatches, gained the Military Cross, and was severely wounded. On his return from the war he joined the family business. In 1922 he married Ethel Clarke, [daughter of Dr Astley Clarke, the co-founder of the Leicester University College]. In the Second World War he became Director of Home-Grown Cereals in the Ministry of Food, which involved a four years' residence in Colwyn Bay. He became Chairman of Joseph Ellis & Sons Ltd. in 1944 and of Ellis & Everard Ltd. in 1952, serving in both offices until 1963. He was President of the National Association of Corn and Agricultural Merchants in 1953 - 54 and was appointed C.B.E. in January 1955. Throughout these years he gave varied public service to the city and county of Leicester: as Vice-Chairman of the Governors of Wyggeston's Hospital, for example; as a Trustee of the Leicester General Charities and of Bradgate Park; as a member of the Council of the University College and for a time as Chairman of its Finance and General Purposes Committee.

But his most distinctive contribution was made to the visual arts and to archaeological and historical studies. He had, for more than twenty years, been a co-opted member of the Museums and Libraries Committee of the City Council. As Chairman of its Arts Sub-Committee he gave time and thought and the fruits of his good judgment to the purchase of pictures for the City Art Gallery, which owes perhaps as much to him as to any other one man save Alderman Squire. He played a very active part in the production of its admirable catalogue Local Portraits (1956), to which he contributed a series of pithy biographical notes that are a model of their sort.

When, early in 1936, the archaeological investigation of the Jewry Wall site in Leicester came under discussion, Ellis was chiefly responsible for forming the Excavations Committee, which represented many interests, and became Chairman of the Executive Committee that did most to support Miss Kathleen Kenyon in her work and to prepare the ground for the City Council's enlightened decision to preserve the site as an open space. In the Introduction to her report Miss Kenyon paid a handsome tribute to him and to the Secretary of the Committee, W. K. Bedingfield, to their diplomacy and to their "great kindness and inspiring enthusiasm". The tribute went beyond convention and was well merited. Ellis was indeed always at pains to help those who were seriously engaged in the wide range of studies that interested him. A question on some point of detail would draw from him a letter of two or three pages, in his admirably clear handwriting, giving references and arguments, not infrequently offering to pursue the matter further if he could. Such kindnesses came from him all the more generously in his later years, when he was burdened with long ill-health.

It was the Jewry Wall excavations that first brought Ellis into contact with the Leicestershire Archaeological Society. After the war he became closely involved in its work, occupying the onerous and sometimes troublesome office of Chairman of its Committee for two years (1955 - 56). More than local recognition came to him in 1940 when he was elected a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries of London.

He gave good service, then, in a variety of ways to the community and to individuals within it.

But he will be most widely remembered as an author. The historical writing Ellis produced falls into two divisions: the brief contributions he made to co-operative work and his own three books. His earliest published essays in this field are to be found in the admirable Historical Guide to the City of Leicester produced in 1933 when the British Association met there. The first part of that little book was written by S. H. Skillington, with all his characteristic terseness and point, taking the story down to the close of the seventeenth century. Ellis's contribution was no less dear and elegant. In twenty pages he sketched the city's modern history and provided a compact account of "the way about Leicester". Two years later he selected from his mother's reminiscences '97 "my rag-bag", as she called it '97 the material that made up her Records of Nineteenth-Century Leicester: a compilation that social historians will always use with profit.

Later he rendered other useful and self-effacing services of the same kind. It was essential that the third volume of the Victoria County History should include a good account of hunting, the activity for which Leicestershire is pre-eminently famous. Unfortunately Major Guy Paget, who had agreed to write the chapter, died in 1952 before it was finished; Ellis shaped up the material that he left, adding to it his own account of the Quorn Hunt and making it all into a coherent whole. Next he supplied his distinctive contributions to the two catalogues of pictures that have already been mentioned; they were published in 1956 and 1958. In the later years of his active life he spent much energy in recording monumental inscriptions in the churches aid chapels of the county, and their graveyards. This work was not published, but the notes for it are deposited in the Archives Department of the City Museums [now the Record Office for Leicestershire, Leicester and Rutland]. They form a valuable quarry for students of history, and will become more valuable '97 like the similar records made by Nichols and his collaborators nearly two centuries ago'97 as the originals come to be obliterated by time and chance. There remain the three books. Two came out in the same year, 1948. The first of them was privately published: a brief but extremely workman-like centenary history of Ellis & Everard Ltd., making good use not only of the firm's own records but also of the diary of James Ellis, his great-great uncle, to show very clearly how the business was built up by a combination of hard work, enterprise, and meticulously economical management, side by side with the extension of the railway system. The other book of 1948, History in Leicester, combined in one interesting pattern three elements: narrative, the contemporary comment of observers in the past, and architectural description. All these were skilfully fused together, and lie book was clothed in a form worthy of it, to be sold by the City's enter-prising Publicity Department at a very reasonable price. A new edition of the book, including some supplementary matter contributed by others, appeared in 1969 '97 unhappily, just after the author's death. It remains one of the most attractive achievements in presenting local history to the ordinary reader that any English town can show.

Leicestershire and the Quorn Hunt was his biggest book, and in some respects the most important. It breaks firmly away from the usual patterns of sporting history, replacing the traditional account of the dynasty of Masters, interspersed with strings of jolly and breathless anecdotes, by critical and accurate research, designed "to show the Quorn Hunt against a local background". Ellis always appreciated the importance of "back-ground", of relating the events he described and the people involved in them to the larger world of which they were part. History in Leicester constantly reminded its readers of the relationship between this one Midland town and the larger polity of England. In just the same way, he displayed the Quom Hunt not simply as a sporting enterprise but as some-thing that grew up in a particular countryside; hunt and countryside impinged on each other, and that lay at the heart of Ellis's story. His acquaintance with the country he was dealing with was exceptionally intimate: for he not only rode to hounds, he knew about corn, he appreciated the landscape with something of a painter's eye and he understood its history. The first appendix to his book, "Some Covers and Landmarks", is an invaluable contribution to Leicestershire topography. At the same time he never distorted his story by claiming the Quorn wholly for Leicestershire: he saw the exotic elements too, and he often did memorable justice to 'them. It is this range of interest, the sense of scale, proportion, and depth, that most of all distinguish the historian from the antiquary. Ellis was emphatically a historian. But he was something else too, which made him, among historians, a rarity indeed. He was also a poet. His first historical essay appeared in 1933 when he was nearly forty. Before that, however, as a younger man, he bad written a substantial number of short poems, which he had collected together in two small books. The first of them, The Dispassionate Pilgrim, was a thin paperback, published by Blackwell at Oxford in 1927. The second, Mournful Numbers (Macmillan, 1932), reprints all but half-a-dozen of the first collection and adds some more. These additions include nearly all the best, suggesting that he found his feet as a poet between the appearance of his first book and his second; and since there was never a third we may infer that he felt he had then had his say. Immediately after Mournful Numbers was published, he turned to writing history in prose. The wry titles of these two volumes give at once a clue to the character of what they contain. Their chief themes are dislike and pleasure. The dislike is not hatred'97more often it borders rather on distaste. But it is concentrated into a number of mordant epigrams, which owe something to Herrick and by no means disgrace their parentage. A few of them reflect the political despair of the time. Jack Simmons concluded his paper with a further warm appreciation of Ellis, this time in relation to his poetry, including some examples of his writings. Colin married Ethel Vavasour Clarke, daughter of Dr. Astley Clarke. They had two children: Helen Elizabeth and Penelope "Polly" Mary.

15-Helen Elizabeth Ellis⁸⁹ was born on 1 Aug 1923.

General Notes: ELLIS.-On August 1st, Ethel, wife of Colin D. B. Ellis (1909-12), a daughter.

Helen married Hall.

15-Penelope "Polly" Mary Ellis⁹⁰ was born on 16 Nov 1925 and died in 1994 at age 69.

General Notes: ELLIS.-On November 16th, to Ethel and Colin D. B. Ellis (1909-12), a daughter, who was named Penelope Mary.

Penelope married Hart.

14-Flight Sub-Lieut. Oliver Bernard Ellis RN^{2,20,49,83} was born in 1899, died on 19 May 1917 in France. Killed in action at age 18, and was buried in Listed on the Arras memorial. Body not found.

General Notes: Flight Sub-Lieutenant OLIVER BERNARD ELLIS, R.N., second son of Mr. Bernard Ellis, of Avenue Road, Leicester, was reported "missing "on May 20th, but information has been received which leaves little doubt that he was killed in an encounter with a superior force of German aeroplanes over the German lines. Sub-Lieutenant Ellis, who was not yet 19, was educated at the schools of the Society of Friends at Sidcot, Somerset, and Bootham, Yorks. He joined the Royal Naval Air Service in June, 1916, and was sent on active service last March. He was an undergraduate of St. John's College, Cambridge, but had not taken up residence there.

O. B. ELLIS left Bootham eleven months ago. The news of his death made a deep impression on the School. One of his school-fellows says : We could scarcely believe that one who possessed his gifts had been taken so soon. His energy and spirit, combined with remarkable thoroughness, made him a leader in every undertaking; and his open honesty made him the true friend of all who knew him. His parents have kindly allowed us to print sentences from some of his letters which reveal the same zest in life that we had always known. March 18th, 1917. We had a jolly fine concert last night which carried us up till midnight . I happened to be duty officer, and so had to sleep in the office, which is an old aeroplane packing case; anyhow, there was a camp bed and some blankets rigged up in it , so I managed to get quite a good night . But I think that even my wildest dreams of thermos sleeping-sacks in the Lake District were not half so entertaining as solemnly choosing a packing case, with stove and telephone attached, to drive away the monotony of the hours of darkness (etc.) as a bed-sitting room; anyhow, I was extremely comfortable.

April 21st, 1917. We are still more or less playing about , and that reminds me : I saw a cricket ball in a shop the other day, and so I went in and managed to buy it , so you see my knowledge of the language is progressing. We are getting a set of cricket things sent out from England, and someone has kindly sent us a couple of footballs, so we play football when it's wet and cricket when it's fine, and there is an ash tennis court close by to which we have been invited, but unfortunately there isn't time for everything, so we have to save that up for some more favourable time... The F.A.TJ. dentist who I went to the other day said, "Let me see, you're the man who tried to whitewash the roof of some railway buildings in York, aren't you?" He was an Australian, but his assistant was a man I was at school with at Sidcot !

April 24th, 1917. This is just a short note to say that I am enjoying myself hugely, and am keeping as fit as anything. We are getting beautiful bright weather, with large white clouds floating round, and generally a pretty fresh breeze. Time doesn't hang very heavily on one's hands nowadays, there always seems to be something to do. By the way, these novels have come in very convenient. It is warm enough to-day to sit out in the sun (out of the wind) and read. It sounds almost like a nursing home, but if I don't get anything more strenuous than a rest cure during the war I shan't do so badly. I saw a little owl to-night, and heard lots of partridges calling. It was simply a ripping evening, and I had almost expected to see an old curlew flying over.

May 3rd, 1917. I'm afraid I haven't written quite as often as I should have liked to recently, but it has been such very fine weather that we are kept pretty busy, and although we are not actually up in the air all the time we spend most of our spare time sleeping. I do hope you are having it as we are ; it must be simply ripping out at Arley now. The only thing that spoils the country here is the dust , which whitens everything for miles on each side of the main roads, and also the fact that there is absolutely no pasture land, and ploughed land is despairingly dull. There are a lot of woods about , which breaks the country up to a great extent . The CO. got a young wild boar in one of the woods near here the other day, he was only about a week old, the funniest sight you ever saw. We wanted to keep him for a mascot, but the old spaniel that was told Off to look after him went to sleep, and the little thing died last night . . . I suppose it is one of the most deep-rooted instincts of man to grumble, so we all have to do our share of it ; but as a matter of fact I don't think anyone could wish for a more pleasant and peaceful life than we get. We are quartered right in the country, in an orchard ; we lie round in the Sun all day long except for the few hours we are working ; we have nothing to do or worry about , get the best of food and billets, and if it wasn't for The Daily Mail, which we get every morning, we would hardly know there was a war on ; and yet somehow the quiet freshness of Warwickshire seems far more fascinating than ever i t did before, and the thought of perfectly white flannels and a perfectly flat cricket ground seem to be things only to be found in heaven. I think I'm going to live in white flannels when I get home. Does anyone play tennis this year ? . . . Well, every causualty tha t I've personally known of has either been foolhardiness or incompetence, and I've given up the foolhardy touch after having seen the results of it, and I don't think I'm incompetent now, not below the average

May 9th, 1917. The last letters I received from home were the ones telling me of Colin's crash, and I must admit that I thought he was in a very bad way. I went over to see him yesterday and spent the afternoon with him. and was very relieved to find him so cheerful; he was in bed, but had been up the day before. I'm afraid his arm is giving him a lot of trouble, but he's looking awfully fit considering. I had an awfully decent after- noon with him, and we compared notes on all the places that we both knew, from above and below. I was very lucky to catch him because he might have gone home that Sunday, and, anyhow, expects to go next, so you may see him before you get this. May 10th, 1917. I wrote yesterday telling you that I'd seen Colin. It really was awfully nice to see him again, although I confess it made me think how nice it would be to have a broken arm and go back to England; it must be simply ripping out at Arley now. It rained the day before yesterday, and since then all the trees have been simply covering themselves with leaves; in fact, when I drove along through northern France to see Colin the avenues were bare trees, and when I came back there was thick foliage the whole way. And now we are all fearfully excited about a storm cloud which is rolling up, and are hoping that we shall have some bad weather. Selfish I know, but the day before vesterday was the first day for a month that I hadn't been up flying, and it's only when we have bad weather that we can get away into a town and have a bath, and that sort of thing. I suppose, in a way, that being moved down here was a sort of promotion, but it was not looked on in that light; they simply wanted a pilot, and so a pilot had to go. Anyhow, I'm awfully glad I came; I'd sooner be here than anywhere, and everyone looks on us as little tin gods. I don't know why; I suppose our job is more spectacular than most. May 14th, 1917. Talking about bluebells, I'm one up on you there, because, strange to say, I went a walk yesterday in some topping beech woods, running down a gully. The rain we had a day or two ago has brought all the leaves out, and the whole place looks simply ripping. And the bluebells are all full out, so you see the same can be said for the hideous old Front as for hideous old Leeds. When you go to Bootham give my love to everyone you happen to meet. Unfortunately, in the F.A.U. match the R.N.A.S. Captain had to go up to chase a Hun (who didn' t put in an appearance) and so couldn' t play, but as the two best F.A.U. men, Waterfall (Bootham) and Stephens (Sidcot) were both away, we won.... We had great fun on our patrol this morning. There were lots of lumps of cloud, about 3,000 feet high and perhaps 6,000 feet across, floating about, with ripping great jagged edges, and so when we got fed up with patrolling, we played hide-and-seek round these ; it's a lovely game so long as you don't run into anyone or meet half-a-dozen Huns round the next corner when the rest of your crowd is out of sight; but that sort of thing doesn't really happen, except in "Backwoods" or something of that sort. May 15th, 1917. I had a ripping scrap t'other day, fought one down 5,000 feet and eventually saw him off, not crashed but " driven down "; then I found six on my tail, so the only thing to do was to fight them till something happened. Luckily, the something was another of my lot, and while he was there I drove another Hun down; then my partner had a gun jamb, and I had four to keep going till another of my lot turned up, at which three of the four Huns thought fit to go. This other man dived on the remaining Hun and pumped quite a lot into him, and drove him down below me, so as my partner had drawn off, I attacked and finished off the unfortunate Hun, who crashed. There we were at 5,000 feet, ten miles the wrong side of the lines, and had Archies the whole way home. I found I had one strut nearly shot through, and two hits by Archie, one within half an inch of my petrol tank. It's a great war, isn't it ? It's raining like fun to-night, and I can hear a great Hick Boo on in the East . Good- night.

May 17th, 1917. We have got another " airman's day, " to-day-i.e., windy and rainy with low clouds, so we can take life very gently as usual. I am expecting a letter any time now saying that Colin is at home, or, I should say, in England. I do hope he gets to a decent hospital. I'll wait for the mail before I finish this letter, so that I can answer anything that may turn up. I've been getting a topping lot of letters lately, one almost every day, and they only take four days to get through from Leicester. Yes, I got those photographs from Young all right . They aren't as good as the first lot - he ought to try more vigorous paper, glossy for preference. All the people I wanted prints for are dispersed all over France now, so I don't expect I shall need to order any more. The mail has just come in and I have got a Spectator and a BOOTHAM ; the latter I have just finished reading. It's awfully refreshing to be able to sit down and go right through it, even if H. R. does make you a bit bewildered at times with his very deep scientific humour. I should like to get back for Whitsuntide, but unless something happens pretty soon I'm afraid there is not much chance of it this year. I'm afraid Whitsuntide won't be exactly a solemn affair if the war is over before next year. I don't expect it'll be long before I write again, so for the present I'll say good-bye.

Three days later Ellis was reported missing. Then news came that his squadron had attacked a superior force of hostile aircraft, that Ellis had shot one down, entirely destroying it, and engaged others afterwards. Then Mr. Ellis received a letter from the Squadron Commander telling of his gallant fight and how his machine was seen going down as though the pilot were wounded. I had formed a high opinion of him as an officer and a fighting pilot, a cheery messmate, always ready for any work or play ; he is a great loss to us. The Headmaster wrote in the Friend: Oliver Ellis came to Bootham from Sidcot with a reputation for genial friendship and for holding the junior sports championship two years in succession. He proved himself a fearless football player, a brilliant and daring gymnast . He took a good position in class, and did excellently in his pilot's examination a few months ago. He was a keen ornithologist and a forceful reeve - full of the spirit of adventure when he left school less than a year ago. His loss will be felt in a large circle of friends, for he has left behind him that worthier thing than tears, the love of friends without a single foe.

Noted events in his life were:

- He was educated at Sidcot School.
- He was educated at Bootham School in 1912-1916 in York, Yorkshire.
- He worked as a Flight Sub-Lieutenant of the Royal Navy.
- He was a Quaker.

14-Dr. Richard White Bernard Ellis^{2,20,84} was born on 25 Aug 1902 in Leicester, Leicestershire and died on 15 Sep 1966 in Glebe House, Hawridge, Berkhamsted at age 64.

General Notes: Richard Ellis came from a Quaker family long prominent in the civic life of Leicester. Naturally he went to Quaker schools, The Downs and Leighton Park. He went up to King's College, Cambridge in 1920, joining his elder brother there. They both enjoyed the social and literary life of the university to the full. It is remembered that he looked very young among the ex-servicemen at that time but indeed all his life he appeared younger than his age. His medical heroes at Cambridge were Barcroft and Adrian. He got a second in the Natural Sciences Tripos in 1923 and then went to St. Thomas's Hospital. He qualified in 1926 and went on to the MD and MA in 1931. Ellis started off in the usual way with house appointments but did not continue, as was then the custom, in his own hospital. He was registrar or chief assistant not only at St. Thomas's but also at the London and the Westminster Hospitals, as well as the Hospital for Sick Children, Great Ormond Street. He also spent a year most profitably under Blackfan at the Boston Children's Hospital. He was appointed physician for children's diseases at Guy's in 1936 and was soon involved in formulating a claim in which Guy's Hospital hoped to obtain a share of £200,000, left by Caleb Diplock to the children of Sussex. The executors of the will conceded that quite a number of children from Sussex were treated at Guy's and so £20,000 was allotted. The children's wards were then brought up to date and were called Caleb and Diplock.

At about this time, too, he went to Spain to help in the medical examination of 4,000 Basque children who were refugees during the Civil War in Spain. He adopted two of them and saw that they were satisfactorily placed in this country. He was a member of the National Joint Committee for Spanish Relief from 1937 to 1939. After the outset of war in Europe he went to Hungary and Rumania to see about the medical care of Polish refugees. Soon after that he was in the Royal Air Force, where he became Wing Commander and served in North Africa, Italy and Belgium. He was mentioned in despatches in 1944, and at the conclusion of his term as Adviser in Medicine to the Mediterranean Allied Air Force he was created OBE. His life as a travelling doctor did not end there; he was to visit other places such as West Africa, India and Indonesia to teach, learn and help. He was quick at making studies, particularly of growth and development, and often returned from such a voyage with a paper half-written. After he left the Service he settled down at Guy's to organize the department, becoming himself a full-timer. The hospital and Medical School asked that a Chair of Paediatrics be established but the University of London declined, so it was not surprising that, when he was invited to be Professor of Child Life and Health in Edinburgh he accepted. At first he was not comfortable in the North but as time went on he became attached to the country of his adoption. He had been elected FRCP in 1939, but it gave him great pleasure to be elected FRCP Edinburgh in 1951. He was also an FRS Ed. He found the amount of lecturing required in Edinburgh at that time a surprising task, but he converted his lectures into a popular textbook Diseases in Infancy and Childhood, which appeared in 1951 and ran through five editions in his lifetime.

In the earlier part of his career he had been particularly interested in rare diseases but, as time went on, he became primarily concerned with child development and the social influences which affect it, influences shown in his books Child Health and Development (1949) and Health in Childhood (1961), as well as his Blackfan Memorial Lecture on Social Change in Child Health in 1957. He was Chairman of the Remand Homes Committee of the Scottish Advisory Council for Child Care in 1960-61 and his report led to much-needed reform. He continued for many years to organize teaching in Edinburgh, to attend international meetings, to influence people everywhere. He had been the preux chevalier of young paediatricians early in his career, and his wise counsel, often given with apparent reluctance, was widely held in esteem.

When he was 56 years old a carcinoma was removed. It was the secondaries in the bones that let him down, but he managed to carry on for six years with hardly anyone knowing that he was ill. Eventually he had to resign and in his last two years had further pathological fractures. In his final admission to St. Thomas's Hospital he saw only people he had invited and most of them only once. To them he appeared, apart from being an invalid in bed, very much the same as usual, the same genial view of life allied to drollery about human motivations. His attitude to children was entirely different, he seemed perfectly at home with them and would relax and tell them stories or join in their outdoor games as though a child himself.

He achieved much in his professional life. Early, he was the ideal of the young, to the seniors the man of promise. Later, he was valued in counsel in affairs concerning children, not only medical problems. Throughout, he went to see for himself where things were not going aright for children. His books were translated into other tongues and read in the four quarters of the globe.

As a companion he was delightful, unhurried, humourous, witty, a painter in oils who appreciated others' paintings and antique furniture, but he was also someone apart, who would sit at the back of a scientific meeting and unobtrusively leave to go for a walk halfway through the session. He treated his fatal illness with total courage and philosophy. In 1941 he married Dr. Audrey Russell who had examined Basque children with him five years before. It was a happy marriage and blessed with a son and a daughter.

General Notes: Herbert Ellis.

THE subject of this Memoir was born at Forest Edge, nr. Leicester, on June 6th, 1856. His parentage was an honoured one, he being the eldest son of James Ellis, J.P., M.P. and Louisa Ellis (née Burgess), both members of the Society of Friends, whose ancestors occupied lands in Leicestershire for over 130 years. Herbert Ellis came to Bootham in 1868 and made rapid strides in his studies, being much interested in Natural History and scientific pursuits, particularly Chemistry, which branches of knowledge became useful adjuncts in an afterward business career. It was in the year 1872 that he passed on to Owen's College, Manchester, to complete his education and then to become associated with the firms of Ellis & Everard, Ltd., and Joseph Ellis & Sons, both coal, coke and agricultural produce merchants, which his grandfather with others, had established in Leicestershire. He was a partner in the private Company of Ellis & Everard-Quarry owners at Bardon and Charnwood, and later joined the Scientific Instrument business of Taylor, Taylor & Hobson, Ltd., of which he was Chairman for 16 years. The talents of Herbert Ellis were first publicly recognised by his election to the Town Council in 1891 and upon other occasions when he filled important offices in Leicester. He was a justice of the peace for the county; Chairman of the Income Tax Commissioners for several years, and his labours as Chair- man of the Board of Governors of the Wyggeston Hospital for 17 years will not easily be forgotten, for he accomplished very valuable work on behalf of the charity and devoted with conspicuous success, a considerable portion of his time to the duties of Chairman of the Estate Committee of the Governors. During his tenure of office the financial position of this charity very greatly improved and the Board made provision for the payment of out-pensions, a large sum being now spent weekly to one hundred old people. Herbert Ellis was a life Vice-President of the Literary and Philosophical Society, being its President during the year the British Association visited Leicester and for many years its Hon. Secretary; a Trustee of the Town Charities; a member of the Committee of Management of St. Martin's Savings Bank and a Governor of Alderman Newton's secondary school, and on the board of many charities. In 1879, Herbert Ellis married Alice Shipley, daughter of George Burgess of Scarsdale, of New York State, U.S.A., who, surviving him with two daughters and a son, now mourn his loss. Of his character and ability there can be but one opinion- his word was his bond and his judgment was generally acknow- ledged to be perfectly sound. When he had once made up his mind, the decision was adhered to and one could always be assured that he would not alter the opinion formed. He was a man of many parts, esteemed for his sterling worth and inheriting many of the qualities of his father. He was a fine example of a scholar educated at Bootham who took a noble share in the affairs of life and he owed much of the success to the tuition received from Silvanus Thompson, Fielden Thorp, B.A., John Firth Fryer, B.A., T. H. Waller, B.A., B.Sc, J. Edmund Clark, B.A., B.Sc., and other masters. We are not enumerating all his manifold activities and large-hearted generosity; suffice it to say, that a sympathetic interest was always forthcoming towards any good cause. Of the ways and means which he employed to bring forth that co-ordination for the better government of the two schools- Bootham and The Mount, with their allied associations-are too well known to require allusion in this tribute. He loved the Yorkshire Quarterly Meeting Schools, was on the Committee of Management for some years and retained his interest in them to the last. He was the founder of, and the first Hon. Secretary of the O.Y.S.A. and after several years of willing service in that office, was appointed Chairman of the O.Y.S.A. "Business Meeting" usually held at Whitsuntide, a position retained until two years ago when he retired owing to ill health. When the Friends' First Day School movement extended to Leicester in 1861, several members of the Burgess and Ellis families became teachers at Soar Lane, which afterwards amal- gamated with the Adult School Union, when Herbert Ellis was for 35 years the leader of the "Friends' School" in Leicester. He was one of the brilliant yet unobtrusive scholars which Bootham has given to the fields of Finance, Science and States- manship. He had been suffering for some time from an affection of the heart, together with partial blindness, but nobody thought the end was quite so near. He had been away for ten days in the Lake District and was taken ill on the journey home, due to the oppressive heat in the train. He became worse and passed away at his residence, The Gynsills, in the early hours of Tuesday, May 30th. The interment took place at the parish church of Glenfield, with which village his family has been closely connected for over 100 years, amidst tokens of sincere sympathy from a very large circle of friends. It will be felt that a charming life has gone to its reward. E. E. E.

General Notes: I am passing on to the Group an email from Jocelyn Lloyd in Australia giving the sad news of Tom's death. Not many of you will have come across him, but no doubt some will. He descended from John Sanderson Lloyd (brother of Howard Lloyd my Gt Grandfather) who in the 1850s made his way to Adelaide and founded a local branch of the Lloyd family there, working as accountants and merchants. We were delighted to visit him and Jocelyn in 2004, to be shown around Canberra and especially its botanical gardens, an area which always interested them especially in their own garden on the outskirts of Sydney. We have maintained occasional contact since. Last autumn he had a recurrence of cancer in the brain and spinal area, and though he came through intensive surgery, he had been back in treatment for the last month or more. Richard Lloyd

13-Sir Howard Watson Lloyd¹¹⁴ was born on 3 Mar 1868 in Adelaide, South Australia and died in May 1955 at age 87. General Notes: Possibly no previous Chairman left a deeper imprint on the Bank than did Howard Watson Lloyd. A Director for 36 years and Chairman for 23 of them, his name became practically synonymous with that of the Bank as he guided or assisted to guide it through the dangerous waters of two World Wars, the Depression and a number of other crises As with many other people known for their longevity, Lloyd was a sickly child. Born to John and Charlotte Lloyd at North Adelaide in March 1868, there already flowed in his veins the blood of bankers. His father was the son of Isaac Lloyd, Quaker banker, and the uncle after whom our ninth Chairman was named was the first Secretary and later a General Manager of the Company which the family founded, Lloyds Bank Limited

Between the ages of ten and eighteen he attended St. Peter's College but in 1882 his schooling was interrupted by his being sent to England for a holiday. The sea voyage apparently had the desired effect and the almost continuous headaches, from which he had suffered from birth, disappeared

On leaving school he worked for some years in a variety of offices, including those of EW Van Senden (a sharebroker), the AMP Society and the SA Brewing Company. Later in life he was to become a Director of both these companies and a Chairman of the latter. Then, in 1897, he entered the legal and financial firm of H L & AEAyers on the death of Sir Henry Ayers (our first Chairman) and rose to become senior partner in this old established firm

A year later he married Sir Henry Ayers' grand daughter, Mary. They had four children, Ursula (MrsL MSHargrave), Marian, Lancelot and Henry, and these two sons later joined their father in the firm

In1914, at the age of 46, Lloyd won a hard fought election to the Board of The Bank of Adelaide and in later years became Chairman of SA Brewing Co, a Director of SA Gas Co., Adelaide Steamship Co, AMP Society, Goldsbrough Mort & Co, and Alliance Assurance Co, a member of the Board of Governors of St. Peter's College, a member of the Council of the Zoological and Acclimatisation Society and Priest's Warden of St. Paul's Church, Adelaide. He was also connected with other companies and, in fact, as "The Bulletin" rather facetiously put it in the late 1920's, "a big company is scarcely considered respectable in SAif his name is not on the directors' list"

As Chairman he saw the Bank through the Depression years when wheat was selling at 2/3d bushel and wool was averaging under £10 a bale. The Bank had "the responsibility of carrying its farmer customers through to better times" and an understanding but firm and forthright man was needed at the helm. Lloyd was never afraid to point the finger at injustices or to weaknesses in the economy

In 1937 he was created a Knight Bachelor in the New Year's Honours List

With the economy back on its feet after the Depression it was found that more room was needed at Head Office and in 1937 Alfred Chambers in Currie Street was purchased. Work on the alterations and extensions was commenced in 1939 and in the following year Sir Howard opened the enlarged Office. A stone plaque by the Head Office lift commemorates this occasion

By this time the Second World War was making its effects felt and to further the war effort the Australian banks were asked to rationalise their branch systems with the aim of employing their officers more efficiently. The banks could see little benefit in sacrificing goodwill and good connections merely to make an empty gesture, and Lloyd called it "a retrograde step, putting an extra burden on the farmer customer and achieving no practical results at a time when all male staff who are fit and of military age are already in the services". To comply with the Government's wishes we eventually closed three Branches (Snowtown, Tanunda and Saddleworth) after consulting with the other banks The Bank also made plans for an emergency evacuation. Records were duplicated and arrangements were made to transfer the Adelaide Clearing House to Burra, Head Office to the Saddleworth premises, Adelaide Office to Kapunda, Branch Department to Balaklava and North Terrace Branch to Booborowie. Thankfully, these plans did not have to be put into effect

By 1946 Sir Howard was 78 years old, had been a Director for 31 years and had served as Chairman for a record 20 years. To mark these achievements his portrait, painted by Ivor Hele, was unveiled in the then Board Room at 81 King William Street by the Deputy Chairman, Sir Edward Holden. Four years later, at the age of 82, Sir Howard retired Always keen on physical fitness, he was a founder of the Royal Adelaide Golf Club and played tennis every Saturday until he was 80. He rode his bicycle into the city every day and parked it in the basement of the Adelaide Club until he was 64, and from then on he walked into town each day from his home at 24 Trinity Street, College Town During the last five years of his life he relinquished most of his Directorships and began to play a lessening part in the various phases of public life that had occupied him for so many years. He died at home at the age of 87 in May 1955.

His contribution to the Bank's progress from 1914 until 1950 cannot be fully gauged. Four General Managers served during his term of office and to a whole generation of South Australians he represented the Bank to whose interests he was continually alert and in which he took the greatest pride. Raymond as spoken at the Service at Tetbury [15/8/2014] Harriet Faulkner

Today we are recalling a life of 98 years. Raymond. In our home he was known as being a positive contribution to the Great War by his parents: Ambrose and Jessie Lloyd. At his birth in 1916 Raymond was very ill, including having jaundice. He continued to suffer from any illness going all his young life and was termed 'a delicate child' – an expression you don't now hear. Because of that he was largely home-educated at their home of White Lodge, Belbroughton, with a governess, in between frequent ailments. He said Sundays were fiercely set apart from all other days, so that the family would walk to church for the eleven o'clock Service, and walk home, since his father would not drive on Sundays. Free time was also spent on pastimes confined to Sunday use. Raymond lately produced his long-kept 'Sunday Book' beautifully laid out by him under his mother's teaching, with hand-written key texts for each topic and season. These were built up from age 6 to age 15, and then record his attendance at beach missions for the young at Woolacombe, and Borth, culminating in his profession of trust in the Lord Jesus in a Confir- mation Service at Hartlebury Castle by Bishop Perowne: 'a cousin of my aunt Margery.' It was a big decision of his mother's to send her 12-year old to live and be schooled in the health-giving air of Switzerland for spells covering roughly 4 years – when you think of no phones [1930 to 1934] less easy travel, and doing without her son - not to mention expense. But it paid off, and Raymond retained a love of Switzerland throughout his life. When in those years he occasionally returned, he enjoyed visits to his oldest brother Humphrey, in London, who was 14 years his senior and already had his first home in Hampstead. Upon his return when 16 there must have been some thought about him aiming for a University place. One of the tutors from his Swiss placement also returned, to live in Colwyn Bay, and there Raymond went to live for 2 or 3 terms of one-on-one tuition from this man he knew well, who tutored in various subjects including Latin and Calculus, and was, Raymond thought, just one page ahead of him in the book. When Raymond took an exam run by Exeter College, Oxford, for those who had not got the ordinary school leaving certificate, he passed and read ENGINEERING SCIENCE, 1935 to '38. Only Oxford offered that particular brand of first engineering degree, and he valued the course from which he had to go on afterwards towards one of the then 3 branches: Electrical, Mechanical or Civil Engineering, as was customary. He opted for a year reading ENGINEERING AND COMMERCIAL STUDIES at Loughborough College, Leicester, and normally after that year [1938-'39] would have been taken on at the firm of his choice but, as you know, the War intervened so he never got his I Mech E. Instead he worked for the War Effort in Reading with Pulsometer fashioning a variety of pumps. 2 Leaving the narrative there for a moment let me backtrack into the Exeter College years to note two things: his lively interest in the College ever since. Only last year nephew Godfrey took Raymond to one event of the College's 700th Year of Celebration; and the firm friendship he formed with a man one year behind him whose development in a] plantsmanship and b] birdwatching he much admired. That was David Nichols, whom we all knew and whose son, Jim, is here today tho' his sister, Fiona, is abroad or would be here. Some time after the close of War David Nichols and Raymond managed a birdwatching visit to Stockholm. Furthermore Raymond got wind of the setting-up of the Severn Wildfowl Trust by Peter Scott at Slimbridge and, having gone along to have a look, he became a near-founder member. That would be in 1947. We also know of a second lifelong and dear friend of Oxford days, Walter Douglas, died only last year, whose son Francis is one of Raymond's godchildren. Around that year Raymond, now 31, moved work from Reading to Archdales of Worcester, makers of machine tools. As his parents had some years before moved to Nettlebed he could easily drive himself home from either Reading or Worcester. Still the bachelor son, he changed position in 1950 to AC Delco at Dunstable where he took lodgings. It was a great event for him to travel far north, to Fair Isle, the mecca of keen birders, experiencing also the bad weather that can prevent the sea passage from Shetland. How much he envied our own visit to Fair Isle in July 2011, reading the Bird Report for that year from cover to cover. The eldest brother now played a further role. Humphrey sometimes needed the secretarial work of Barbara Hicks at Marlow where he lived, for they both held positions at Chatham House. So it was in Marlow that Raymond and Barbara met. Several times. Their marriage in 1955 by his middle brother, Rex, meant a hospitable new venue for the nephews and nieces at Totternhoe while he continued with AC Delco for 3 years. After that he sought a change into Training and Education within Engineering, taking a position at Woolwich, 1959, with a firm that shortly became AEI Telecoms Group, and so a second home was made, in Orpington, for about 9 years. When the boss left Raymond went up a notch into his place, and this is where he developed friendship with Jack Keiser [Keesa] who was very keen on birds generally and on Fair Isle and its renowned Bird Observatory in particular. Jack even held his 80th on Fair Isle, inviting Raymond, who sadly could not go, which he lastingly regretted. From Woolwich in 1968 Raymond made another move, this time into Personnel Management [or Human Resources] in the R and D section of Metal Box at Boreham Wood. Thus Raymond and Barbara made their third home, at Chalfont St Giles, which we all 3 remember, especially the expertise put into the garden-making there, whilst I recall being taken by them to the Savill Garden, Virginia Water to learn the finer points of planting layout, which I loved. All of us have been taken to gardens and nurseries of note ever since. When he reached 61 Metal Box did a re-structuring which faced Raymond with the question, 'Now what?' He did not want the re-location prospect, yet neither did he want to be at the mercy of the job market, or retire just then but, as he considered all the options he saw his way both to remaining in the Chalfont house for a spell and using those few years to fulfil some personal wishes of his own and Barbara's. Undertaking original research into the lines of descent on his mother's side of the family he gathered material on the Paddons, and was delighted to assist with a biography on his uncle, Dr Harry Paddon of Labrador, then being written in Canada. Working on the Van Sommer line he closed in upon our Huguenot ancestry, with their specialist world of silk weaving and design. He and Barbara travelled wherever the trails led, including Canada, to stay with Harry's son Dick and wife Sheila Paddon, who would surely have flown here for this day if it were not for her great age. Moving to his father's side Raymond pursued research into, and promotion of Luke Howard of Tottenham, Namer of the Clouds, the father of Meteorology, and the Brook St Chapel which he and his family founded and supported. Getting to Tottenham for the unveiling of a Blue Plaque on Luke's house, going again to be satisfied with the renovation and cleaning of John Eliot Howard's gravestone at Tottenham, and working on the placing of a memorial to Luke and Mariabella Howard at the Friends Meeting House in Winchmore Hill were high among the family achievements he pursued in recent years. Nor was the Lloyd ancestry neglected, with his visits to the Welsh family home at Dolobran, and to the Library in Birmingham which holds much family material. These mentions of family lines allow me to say that we belong in a wide cousinly community thanks, in the first place, to many having been of the Quaker persuasion, inclined to marry within their circle, and keeping up links across the country by much letter-writing. Annual Meetings assisted in forming the habit of getting together, which has continued sporadically and with great fun down a century. The one who for years had drawn up a Family Tree for any such big occasion was the eldest brother. When Humphrey died Raymond became the one who, for each Cousins Party, produced an extended and updated tree, about a yard wide, to enable many of us to position ourselves in relation to our cousins. He loved a family get-together! After those research and travel years the time came for a new home for his and Barbara's retirement so they house-hunted in the Severn Valley and the Cotswold region near 4 Gloucester, found one with a fine coombe view, waited a year for it to be renovated, and be given a landscaped garden by a cousin, Philip Howard, and then in 1982 they moved into 19 Cirencester Road, Tetbury. There have followed more than 30 years of Retirement Pursuits in the town here, in the locality, and far beyond. Raymond and Barbara took out many memberships, not only to enjoy themselves but also to take along any willing family or visitor to enjoy favourite places with them whether Music, Concerts, Exhibitions, Westonbirt Arboretum, Gloucestershire Wildlife Trust, Nature in Art, Luncheon Club, and Probus: you will know better than we do. And all of us have met our uncle and aunt at, or been taken to, a multitude of good pubs for chatty lunches. He kept the Good Pub Guide, and a register of visits! The many periodicals arriving through the letterbox supported this riot of interests, and we benefited from relevant excerpts being mailed to the right recipients. A great set of 'Which?' magazines was available for us to consult. Then he took to computing aged 83 plus, allowing us to be in touch by Email. Of course, Raymond kept a workbench, and would always attempt repairs to damaged articles rather than buy replacements. We are sure that you each have memories of "Mr Lloyd" because of the width of these interests, and know how he took an interest in The Feoffees, the Woolsack Day, the Campaign in support of Tetbury Hospital, the Planting of the new Woodland. Some of you have known Raymond in these last 4 years, becoming important to the smooth running of the home in the months of increasing fragility. To you who have been such a help, and been good company for one who enjoyed visitors in all their variety, we can now give our Thank You. For us families of Humphrey Lloyd, and Rex Lloyd, Raymond and Barbara were favourite uncle and aunt, often visited or invited to our homes; and as our families grew, they took on the role of great- and great-great- uncle and aunt. Additionally, though Barbara had few family connections, her niece Linda became a regular visitor and companion to Raymond in these last few years. With our own parents departed it has been our privilege for 15 years to keep the home and the garden functioning. Throughout the years the keynotes have been hospitality, vibrant and varied interests, orderliness and the engineering hallmark. Of course, Raymond still had much to do, wasn't ready to go, but in truth we are not so much mourneers as his admirers. _____

RAYMOND LLOYD

St Mary's Tetbury

15 August 2014

Many of us met here, along with Raymond, on the 20th of September 2012 to give thanks for the life of his beloved Barbara and bid her farewell in the name of the Lord. In my address then, I recalled how Raymond and Barbara regularly attended the 8am Holy Communion service here where the service was that of the Book of Common Prayer which they cherished. They were familiar with, and treasured, the many jewels of that liturgy, and certainly with the Prayer of General Thanksgiving which sadly we seldom hear used these days. I mention this since I find that this prayer pinpoints for me much that I met in Raymond's life.

Late me quote a part of that prayer with its "soberly magnificent" Elizabethan English prose/poetry: Almighty God, Father of all mercies, we thine unworthy servants do give thee most humble and hearty thanks for all thy goodness and loving-kindness to us and to all men. We bless thee for our creation, preservation and all the blessings of this life; but above all for thine inestimable love in the redemption of the world by our Lord Jesus Christ, for the means of grace and for the hope of glory." Raymond understood his life as a gift, a blessing from God, and important among these blessings was that of friendship. Other people are a gift to us and we all need one another. "Our life and our death are with our neighbour" (Anthony the Great). We are members of one another; that's how God made us. This explains Raymond's characteristic warmth and welcome to others which built up a wide circle of friends here in Tetbury. He greatly valued his family whose history he helped to record. I know how deeply grateful he was to the several family members who gave him unfailing support and care during his illnesses these last few years.

The high value he placed on friendship explains his genuine concern for the well-being of community life here in Tetbury where he actively supported many local organizations, such as Probus, the Civic Society, the Historical Society, this church and other local interest groups. Among his blessings he counted, too, a love of creation, nature, its flora and fauna, and these were enriched by the journeyings he and Barbara made across the world.

I think it was at an 8am service here in 1982 that I first met him and I soon came to value his friendship. I quickly recognised his sharp intellect and a questioning mind which were evident in the perceptive and penetrating questions he threw at me in study groups. He was a thinking scientist, having read Engineering, and a thinking Christian, who valued simplicity and order, expressed in sound judgements, thoughtfully arrived at, and articulated with characteristic gentleness. Alongside his serious and reverent attention to the mystery he found in the world around him, he retained a delightful sense of humour and could laugh at himself, especially when Barbara drew attention to his mistakes or forgetfulness. She surely was for him his loveliest blessing!

Over the years Sheila and I regularly met with Raymond and Barbara at some eating place (discovered by him) between Tetbury and Llandaff and these meetings continued after her death. We had planned to meet in July for lunch, the day Raymond met with his accident. We shall miss those lovely meetings! We were -still are - companions for we broke bread together, at pub and altar.

So, as I reflect on Raymond, I find myself asking: what made him the human being I knew and, along with many others, held in affection? What indeed makes us the people we are? We are certainly not what we eat. We are who we are by the values we freely espouse and try to practise. What were those values for Raymond? Philosophers have ever proposed endless lists of the virtues they think make our values. For their answer, Christians turn not to abstract concepts but to the life lived by Jesus of Nazareth, the Son of God, and there they find, in action, love, faith, hope, forgiveness, sacrifice. Then St Paul adds "joy, peace, patience, kindness, generosity, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control" (Gal 5.22). But notice: these are gifts of God, not our own achievement.

It was in his search for, and adoption of such values and the way he tried to live by them, that made Raymond the very special person we met and still know. Throughout his life he was an Easter man for he saw his life on earth as one of service and as part of a greater life still to come, as gift, a blessing, to be graciously received, reverenced and enjoyed, because God raised Jesus of the first Easter Day; the Jesus who offers life in all its fullness, above all, immeasurable love.

So it is fitting, as we thank God for Raymond, here in the place and the community which meant much to him, to return to the Prayer of General Thanksgiving: "And we beseech thee, give us that due sense of all thy mercies that our hearts may be unfeignedly thankful, and that we show forth thy praise, not only with our lips, but in our lives; by giving up ourselves to thy service, and by walking before thee in holiness and righteousness all our days". Thus with thanksgiving, we pray: May he rest I peace and rise to glory. Amen

Raymond married Barbara Joan Hicks, daughter of John Hicks and Barbara Budd, on 12 Mar 1955 in Fulmer, Buckinghamshire. Barbara was born on 3 Feb 1917 in Bromley, Kent, died on 5 Sep 2012 at age 95, and was buried in St Mary's Church, Tetbury, Gloucestershire.

14-Prof. Seton Howard Frederick Lloyd was born on 30 May 1902 in Edgbaston, Birmingham, Warwickshire and died on 8 Jan 1996 in Woolstone, Berkshire at age 93.

General Notes: Seton Lloyd was born in Birmingham on 30 May 1902. After school at Uppingham, he studied at the Architectural Association in London and qualified as an architect in 1926, when he joined Sir Edwin Lutyens' practice in Queen Anne's Gate. In 1928 Lloyd set up in practice with two friends and this unexpectedly gave him his entry into archaeology and led to a distinguished career as a Near Eastern field archaeologist and professor. One of his partners was due to join an excavation in his professional capacity as architect/surveyor but last-minute developments necessitated his remaining in London to oversee the partnership's first important commission. Lloyd went in his place and found himself at Tell el-Amarnah, the fourteenth-century B.C. site which Henri Frankfort was excavating for the Egypt Exploration Society. This project lasted for two years, and in 1930 Lloyd was invited by Frankfort to join his next excavation, under the auspices of the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago, of a series of sites in the Diyala region north-east of Baghdad, which occupied them for seven years. From 1937-9 Lloyd excavated at Mersin, in southern Turkey, for the University of Liverpool and returned to Iraq in 1939 as technical adviser to the Director of Antiquities in Baghdad. During the war he worked briefly in the public relations office of the Mandate government in Jerusalem but returned to Baghdad in 1941, where he helped to establish the Iraq Museum and reorganize the Gertrude Bell Museum. He trained Iraqi archaeologists and participated with Iraqi colleagues in several major excavations, notably at Eridu, the most important post-diluvian city in Babylon. In 1949 Lloyd was appointed director of the new British School of Archaeology in Ankara and was immediately faced with formidable difficulties over the basic preliminaries of finding and equipping modest premises and starting a library. He excavated with, among others, James Mellaart, F.S.A., one of the first scholars at the Ankara School, the mound at Beycesultan, in western Anatolia, which revealed the remains of a series of Bronze Age palaces of the Arzawan culture which flourished at the time of Homeric Troy. A brief spell of retirement from Ankara in 1961 was followed by election to the chair of Western Asiatic Archaeology at London University in 1962, in succession to Sir Max Mallowan, F.S.A., and he remained there until 1969. Lloyd continued his fieldwork: in eastern Turkey in 1965 he studied Urartu, the culturally advanced state centred on Lake Van which flourished during the ninth-seventh centuries B.C.; and in Iraq in 1966 he noted with satisfaction that local archaeologists were conducting major digs. He served as a Vice-President of the Society from 1965-9 and received the Lawrence of Arabia Memorial Medal in 1971 and the Gertrude Bell Memorial Medal in 1979. He published profusely from 1935 onwards when Sennacherib's Aqueduct at Jerwan was published by Chicago, through the 1940s, 50s and 60s when perhaps his best known book, Art of the Ancient Near East (1961) appeared, to the late 1980s when, at the age of eighty-seven, he published Ancient Turkey. He died on 8 January 1996. The Society of Antiquaries

14-Gwyneth Eliot Lloyd was born on 4 Jun 1913 in Edgbaston, Birmingham, Warwickshire and died on 6 May 1994 at age 80.

General Notes: Gwyneth Eliot Lloyd, actress, antique textile dealer: born Edgbaston, Warwickshire 4 June 1913; married 1936 John Heygate (died 1976; two sons; marriage dissolved 1947), 1947 Arthur Donaldson (died 1980; one son, two daughters, and one stepdaughter; marriage dissolved); died London 6 May 1994. IN HER varied and unconventional life, Gwyneth Lloyd managed to combine three careers - film star in the 1930s, Women's Royal Air Force in the 1940s, and antique textiles expert in the last two decades - as well as two husbands and two families.

She was born in 1913 in Edgbaston, Birmingham, to a respectable Quaker family. Her grandfather, Howard Lloyd, had been managing director of Lloyds Bank from 1871 to 1902. Her mother, Florence (nee Armstrong), was a progressive woman for her time (it was said she owned one of the first washing machines). Gwyneth trained as an actress at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, where two important things happened to her. First, she met Diana Churchill, Winston's daughter, who became her best friend for many years. Gwyneth said later that it was in the Churchills' house, Chartwell, that she really learnt to make intelligent conversation. The second key event was a newspaper competition which won her a contract with Gaumont British Films. The company had decided to launch a counter-attack on Hollywood's monopoly of the stars and she was one of the few English beauties to selected to be 'Baby Film Stars'. Before long, Gwyneth became the first of these stars to get a leading role in a British feature film - in 1934 she starred opposite Sonnie Hale (then married to Jessie Matthews) in Wild Boy, directed by Albert de Courville. Her other co-star in that film was the famous greyhound Mick the Miller.

In practice, her career was not to be a long one. John Heygate, recently divorced from Evelyn Waugh's first wife, Evelyn Gardner ('She-Evelyn'), saw Gwyneth in Wild Boy and was strongly attracted by his first glimpse of her extraordinary beauty (although he complained later with his typically dry wit that, 'he only went to see the dog'). Shortly afterwards he took the trouble to gatecrash her 21st birthday party, ambushed her in the kitchen and discovered a mutual liking for fine cheeses. Dinner at Quaglino's followed and the romance developed quickly.

During the early Thirties she met many artists and writers including Vyvyan Holland, Oscar Wilde's son. Her portrait by Tristram Hillier still hangs in her bedroom. The Cafe Royal and the Gargoyle, in Dean Street, were regular haunts. The Charleston, the foxtrot and later the quickstep were all the rage.

In 1935, Heygate, recently sacked from the BBC by Lord Reith because of the publicity surrounding the Waugh divorce, went to work for UFA films in Berlin, writing scripts for the trilingual films being produced there at the time with Lillian Harvey and other international stars. This was the era of Christopher Isherwood's Berlin and as Germany was slid towards dictatorship there was much to see for the now engaged couple, as they motored about the country in Heygate's MG.

Back in England, John and Gwyneth were married at St Ethelburga's (the only church in England that would marry divorced people), in the City, and then settled in a country house in Sussex. Although the period is given a rosy glow of nostalgia in one of Heygate's novels, A House for Joanna, the truth was less romantic. He preferred writing on the counters of smoke-filled, working men's pubs, rather than in his smart new study. The couple drifted back to London.

The war now intervened on a marriage already weakened by Heygate's drinking and unpredictable temper. While he was away in the army in Ceylon, Gwyneth joined the WRAF as an aircraft plotter. Here she met a handsome young fighter pilot, Arthur Donaldson, one of three brothers all of whom won the DSO in the air war, and consequently achieved almost 'pop star' status at the time.

After the war, Gwyneth and Arthur followed the transient lives of station families in Germany and England. Gwyneth produced three more children to add to the two boys from her first marriage and Arthur's daughter by his first marriage. In the 1950s, Arthur retired from the RAF and they settled in a large house in Buckinghamshire. Although the marriage lasted 18 years, it too finally ended in divorce in the mid-1960s.

But Gwyneth's independent mind and courage saw her through these difficult times. 'I refuse to be frightened of life,' she said. She built herself a new career as an antique dealer, textiles expert and member of LAPADA, the professional association of antique dealers. In the 1970s and 1980s she became a well-known figure in her shop in Belgravia and at antique fairs, where she would stand surrounded by beautiful old fabrics, engaging passers-by in conversation. She ran her own business until the last year of her life. Gwyneth Lloyd was almost impossible to shock and she had a great sense of self-irony. She was highly amused when, in her late seventies, somebody said to her 'You're quite a relic, aren't you?' (Not long after, the invitation to ther 80th birthday party announced a 'Relic's Rave-up'.)

Gwyneth was always active and on the move. As a young woman, she played at Junior Wimbledon. And she was a keen skier in the days when there were no ski-lifts and no package tours to the Alps. She spoke French and German and travelled to five continents during her life. All her life she was full of new ventures - when she inherited some money from her parents at the end of the 1950s, she bought a racehorse, a motor boat and some land in Portugal.

She retained a youthful spirit, and never fully accepted old age or the prospect of losing her independence. Even as an 80-year-old she had friends of every age, male and female. She loved good conversation, good food, parties and picnics. Everybody who visited her flat was dazzled by her distinctive taste and the atmosphere she created there.

Noted events in her life were:

- Her obituary was published in The Independent on 19 May 1994.
- She worked as an Antique Dealer and Actress.

Gwyneth married Sir John Edward Nourse Heygate 4th Bt., son of Arthur Conolly Gage Heygate and Frances Evelyn Rowley Harvey, on 28 Feb 1936 in London. The marriage ended in divorce. The engineer and mountaineer Peter Lloyd, who has died in Australia aged 95, was the last British link with the great prewar decade of Himalayan exploration, and an associate of one of its seminal figures, Major HW Tilman. As director-general of engine research and development at the Ministry of Aviation from 1961 to 1969, he was also closely involved in the design of the Rolls-Royce Spey and Tay engines, and the Bristol/Rolls-Royce Pegasus engine that powers the vertical take-off BAe Harrier. Born in Sheffield, the son of an economics lecturer, Lloyd was educated at Gresham's school, in Holt, Norfolk and read engineering at Trinity College, Cambridge. There, he was one of an extraordinarily gifted generation of mountaineers. Lloyd was president of the university's mountaineering club in his final year. His powerful, compact physique and stamina helped him become highly competent in mountain craft, and to amass a substantial record in alpinism through successive seasons of the late 1920s and early 1930s. In 1936, he was an acceptable and uncontroversial choice for the Anglo American expedition to India's highest mountain, Nanda Devi, led by Tilman. This lightweight expedition to a remote and difficult peak achieved a remarkable success in putting Tilman and Noel Odell on its summit, which was the highest then climbed. Lloyd acquitted himself skilfully and unselfishly, load-carrying to stock the final camp at 23,500 feet. He earned himself his coexpeditioners' affection and his leader's plaudits as "first-rate on rock and ice". When Tilman came to assemble a team for his Chomolungma (Mount Everest) attempt in 1938, Lloyd was an automatic choice. This venture was plagued by deep snow, desperate cold, and illness among the Sherpas. Despite a team that might well have reached the summit in a good weather year, it ground to a halt below the first step on the North Ridge, at camp six, pitched at 27,200 feet. Tilman's description of his and Lloyd's antics here gives the flavour of their friendship: "A richly concentrated food like pemmican (a singularly unpleasant and unpalatable paste of dried meat and fat) requires a great effort of will to keep it down - absolute quiescence in a prone position and a little sugar are useful aids. Without wishing to boast, I think the feat of eating a large mugful of permican soup at 27,200 feet performed by Lloyd and myself, is unparalleled in the annals of Himalayan climbing and an example of what can be done by dogged greed. For greed consists in eating when you have no desire to eat, which is exactly the case anywhere above camp four." Lloyd turned his engineering expertise to conducting comparative tests on the two types of oxygen equipment then available for high-altitude climbing, and favoured the open-circuit breathing system, which used ordinary air as well as cylinder oxygen. In recommending this to John Hunt's 1953 expedition, and effecting design changes to the equipment, he contributed significantly to the ascent of the mountain. In 1938, the use of oxygen was controversial, but Lloyd gave his opinion with habitual tact and elegance, and in winning the argument, effectively won the summit for Hunt's climbers 15 years later. He asserted: "I have a lot of sympathy with the sentimental objection to its use, and would rather see the mountain climbed without it than with; but, on the other hand, I would rather see the mountain climbed with it than not climbed at all." Lloyd went to the Himalayas with Tilman for a third time in 1949, surveying in the Langtang region of Nepal, their sirdar for the trip the Sherpa Tenzing Norgay. By this time, Lloyd's propensity as a bon viveur had moderated his physique, but since the local political situation allowed little climbing, Lloyd's lack of condition did not much matter and his company was congenial as ever. After Cambridge, Lloyd worked in the 1930s on the furnace design for the Gas Light and Coke Company in London. In 1939, debarred from military service by his reserved occupation, he joined the Royal Aircraft Establishment, initially working on defences against low-flying aircraft. In 1941, at Farnborough, he was in Hayne Constant's group working on gas turbine engine development. In 1943, they produced the prototype of the modern jet engine before merging, in 1944, with Sir Frank Whittle's Power Jets. By 1946, the nationalised company was the National Gas Turbine Establishment. Lloyd became head of its combustion department and by 1950 was its deputy director, under Constant. Just over a decade later came the Ministry of Aviation's R&D director-generalship. He then headed Britain's defence research and supply staff in Australia. Engaging and judicious, beyond his apparent sternness was a kindliness and inclusivity. He was held in high esteem by his contemporaries, and was the recipient of affection and gratitude from his juniors. He was appointed CBE in 1957, and while president of the Alpine Club (1977-1980) he delivered a moving oration at the memorial service to Tilman, who was lost at sea in the south Atlantic in his 80th year. Lloyd recently took delivery of a turbo-charged Volvo - a departure from his habitual Jaguars. The salesman greeted him with: "Well, this is the first time ... " and faltered. Lloyd continued for him: "I know what you were going to say - that this is the first time you've sold one of these to someone over 90." It was a perfect Lloyd moment. His first marriage in 1932 was dissolved in 1947. In 1951 he married Joyce. After his retirement they both escaped to Australia. She survives him, as do his son and daughter from his first marriage. Michael Lloyd on 16th July Raymond Lloyd on 25th July Veronica (Frixie) Goatly on 8th August. Her daughter Marabel has sent me this email to pass on to the Budget Group: The following text was due to appear in the Times and Telegraph this week: GOATLY Veronica Margaret (Frixie), nee Lloyd, died peacefully on 8th August 2014, aged 90. Wife of the late John Goatly OBE of Fernhurst, West Sussex, mother of Jonathan, the late Robert, Peter and Marabel, much loved grandmother and great-grandmother. Funeral will be held at St. Margaret's Church, Fernhurst GU27 3HZ on 21st August at 11.30 AM. Family flowers only please. Private cremation later. Contact G.M.Luff and Partners, 01428643524. Frixie had just celebrated her 90th birthday, quite successfully and happily, with a small group of family and friends. She was quite upbeat, and Peter had taken her on an outing to Uppark which she also enjoyed. Her death came rather quicker than people were expecting, but it was probably better that way. Obviously we would love to see you at the funeral, together with as many cousins who can manage it. There will be food and drink afterwards, at the Duke of Cumberland Arms, a couple of miles down the road..

The death of Richard Ecroyd Clark is a distinct loss to the Society of Friends, of which he was throughout life a consistent member, and to the town of Doncaster, where for half a century he took a prominent part in local and municipal affairs. He was born in 1828 at Oakham, in Rutland-shire, but when he was only three years old his father, William Clark, removed with his family to Doncaster, so that practically his whole life was associated with that town. He was educated, first at a school in Doncaster, then for some years at Bootham, completing his scholastic life at a private school at Hitchin, then conducted by the late Isaac Brown. After a period of continental travel he entered his father's office, later joining his uncles in their grocery business, and, finally setting up as a stockbroker, in which profession he succeeded in building up a large and valuable connexion. He had striking mathematical abilities, and his clear insight and cool, calculating business instincts made him eminently suited for the profession of his adoption. He married his cousin, Hannah, daughter of the late Joseph Clark, and this marriage was a supremely happy one. He felt her death, some years ago, most deeply, but through this and other of life's trials, he ever showed resignation and absolute willingness to submit himself unreservedly to the will of God. He filled various offices of influence in the Society of Friends, being for many years a valued Elder, and for some time Assistant Clerk and then Clerk to Yorkshire Quarterly Meeting. He also served for long as a Director of the Friends' Provident Institution. Always greatly interested in Education, he was a member of the Committees of Bootham and The Mount Schools. In Meetings for Worship and Discipline he was an earnest and impressive speaker, and a man of exceptionally sound judgment. His gift in vocal Ministry was much appreciated, but he would never give his consent to having it "acknowledged." His addresses were simple, earnest and impressive, and his acceptance of the Bible as an inspired revelation of the Divine Will, together with his belief in the Deity of the Lord Jesus Christ, His atoning sacrifice and High Priesthood, were dwelt upon with great power. For more than thirty years R. E. Clark conducted a Bible Class for women, maintaining this service for eleven years after his wife's decease. He attended this class to within a fortnight of his death, and the bond of attachment between him and the members was deep, warm and enthusiastic. In conjunction with his brother-in-law, Henry Ecroyd Clark, he commenced a men's Adult School, about the year 1860; this is still in existence, and has proved a great blessing to the town and neighbourhood. After his death, one of the local papers spoke of him as the "Grand Old Man" of Doncaster, and went on to say that he was " perhaps the most brilliant and able man who ever placed his remarkable abilities at the service of his fellow townsmen. He spent nearly half a life-time in public work. He filled the office of Chief Magistrate on two occasions, the first in 1860, and again in 1880, retiring in 1888, to the regret of the whole borough. He occupied for many years a seat on the Aldermanic bench, and was chairman of the Finance Committee. He had been for many years chairman of the Licensing Bench, and only a year ago attended the Court as usual. He took a great interest in the work of the Charity Trustees, over which he presided, and was also Chairman of the Governors of the Grammar School." A mere list of his services to what was practically his native town would occupy more space than we have at command, but we may specially allude to his successful efforts to obtain a good water supply for Doncaster, to the way in which he placed his great financial abilities at the service of his fellow townsmen, and to his consistent support of so many local charities. Archaeology was one of Richard Ecroyd Clark's favourite pursuits; old books, ancient documents, faded church registers, he revelled in. When he was a young man he would tramp many miles to examine the registers of country churches. During all the earlier years of his life he was a staunch Liberal in politics, but at the great Home Rule split he became a Unionist, and his services to that party, especially his powerful platform advocacy, were greatly valued. As might be expected, his funeral was very largely attended, and representatives were present from the numerous local bodies with which he had been so long associated, whilst, in spite of the very inclement weather, the members of his women's Bible Class were there in large numbers. The service at the grave-side was necessarily brief, for a heavy snowstorm was raging, and it was a very cold day, but Frederick Andrews, Headmaster of Ackworth School, in a short address, alluded to the combination of sweetness and strength in R. E. Clark's character. Some Christians, he said, did not bring the thought of God wholly into their lives, but they knew that their friend, both in the counting-house and in his public work, in the home and in the quiet of that Meeting House, had the thought of God ever before him. Amongst the addresses afterwards given in the Meeting House was one by Archdeacon Sandford, who, speaking from the body of the meeting, said he had been attracted by R.E.C.'s personality when he first came to Doncaster, and the more he saw of him the more he revered and loved him. He did not think it was possible for anyone to be in his presence for a moment without feeling the strong power of his Christian influence. He was endowed by God with great mental gifts, and was a man of infinite value to the common life of the town, and one who led in many of its most worthy enterprises. Yet they could not sorrow as men without hope, for they knew he had entered into Life Eternal, and that God would give him opportunities of higher usefulness in the great life upon which he had entered. The inspiration of R.E.C.'s life would live in that place for many a long day, and they all had occasion to thank God for the wonderful gifts which fructified in the life and conversation of their dear departed friend.

14-Gulielma Payne^{20,101} was born on 6 Oct 1866 in Newhill Hall, Wath upon Dearne, Rotherham, Yorkshire and died in 1956 in Birkenhead, Cheshire at age 90.

Noted events in her life were:

• She was educated at The Mount School in Aug 1881-Jun 1883 in York, Yorkshire.

Gulielma married Woodville Grav,^{2,20,101,160} son of William Grav^{2,20,25,87} and Margaret Sarah Pace,^{2,87} in 1891. Woodville was born in 1866 in Glasgow, Lanark, Scotland and died on 28 Feb 1938 in Birkenhead, Cheshire at age 72. They had four children: Giulielma, Henry Woodville, Marjory, and Anthony.

General Notes: Born in 1866, he was the son of William Gray, the proprietor of Gray Dunn & Co, a well-known Glasgow biscuit manufacturer. Their factory at Kinning Park is still a prominent city landmark next to the M8 motorway, although derelict. The Grays were Quakers, and young Woodville was sent to the Bootham School in York, a Quaker establishment, from 1879-82. There he learned to play association football, so when he returned to Glasgow Academy for the final year of his education, 1882-83, he joined Pollokshields Athletic rather than play rugby for the school. He was fast and talented so, despite being just 16 and still at school, in April 1883 he was selected by the Scottish FA for the Glasgow select against Edinburgh. After leaving the Academy that summer, the honours continued and he played again for Glasgow v London (in London) in December 1883, then was named in the Scotland team to face Ireland in Belfast on 26 January 1884. He would have been 17 years and 230 days but 'was compelled to decline the honour' (Scottish Athletic Journal). Gray was named as a reserve for two more internationals (v Wales 1884 and Ireland 1885) before finally winning his solitary cap against England in March 1886, three months before his 20th birthday. Meanwhile, his club career was also interesting. Although he remained with Pollokshields Athletic until the end of the 1880s, he guested for Queen's Park from time to time, winning the Glasgow Merchants' Charity Cup in 1883 (age 16) and 1885. Even more notably, he was brought into the Queen's Park side for the 1885 FA Cup Final against Blackburn Rovers, as a replacement for the injured William Harrower - a perfectly acceptable substitution under the rules of the time. Woodville Gray married Gulielma Payne in 1891, had two sons and two daughters, and moved to Birkenhead where he worked as a printer. He died there in 1938. His elder son, Henry Woodville Gray, signed for Everton in 1919 as an amateur but never made the first team and had to give up the game a couple of years later after a bad injury. Andy Mitchell WOODVILLE GRAY

Woodville Gray was born in 1866; he was a boy at Wigton, Bootham and Oliver's Mount, and, subsequently, he was in business in Glasgow and Liverpool. He died on February 28th, 1938. If you talk to any Glasgow man who was at all interested in football in the 'eighties, and if you mention Woodie Gray, his face lights up and he will tell you of the days when the "wee Quaker de'il " delighted the supporters of that great amateur club-Queen's Park. He was a brilliant left-wing player, and while still a schoolboy he played for Scotland against Ireland. He also played for Glasgow against Sheffield, for Queen's Park in the F.A. Cup Final, and for Scotland against England in 1885. He was undoubtedly Bootham's greatest footballer, as well as a very good cricketer. To those who were at Bootham from 1879 to 1882, his name will recall an endless series of thrilling escapades. Everyone smiles happily at the mention of his name, for he was a person of extraordinary personality. He was a man of simple tastes and healthy enthusiasms, intensely fond of all kinds of games, a great walker, a very keen naturalist and water-colour artist. He was happiest either at his delightful home in Rock Ferry, with its pleasant little garden, or in his beloved Argyll. He was faithful to old ways, and disliked modern speed and modern refinements wholeheartedly. When the Mersey Tunnel was built, the men on the ferry boats knew at least one Liverpool business man who would be faithful to them, and it was the same on the Clyde. New turbine steamers might make their appearance, but Woodville Gray remained loyal to the old paddle steamers which had served him well enough for fifty years. Above all, he had a wonderful gift of friendship. Modest, kindly, warm-hearted, and invariably cheery, he will be sadly missed by a host of very different kinds of people-Mersey ferrymen, business men in Glasgow and Liverpool, veteran footballers, yachtsmen on the Clyde, and villagers in Argyll, and not least by those who knew him at Bootham. Ecroyd, William Farrer (1827–1915), worsted manufacturer and politician, was born on 14 July 1827, at Lomeshaye, near Burnley, Lancashire, the first of the four children of William Ecroyd (1796–1876), worsted spinner, and his second wife, Margaret (1797–1835), the eldest daughter of William Farrer, a farmer at Wythmoor, Kendal, and his wife, Mary. Yeomen in origin (their ancestry was traced back to the fourteenth century by Ecroyd's second son, the historian William Farrer), the Ecroyds became members of the Society of Friends in the 1680s. They added further small estates to their existing property in the early eighteenth century, and in 1747 set up the worsted spinning and weaving firm at Edgend, moving in 1780 to Lomeshaye, where the family was to continue to run the firm until 1933.

Educated at Lower Bank Academy, Blackburn, Ecroyd went on in 1837 to the Quaker Ackworth School before joining the family firm in 1841. Having learned the trade under his father, a good-humoured, fat, and communicative mill owner, Ecroyd was made a partner in 1849. This was a period of rapid growth and prosperity for the firm, as it extended its manufacturing capacity to over 3000 looms, and its workforce to about 1250. By the 1860s, it was one of the few remaining houses producing soft woollen fabrics in 150 varieties for the home and foreign trade. Imbued with a strong religious sense of the stewardship of wealth, Ecroyd was involved in a wide range of activities designed to improve the condition of the workpeople and to mollify the embittered industrial relations which had marked north-east Lancashire in the early 1850s. He ensured that the Lomeshaye mills were equipped with healthy, well ventilated rooms and provided dining-rooms, a sick club, a mill library, and half-time schools. He was widely esteemed not only for his business sense but his upright conduct, fair dealing with the workforce, and unselfish actions. However, Ecroyd's broadening theological vision, derived from Kingsley, Maurice, and Arnold, increasingly separated him from his father and from the narrow tenets of the Quakers, which he now believed inhibited the proper Christian endeavours of employers. In 1851 Ecroyd had married, within the Society of Friends, Mary (d. 1867), daughter of Thomas Backhouse of York, a railway and bank director with strong botanical interests; they had three sons and six daughters. Following his second marriage in 1869 to the Baptist Anna Maria (1831–1913), daughter of another local employer George Foster (once a partner of Cobden and a strong free trader), Ecroyd and his wife continued to attend Quaker meetings but he was to renounce formally his membership of the Society of Friends following his father's death.

Having abandoned his family's Quakerism, Ecroyd also abandoned its Liberalism, standing unsuccessfully for parliament in 1874 as Conservative candidate for Carlisle, upholding in politics the Church of England principles which he had now embraced. He also spoke widely on behalf of denominational education and served on the executive of the National Educational Union from 1875 to 1879. His political views, however, were to move in less conventional directions by the later 1870s, when the worsted industry began to suffer more than most from the impact of foreign, especially French, competition. Ecroyd, a member of the Anti-Corn Law League as a youth and a keen reader of political economy, now became one of the more thoughtful critics of free trade and the most articulate exponent of the alternative creed of 'fair trade'. In 1879 he composed its leading tract, The Policy of Self-Help, arguing that Britain's policy of free trade would only be reciprocated by other nations if Britain herself imposed import duties both on foreign wheat and manufactured imports. At the same time, free imports from the colonies would strengthen the empire (on the federal model of the United States) and help prevent Britain's decline to the rank of third-rate power. Ecroyd stood unsuccessfully on this platform (Ecroydism' as his opponent Lord Hartington called it) in North-East Lancashire in 1880 but won a dramatic by-election victory at Preston in 1881. 'Fair trade' was now at its peak and, with several spokesmen in the House of Commons, was able to bring considerable pressure to bear during the unsuccessful renegotiation of the Anglo-French commercial (Cobden) treaty of 1880–82. Ecroyd did not defend Preston in 1885 (on grounds of ill health) but did unsuccessfully oppose Hartington in the Rossendale division of Lancashire. He was not to stand again but in 1885 he was appointed by Lord Salisbury to the royal commission on the depression in trade and industry, which provided the most effective outlet for the 'fair trade' analysis of th

After 1886 Ecroyd moved back from the national scene to the family firm, and increasingly to the Herefordshire estate at Credenhill which he had acquired in 1880. There he devoted himself to agriculture but also to replicating in the countryside the paternalism he had first practised in the town, erecting model dwellings and new schools, taking over the patronage of and restoring the local church, rebuilding the parsonage, and aiding the Revd Charles Henry Bulmer in his campaign against the adulteration of cider. Yet Ecroyd still spent much time in Lancashire, and at his estate at Whitbarrow in Westmorland. Having overseen the reconstruction of the family firm on limited liability lines in 1896, he remained nominally its chairman until his death, but increasingly withdrew from its affairs. By the standards of its time, it was now only a modestly sized enterprise and Ecroyd's own fortune probably owed more to prudent speculation in overseas railways than to his industrial shareholdings. In 1896 he commemorated over fifty years' service with a retirement address on the duties of employers (A Few Words to the Workers at Lomeshaye Mills, 1896), with the factory evoked more as a site of moral training than of profit-making. His own practice of such duties had been exemplary, not only within his factory but in his providing the adjoining town of Nelson with schools, a new Anglican church (St Mary's) in 1884, and generous support of Burnley Hospital. He also acted as JP in both Lancashire and Herefordshire and was deputy lieutenant of Herefordshire.

An invalid in later years, Ecroyd died at Credenhill on 9 November 1915, and was buried there on 11 November. Between the 1850s and 1880s he had been a frequent traveller in Europe, and in England, a keen admirer of natural beauty, much influenced by Wordsworth. Ecroyd's own interest in history (he believed his name was derived from the Mercian King Croyda, also providing the derivation of Credenhill, which itself abutted Offa's Dyke) was taken up by his sons, while his eldest son Thomas Backhouse Ecroyd (1857–1945) took over the declining firm. Part of the Credenhill estate later became home to the Special Air Service.

16-Edward Peter Ecroyd was born on 24 Nov 1932 and died on 27 Sep 2002 in Low House, Armathwaite Estate, High Hesket, Cumbria at age 69.

General Notes: COUNTRYMAN and landowner Edward Peter Ecroyd, who helped improve conditions for all River Eden fishermen has died, aged 70. Mr. Ecroyd, of Low House, Armathwaite, who was known all his life as Peter, was born on 24th November, 1932, the son of W. E. B (Toby) Ecroyd and Iris Bloxsome Ecroyd. He went to prep school near Bagshot and then on to Harrow. He did his national service with the Royal Artillery, after which he studied estate management at the Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester, before returning to Cumbria to take over the running of the family estate at Armathwaite which he had inherited on the premature death of his father in 1951.

THREE CHILDREN

In 1957, he married Felicity Graham Roberts and they had three children. His whole life was centred on the countryside, including agricultural, forestry and sporting matters, and he strove constantly to improve the agricultural and residential properties on the 1,800-acre Low House Estate. Forestry was another of his great loves and about 400 acres of trees were planted on the estate.

Because of his deep interest in fishery matters, and the River Eden in particular, he sat on various committees dealing with fisheries at local, regional and national levels for many years from the early 1970s, including serving as chairman of the River Eden and District Fisheries Association and subsequently becoming president. He also became vice-chairman of the Salmon and Trout Association, having sat on the council and numerous committees for a number of years. Mr. Ecroyd was founder and initial chairman of the Eden Owners' Association whose strenuous efforts led to the buyout of the boating rights on the bottom beats of the river and some netting rights on the Solway, thus significantly reducing the netting of salmon and sea trout and helping enormously to improve conditions for all River Eden fishermen. He was also a lifelong member of the Country Landowners Association (CLA) now the Country Land and Business Association. He served as both chairman and president of the Cumberland branch and sat on the CLA council.

As well as being a true countryman, he was very religious, being patron of the livings of Armathwaite and Ainstable and shared patron of Hesket-in-the-Forest. He was also Eden area chairman of the Carlisle Cathedral Appeal in the early 1980s and continued to support the cathedral in subsequent fund-raising. HIGH SHERIFF

He was appointed High Sheriff of Cumbria in 1984 and served for many years as a General Commissioner for Income Tax. Until recently, his main recreations were fishing and shooting, at which he excelled. He drew immense pleasure and satisfaction in organising his shooting syndicate, which he had run for the past 43 years. Mr. Ecroyd, who died suddenly at home, is survived by his wife Felicity, a former Carlisle city councillor, son Charles and daughters Emma and Susanna, and five grandchildren.

The funeral takes place at the Church of Christ and St. Mary, Armathwaite, on Monday at 11-30am.

14-Alizon Farrer Ecrovd^{5,107} was born on 4 Mar 1859, died in 1936 at age 77, and was buried in Carleton in Craven, Yorkshire.

Alizon married William Cecil Slingsby,^{5,107} son of William Slingsby⁵ and Mary Ann Dewhurst,⁵ on 21 Jun 1882 in York, Yorkshire. William was born on 25 May 1849 in Bell Busk, Gargrave, Yorkshire, died on 23 Aug 1929 in St George's, Hurstpierpoint, Sussex at age 80, and was buried in Carleton in Craven, Yorkshire. They had five children: Katharine, William Ecroyd, Alizon Mary, Henry Laurence, and Eleanor.

General Notes: Slingsby, William Cecil (1849–1929), mountaineer, was born on 25 May 1849 in Bell Busk, near Gargrave, Yorkshire, the eldest in the family of three sons and two daughters of William Slingsby, mill owner of Carleton in Craven, and his wife, Mary Ann, daughter of Isaac Dewhurst of Skipton. He was educated at Cheltenham College. On leaving school in 1866 he entered his father's cotton mill at Carleton in Craven, where he later became a partner; he retired in 1906. He married on 21 June 1882 Alizon (b. 1859), daughter of William Farrer Ecroyd, a worsted manufacturer and Conservative MP for Preston, 1881–5. They had two sons and three daughters, of whom the youngest daughter, Eleanor, married the mountaineer Geoffrey Winthrop Young.

Slingsby first visited Norway in 1872 and soon discovered that he was in a country whose temperament and customs were akin to his own. In their turn the Norwegians accepted him as one of themselves. Crossing the Jotunheim in 1872 he had seen Störe Skagastölstind, the Matterhorn of the northern Alps, and resolved to make its first ascent. On 21 July 1876, accompanied by his friends Emmanuel Mohn and Knut Lykken, he attacked the mountain up the steep glacier later known as the Slingsbybrae, reaching the col under the final rock pillar; there the Norwegians refused to go on, considering the peak inaccessible. Slingsby climbed on and reached the summit alone. He made over fifty first ascents of peaks between the Jotunheim and the North Cape. In the early twentieth century he was sometimes known as the 'father of Norwegian mountaineering'. He promoted skiing as a sport and was among the first to introduce Norwegian skis to the Alps.

Slingsby's book Norway, the Northern Playground (1903) gives an account of his adventures and explorations, and also information about the folklore and way of life of the Norwegians. The composer Edvard Grieg was numbered among his many friends. In 1878 he first visited the Alps, where he took part in several first ascents, chiefly with A. F. Mummery. In 1885 he started climbing in the Lake District, where his name is perpetuated in Slingsby's pinnacle and Slingsby's chimney on Scafell. Slingsby died at his home, St Georges, Hurstpierpoint, Sussex, on 23 August 1929 and was buried at St Mary's Church, Carleton in Craven. His wife survived him.

LIEUTENANT and ADJUTANT HENRY LAURENCE SLINGSBY, M.C., K.O.York L.I., attached Duke of Cornwall's L.I., who died of wounds on August 11, aged 24, was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Cecil Slingsby of Beetham House, Milnthorpe, Westmorland. He was educated at Eastman's, Southsea, and Charterhouse, and received a commission in the Special Reserve in February 1913. He went to the front early in August, 1914, and was all through the first six months of the fighting, receiving his Regular commission in October, 1914, and being mentioned in one of Lord French's early dispatches. He was badly wounded in February 1915, and was promoted lieutenant about the same time. His Captain (soon after killed) wrote:- "He was my right hand in the company..... I cannot speak too highly of your boy's work.... His experience in the war was invaluable to us all, and I had to rely on him to a great extent. Besides doing his duty steadily and regularly at all times, he was always active and resourceful in devising means of worrying the enemy, and kept the men up to the mark by his bearing and example under fire and gained their admiration and respect.... On many occassions he has displayed great gallantry.... He took good care of the men and was very popular with them." In May 1916, Lieutenant Slingsby was appointed adjutant to a Service battalion of the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry. He was lately awarded the Military Cross.

Noted events in his life were:

- He was awarded with MC.
- He worked as an Officer of the 2nd Battalion King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry.

15-Eleanor Slingsby¹⁶⁸ was born in 1893 and died in Jan 1994 at age 101.

Eleanor married Geoffrey Winthrop Young,^{168,169} son of Sir George Young 3rd Bt. and Alice Eacy Kennedy, on 25 Apr 1918 in St. George's, Hanover Square, Westminster, London. Geoffrey was born on 25 Oct 1876 in London and died on 6 Sep 1958 in 48 Holland Park, Kensington, London at age 81. They had two children: Jocelin Slingsby and Marcia Eacy Winthrop.

Noted events in his life were:

- He worked as a Mountaineer, Climber & Poet.
- He worked as a Served on the committee of the Friends' Ambulance Unit in 1914-1919.
- He worked as a President of The Alpine Club.
- He worked as a Helped establish the British Mountaineering Council.

16-Jocelin Slingsby Winthrop-Young was born on 25 Oct 1919 in Heversham, Cumbria and died on 8 Feb 2012 in Heiligenberg, Germany at age 92.

General Notes: JOCELIN Slingsby Winthrop-Young sailed with HRH the Duke of Edinburgh at the outset of the Gordonstoun Coast Guards Service; was a keen musician; a respected educationalist; a naval officer who saw action on D-Day, later serving in the Far East; a one-time news department officer in the Foreign Office; a disciple of Kurt Hahn and a chess player with an interest in travel, politics and democracy.

The son of Geoffrey Winthrop-Young, the highly-respected mountaineer and educationalist (and a foremost HM inspector of schools and one-time Alpine Club president), Jocelin was, above all, a man devoted to his friends and family with a lifelong interest in history and contemporary politics.

By birth, Geoffrey and Jocelin were linked into an extraordinary network of families and friends, including the Trevelyans, Arnolds, Arnold-Forsters and Huxleys. While HRH the Duke of Edinburgh was a contemporary, his rather wider Gordonstoun contacts included members of the Byatt, Campbell, Packard and Crole families, as also Peter Carpenter, founder of the Kurt Hahn Trust and a close friend of my late parents, and Prince Max von Baden.

Geoffrey Winthrop-Young is credited with close involvement in the appointments of governors in the early years of Gordonstoun. Educated at Salem and later private tutor to Crown Prince Constantine, Jocelin was, however, no elitist but rather an educationalist with a concern to ensure the offering of scholarships by schools, a life-long promoter to "all nature and condition of men" of the Gordonstoun ethic, the philosophy of Hahn and the Plus est en vous (the Gordonstoun motto).

At one stage, given just five minutes by the determined and persuasive Hahn to decide whether he wanted to go to Greece to open a "Hahnian" school there, Jocelin became private tutor to Constantine and then, in 1949, co-founder and head of Anavryta School near Athens, set up following the ideals and guidelines of Salem and Gordonstoun. He founded and set up the Kurt Hahn Archives in Salem in 1965. In 1966, he founded that which was to be the most lasting of legacies, the Round Square, privileged to have HM the King Constantine as president and HRH the Duke of York as patron, and from which educationalists across the world have learned, continue to learn, and must equally continue to learn, much.

He was a man who believed in the importance of discussion as much as did Hahn in persuasion.

Round Square is a worldwide association of schools which share a commitment beyond academic excellence to personal development and responsibility. Jocelin had one key, profound and significant belief, over and above the aims and ideals of Hahn. While Hahn believed students of different nations co-operating in acts of service would help remove prejudice, Jocelin believed schools also needed to encourage the understanding of students' basic differences in order to gain enrichment from their varied cultures and mentality.

Bishop's College found the correct formula many years later in a conference it named "Celebrating differences".

Jocelin retired in 1985 and continued to be sought after for interviews about education and Hahn. Also sought were his views on United World Colleges, the Duke of Edinburgh's Award and Outward Bound, given his interest in the courses run by each.

And so one must revert to a legacy so cherished by many young and middle-aged pupils of both recent and more distant decades: giving children the chance to discover themselves; allowing children to experience both success and defeat; providing periods of silence; training the imagination, the ability to anticipate and plan; taking sports and games seriously, but only as a part of the whole; and freeing the children of rich and influential parents from the paralysing influence of privilege. Hahn's obituary in The Times stated: "No one else in our day has created more original ideas and at the same time possessed the gift of getting them into practice." Getting them into practice – and on a scale Hahn might never have imagined – was achieved by Jocelin with his Round Square, United World Colleges, Outward Bound and Duke of Edinburgh's Award colleagues.

Such encouragement of pro-social behaviour chimes strongly with the work of the Royal Society of Arts and Goodison Group in Scotland with which I am involved in significant and peripheral measure respectively.

Jocelin's distinctive encouragement of, and engagement with, young people is something many in our troubled world should emulate, and soon. It is, surely, the urgent and lasting duty of each and every one of us to cherish and nurture future generations – be they among the less advantaged or the young emerging future leaders of all creeds and nationalities.

Should that famous Gordonstoun Plus est en vous? be extended to those of us not educated at Gordonstoun so that we may practice Plus est en nous?

Jocelin is survived by his three children: Mark, Sophie and Geoffrey. He and his first wife, Countess Ghislaine de la Gardie were divorced in 1974. She died in 1987. His second wife, Countess Sibylle von der Schulenburg, died in 1998.

Jocelin married Countess Ghislaine de la Gardie, daughter of Count Gustaf de la Gardie, on 11 Mar 1951. The marriage ended in divorce in 1974. Ghislaine was born about 1927 and died in 1987 about age 60. They had three children: Mark Gustav, Sophie, and Geoffrey Hubert.

14-William Farrer^{5,107} was born on 28 Feb 1861 in Little Marsden, Burnley, Lancashire and died on 17 Aug 1924 in Forsjord, Mosjoën, Norway at age 63. Another name for William was William Ecroyd.

General Notes: Mr. Farrer, who was educated at Rugby, and assumed that surname in lieu of Ecroyd by royal license 1896, is Lord of the Manor of Carnforth. — Whitbarrow Lodge, Grange- over-Sands, Lancashire; Hall Garth, Over Kellet, near Carnforth, Lancashire; Westmorland County Club, Kendal.

Farrer, William (1861–1924), historian and genealogist, born at Little Marsden, near Burnley, Lancashire, on 28 February 1861, was the second son of William Farrer Ecroyd (1827– 1915), tory politician and worsted manufacturer, and his first wife Mary, née Backhouse. The son changed his surname to Farrer in 1896 in compliance with the will of a great-uncle, William Farrer, a Liverpool merchant. After leaving Rugby School Farrer entered the family business, but found it uncongenial, and, retiring in 1896, settled down to a country life, first in Yorkshire at Merton, near Skipton, then at Thornburgh House, Leyburn, later at Hall Garth, Over Kellet, Lancashire, and finally at Whitbarrow Lodge, St Pauls, Witherslack, Westmorland. In 1895 he married Ellen Jane, daughter of Henry Ward, of Rodbaston, Staffordshire; they had one daughter. In 1900 he married his second wife, Eliza, daughter of John Boyce, of Redgrave, Suffolk, and they had one son and two daughters.

Farrer's interest in his yeoman ancestry widened into a taste for local history; and the acquisition in 1895 of the collections for a new history of Lancashire made by John Parsons Earwaker induced him to take up this unfinished task. He spent large sums on the transcription and local publication of unprinted materials, unravelled the obscure problems of the Domesday survey of north-western England in papers contributed to the Transactions of the Lancashire and Cheshire Antiquarian Society, and in 1903 published the first instalment of the work History of the Parish of North Meols. It was on so large a scale that it may be counted as fortunate that Farrer was presently persuaded to take part in the more manageable scheme of the Victoria History of the Counties of England. With the appointment of a co-editor, John Brownbill, the work was pushed forward rapidly, and the Victoria History of the County of Lancaster appeared in eight volumes between 1906 and 1914.

Turning his investigations to Yorkshire, the original home of the Ecroyds, Farrer contributed a searching analysis of the Domesday survey of Yorkshire to the Victoria history of the county, and between 1914 and 1916 published privately three volumes of Early Yorkshire Charters, which was planned to be an almost complete collection of charters before the thirteenth century. Unfortunately, the war and other adverse circumstances put an end to this valuable undertaking when some 1900 charters had been printed, most of them for the first time. The arrangement by fiefs which Farrer had chosen for this work perhaps suggested the history of fiefs which he began as soon as the war was over. Started on a county basis in Feudal Cambridgeshire (1920), it was continued on a more logical and time-saving plan in his general history, Honors and Knights' Fees, in which the fees of each honour are dealt with together, irrespective of the counties in which they lay. When Farrer died in 1924 only two volumes of this ambitious work had been published (1923–4). A third appeared in 1925, and the history of the honour of Warden was printed by the Bedfordshire Historical Society (1927); but several others still remain in manuscript. Farrer had the appearance of a man of the open air rather than of the study; he loved rural quiet and sports, and disliked towns and publicity. He received the honorary degree of LittD from the University of Manchester and he was an honorary lecturer in local history in the University of Liverpool. He died, while on his annual fishing holiday, on 17 August 1924 at Forsjord, Mosjoën, Norway.

Among Farrer's more important publications, besides those mentioned above, are: Court Rolls of the Honor of Clitheroe (3 vols., 1897–1913); The Chartulary of Cockersand Abbey (3 vols., Chetham Society, 1898–1909); Final Concords of the County of Lancaster (4 parts, Record Society of Lancashire and Cheshire, 1899–1910); Court Rolls of Thomas, Earl of Lancaster in the County of Lancaster (ibid., 1901); Lancashire Pipe Rolls and Early Charters (1902); Lancashire Inquests, Extents, and Feudal Aids (3 parts, Record Society of Lancashire and Cheshire, 1903–15); An Outline Itinerary of King Henry I (English Historical Review, 34, July 1919, and reprint, Oxford); Records Relating to the Barony of Kendale (with J. F. Curwen, 2 vols., Cumberland and Westmorland Antiquarian Society, 1923-4).

KBE (1972) CBE (1962) MRCS LRCP (1933) MRCP (1935) PJG Singapore (1967) DTMH (1969) DJMK Datuk (1969) Hon MD Singapore (1969) Gordon Ransome was professor of medicine at the University of Singapore, and a pioneer of modern medicine in Singapore and the territories of Malaysia. He was born in Salop, England, the son of Maurice John Ransome, rector of Pulverbatch, and was educated at Dauntsey's School and London University. He qualified in medicine from St Bartholomew's Hospital in 1933, subsequently holding house appointments in several London hospitals and obtaining his MRCP in 1935. During this time he also attended courses at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine. After six years of postgraduate training he left England for Singapore in 1938, on his appointment to King Edward VII College of Medicine as associate professor. Together with RB Hawes, then head of the department of medicine, he established a clinical laboratory at Tay Tock Seng Hospital and there, with the help of other outstanding physicians, turned out many well trained doctors with the LMS diploma. They formed the nucleus of those men and women who cared for the sick and wounded in Singapore during the second world war and the Japanese occupation. Today, the standing of the medical graduates of the University of Singapore is second to none in Asia, and much of the credit for this must go to Gordon Ransome. An able clinician and administrator who never allowed his outlook to be blinkered by specialization, he set a high standard and fine example.

After the capitulation of Singapore to the Japanese, Gordon Ransome was the subject of some criticism because of his decision to escape to India to carry on his work. To do this, he deliberately faced great dangers and his later work in India and Burma fully justified his decision. He investigated the problems of salt and water balance, pioneered the management of unconscious patients, dealt with cholera epidemics and established specific methods of treatment for cerebral malaria. He held the rank of major in the 12th Army, was twice mentioned in despatches, and ended the war as a lieutenant colonel. He was elected a fellow in 1947.

On demobilization he returned to Singapore as acting head of the department of medicine at the General Hospital, and in 1948 he was appointed professor of medicine at King Edward VII College of Medicine. Among his many professional appointments he was honorary consultant to the Sultan of Kelantan, who bestowed the Datoship (DJMK) on him in 1969; the same year in which he was awarded an honorary doctorate of medicine by the University of Singapore. In 1967 he received the Meritorious Service Medal (PJG) in Singapore's National Day Awards. He was appointed a CBE in 1962, and a KBE in 1972. He was the first master of the Academy of Physicians and Surgeons in Singapore, which he had been instrumental in founding, and which later became the Academy of Medicine, Singapore. He was a member of the Singapore Medical Council, and ex-president of the Association of Physicians, Malaya. He contributed some 22 papers to scientific journals, both in Singapore and abroad. Although an excellent general physician and outstanding administrator, his greatest interest was in neurology. His name is perpetuated in Singapore by such foundations as the Academy of Medicine and by the biennial Gordon Arthur Ransome oration.

Gordon married twice. In 1940 his wife was Eryl Arundel and they had a daughter. In 1955 he married Daphne Mary, daughter of Colonel Lawrence George Beach RE, and they had three children: two sons and a daughter.

As a man Gordon Ransome was kind and softly spoken. He had the serenity to accept what could not be changed, the courage to change what could be changed, and the wisdom to know the difference. He was always ready to answer any cry for help from patients, staff or colleagues. He had a reputation for being absentminded, but time was of no consequence to him if someone needed him. He would sometimes wax philosophical and regarded worry as a destroyer of clear thinking. Although a prominent figure in Singapore society, his life style was simple. He enjoyed hunting, shooting and fishing, and read military and medical history. He had many devoted friends and his influence on the multiracial culture of Singapore was unique. He can be said to have served Singapore and medicine to the utmost of his ability. GW/VL

General Notes: HILDA LAPAGE 1935 - 1962

Those of us who knew Hilda Lapage were more than sad at her passing but we have many happy memories of her. She was born at Kirkoswald in Cumberland where her father was a doctor. At his death she moved to Manchester and it was there she met her husband, Dr. C. P. Lapage. She was particularly interested in the Lake District and in North Wales and she accompanied her husband on many of his week-ends in the hills. Apart from her family, to whom she was devoted, her other interests were reading and the theatre. During the last war she played an active part in the W.V.S. and St. Dunstan's organisation. Survived by two sons and one daughter Hilda will always be affectionately remembered for her graciousness and quiet charm.

Hilda married Dr. Charles Paget Lapage,^{154,174} son of Dr. Charles Clement Lapage, in 1915. Charles was born in 1879 in Nantwich, Cheshire and died on 23 Sep 1947 in Didsbury, Manchester at age 68. They had four children: Ronald, Charles Ransome, Ruth, and Stephen.

MD Manch FRCP (1922)

Charles Lapage was born at Nantwich, the eldest son of Charles Clement Lapage, M.D. He went to Epsom College as a boy and received his medical education at Owens College, Manchester, graduating as M.B, Ch.B, in 1902 and winning the Agnew prize and Ashby scholarship in diseases of children. His resident appointments were at the Manchester Royal Infirmary, the Children's Hospital, Pendlebury, and the St. Mary's Hospitals. In 1908 he was elected physician to the Children's Hospital, and five years later physician to children at the St. Mary's Hospitals. At Manchester University he was appointed lecturer on school hygiene in 1909, lecturer on diseases of children in 1913, and reader in charge of his department in 1931; he retained this last office till 1947. During the War of 1914-1918 he served with the 2nd Western General Hospital and, in 1918, with the 57th General Hospital in France, reaching the rank of major. After the War, he established himself as one of Manchester's foremost paediatricians. He was, however, less successful as a teacher and lecturer than as a clinician and writer, holding himself, it seemed, a little aloof from his students. His book, Feeblemindedness in Children of School Age, first appeared in 1911 and took its place as a standard work. As a student, Lapage was a prominent runner and rugby footballer. He listed the recreations of his middle life as walking in the mountains, golf, swimming and tennis. Indeed, he cultivated his taste for strenuous exercise to the end of his life and was proud of his achievement in climbing every peak of over 2,500 feet in England and Wales at the age of 65. He married in 1915 Hilda, daughter of Dr. Alexander Macdonald of Kirkoswald, and had three sons and a daughter. He died in his home at Didsbury.

Early in his career, Charles Paget Lapage (1879-1947) [Epsom College 1894-1896] became interested in the diseases of children. He was the son of Dr C. C. Lapage, a practitioner of Nantwich, Cheshire, and father of Ronald Paget Lapage [Epsom College 1930- 1933], Charles Ransome Lapage [Epsom College 1931-1935], and Dr Stephen Paget Lapage [Epsom College 1936-1941]. He received his medical training at Owen's College, now the University of Manchester, and graduated M.B., Ch.B. in 1902, winning the John Henry Agnew Prize and the Henry Ashby Memorial Scholarship for the study of paediatrics. He was then appointed resident medical officer at the Royal Manchester Children's Hospital, and then to the special children's wards at St Marys Hospital, Manchester. Lapage's teaching experience began when he was medical registrar at the Manchester Royal Infirmary and medical tutor to the Hulme Hall of residence. In 1905 he was awarded the M.D. with commendation, having put forward a thesis on mentally retarded children, at that time grouped under the title 'feeble-minded.' Following the death of Dr Henry Ashby, Senior Physician at Manchester Children's Hospital, Charles Lapage was appointed honorary physician at that hospital in 1908, and subsequently to St Mary's Hospital, Manchester, where he took charge of the children's wards. His interest in mental incapacity in children continued with the publication of his book Feeblemindedness in Children of School Age in 1911, with a second edition in 1920. This book was at the time the standard work on this emotive subject. He inaugurated and ran a clinic at the Royal Manchester Children's Hospital for the diagnosis and treatment of children with mental and speech defects by non-medical teachers with special qualifications, and this was one of the first clinics of its kind in this country. Before the First World War, Charles Lapage was a Captain in the University Territorial Training Corps and he was soon appointed as its commanding officer. During the war he served with the 2nd Western General Hospital and, in 1918, went abroad as a major in the R.A.M.C. with the 57th General Hospital to France, where he was mentioned in dispatches. After the War he established himself as one of Manchester's foremost paediatricians. At the University of Manchester he was appointed Lecturer on Diseases of Children in 1909, and Reader in Diseases of Children from 1931-1947. He was President of the Manchester Medical Society and of the Section of Diseases of Children of the Royal Society of Medicine. He was one of the original members of the British Paediatric Association and it was said that he had never missed a meeting. His membership culminated in his election as its President in 1929 and, in 1932, he was appointed Vice-President of the Section of Diseases of Children at the annual meeting of the British Medical Association. As a student, Charles Lapage was a prominent runner and rugby footballer. He listed the recreations of his middle life as walking in the mountains, golf, swi

General Notes: Poem by Robert Laurence Binyon (1869-1943), published in The Times newspaper on 21st September 1914. and whose words (in part), are repeated at the Remembrance Day services.

For The Fallen

With proud thanksgiving, a mother for her children, England mourns for her dead across the sea. Flesh of her flesh they were, spirit of her spirit, Fallen in the cause of the free.

Solemn the drums thrill: Death august and royal Sings sorrow up into immortal spheres. There is music in the midst of desolation And a glory that shines upon our tears.

They went with songs to the battle, they were young, Straight of limb, true of eye, steady and aglow. They were staunch to the end against odds uncounted, They fell with their faces to the foe.

They shall grow not old, as we that are left grow old: Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn. At the going down of the sun and in the morning We will remember them.

They mingle not with their laughing comrades again; They sit no more at familiar tables of home; They have no lot in our labour of the day-time; They sleep beyond England's foam.

But where our desires are and our hopes profound, Felt as a well-spring that is hidden from sight, To the innermost heart of their own land they are known As the stars are known to the Night;

As the stars that shall be bright when we are dust, Moving in marches upon the heavenly plain, As the stars that are starry in the time of our darkness, To the end, to the end, they remain.

General Notes: Sarah B. Satterthwaite Clark 94 15 2 1913 Allonby. A Minister. Widow of James Clark. The removal of this beloved and venerable Friend who passed away at Allonby on the 15th of March, 1913, in her 95th year, seems to sever one of the few remaining links with the past. Until within the last few months, amid much physical infirmity, she had been so bright and cheerful, so able to enter with loving interest into the thoughts and needs of those who visited her, that a little time spent in her company was always a refreshment and help. Indeed, she now and then almost apologised for her entire willingness to stay on here below, when she felt that some might marvel that she was not longing to be gathered home. She was the youngest daughter of David Carrick and Sarah Brockbank, who were married on the 28th of April, 1812, at Colthouse Meeting-house, and was born at Rockcliffe, near Carlisle, on the 4th of September, 1818. Her father, who was a banker, died quite young, leaving his widow and little children not well provided for. Her mother, with a view to supporting herself and the children, learned the business of a confectioner, which she carried on successfully for many years in Castle Street, Carlisle. One of the child's early recollections was that of seeing from her mother's window, a bull-baiting in a meadow across the river. She was sent to Wigton School, and afterwards, while she was living with her mother, they received into their house as a boarder William Wordsworth, jun. (son of the poet), who spent many years under their roof; and through this connection, the family had some pleasant and valued intercourse with the household at Kydal Mount ; where, in 1845, the sisters Jane Carrick (afterwards Castle) and Sarah Brock- bank Carrick spent a fortnight with the Wordsworths, seeing much of the beautiful surrounding country under the guidance of John Carter, the poet's confidential amanuensis. In 1848 Sarah Carrick was married to Michael Satterthwaite, M.D., who was, with William Thistlethwaite, at the head of the Tulketh Hall School in Preston. Thence they removed to Lindon Grove, Alderley, where, in 1861, Dr Satterthwaite died. Many who were pupils there have referred gratefully to the helpful influence of the genial mistress. Thus left a widow, Sarah B. Satterthwaite removed to Allonby, and for many years was in very delicate health. There she was recorded as a Minister, and paid acceptable visits to many in her own neighbourhood. In 1872, she visited Canada and Philadelphia Yearly Meetings, in company with Hannah Thistlethwaite. A few years later she paid a more extended visit to the American continent, occupying two years (1876-1878), embracing most of the Eastern and middle States of the Union. After attending the Yearly Meeting of 1879 in London, she travelled direct to Hull, en route for Norway, where she paid a religious visit along with Susan Doyle, returning to Allonby at the end of July. Immediately after the next Yearly Meeting, she re -visited America - not returning till May, 1881. The following year found her visiting Friends in Ireland, in company with Priscilla Mounsey. Yet one more visit to America lay before her. In 1897 she went as a delegate to the first Five Years' Meeting, along with Charles Brady, Joseph Bevan Braithwaite, James Clark, and other Friends.

Her service in America is still very lovingly remembered by not a few whom she visited. Her marriage in 1882 to James Clark, of Street, introduced her into a large circle of relatives, and into much service in various meetings. But, gradually, the failing strength both of her husband and herself, confined their ministry more and more to home life and surroundings. Still they were able to spend two or three months of each year at her old home at Allonby, where it was delightful to see them enjoying the wellearned rest, and the intercourse with Cumberland Friends. To that old home, after her husband's decease at Street, in January, 1906, she finally returned and there she spent the remainder of her days : entertaining a good many visitors in a quiet way. Very gradually, as strength failed, much activity became impossible, and with beautiful acquiescence in the Father's will for her, she submitted to all the limitations of the invalid life. Of her service in the ministry of the Gospel, it is not needful to say much. Those who were privileged to hear it knew well how helpful and cheering it was, and how wonderfully she was enabled from time to time to time to time to the return to New England in 1880, beside a Norwegian river she was told by the inward voice of the Lord : - " Thou art Mine for ever ; nothing shall be able to move the; go forward in the way prepared. Thou must go to America : I have work for thee there." And in January, 1880, the message came : - ' ' I is enough, My child : I have shown thee My will. I sustained thee in all that journey in America, and I will sustain thee in the next. She [Mary White] will go with thee a part of the time " ; and in answer to the inquiry, " The first part ? " " Yes, it will be the first part ; she will leave thee in Philadelphia " ; and a few days later came the assurance, " I will guide thee by My counsel. I will strengthen the fourt prever is now that for her, faith is changed to sight, and prayer to praise.

14-Dr. Boris Ord⁵ was born on 7 Jul 1897 in Clifton, Bristol, Gloucestershire and died on 30 Dec 1961 in Cambridge, Cambridgeshire at age 64. Another name for Boris was Bernhard Ord.

General Notes: Ord, Bernhard [Boris] (1897–1961), musician, was born on 9 July 1897 at Bristol, the youngest of the five children of Clement Ord, a Quaker and head of the German department at Bristol University, and his wife, Johanna, daughter of Hofprediger G. Anthes, who came of a musical German family. Bernhard was educated from 1907 to 1914 at Clifton College, of which he was a scholar and, later, a governor. He took his ARCO diploma while still at school and won a scholarship to the Royal College of Music, London, where he studied the organ under Sir Walter Parratt and also excelled at the pianoforte. He was already a devotee of opera, and his familiar name Boris, by which he became universally known, arose from his enthusiasm for Mussorgsky's Boris Godunov, introduced to London in 1913 by Thomas Beecham. After war service from 1916 to 1918, first with the Artists' Rifles and then as a pilot in the Royal Flying Corps, during which he was twice wounded, he returned to the Royal College of Music, where he took up choir training. It was as organ scholar of Corpus Christi College that Ord went to Cambridge, in 1919. The next year he founded the Cambridge University Madrigal Society, later to be known for its May week concerts in massed punts on the river. He became MusB in 1922, and the following year was elected to a fellowship at King's, his father's college, within which as a bachelor he spent the rest of his life. As a freelance musician he was much in demand. Sometimes it was as a continuo player on the piano or harpsichord, as for the staging of works by Purcell and Handel produced by Camille Prior and Cyril Rootham, the organist of St John's College; sometimes as a conductor, as for the Greek play committee's revival in 1921 of Aristophanes' The Birds with the music of Sir (Charles) Hubert Parry and of Aeschylus' Oresteia with Cecil Armstrong Gibbs's music (1924). He also conducted a remarkable performance (1928) of Stravinsky's The Soldier's Tale in which Lydia Lopokova, the wife of the economist J. M.

On the death of A. H. Mann in 1929 Ord was appointed organist of King's College and also of the university. At King's he joined forces with the dean, the Revd Eric Milner-White, in his policy of broadening the repertory of the chapel music, especially by strengthening the sixteenth-century element. In 1936 he became a university lecturer in music, and in 1938 he succeeded Rootham as conductor of the Cambridge University Musical Society. His work for the society greatly broadened his scope and also revealed the range of his musical sympathies. Continuing Rootham's tradition, he conducted a highly successful stage performance of Handel's Saul in the Guildhall, with David Franklin in the title role. The outbreak of war inevitably reduced the number of chapel services at King's. In 1941 Ord handed them over to Dr Harold Darke for the duration and rejoined the air force as a flight lieutenant; he eventually participated in the Normandy landings and the ensuing campaign. Back at Cambridge, he resumed his duties in 1946. His Cambridge University Musical Society concerts included Beethoven's ninth symphony and Stravinsky's Symphony of Psalms. On the Guildhall stage there were performances of Handel's Solomon and of The Pilgrim's Progress by Vaughan Williams, and at the Arts Theatre of Purcell's Dioclesian and King Arthur. But early in the 1950s Ord's health weakened, and eventually disseminated sclerosis was diagnosed. He retired from the Cambridge University Musical Society in 1954, but for some time continued to conduct concerts at the Festival Hall, including works for varying numbers of harpsichords. It was a great comfort to him that his former organ scholar and assistant David Willcocks returned from Worcester Cathedral to take over from him in 1957– 8. He then resigned his university lectureship also. He was created CBE in 1958. His last public appearance, in a wheelchair, was in the Senate House in June 1960, to receive the honorary doctorate of music. He died at Cambridge on 30 December 1961.

As a musician Ord had exacting professional standards. His score-reading classes were a bracing test. As a choir trainer he inspired a mixture of affection and wholesome fear. Under him the King's choir established, by broadcasting and foreign tours, its international reputation. Durham University made him an honorary MusD in 1955. His abundant geniality was shown in many less serious musical productions, in his generous hospitality, and in his quick sense of humour.

General Notes: Robert Brearley Oddie.

The ever-rolling stream has borne away in the spring of this year the originator of the Old Scholars' Association - Robert B. Oddie. He was appointed Headmaster of Sibford School in the year 1880. His position was not an easy one. There were at that time about 4 boys and about 20 girls in the School. The School premises were very constricted. Part of what is now the boys' playground in the old School building was a farmyard, and the Lecture Hall was a barn. The school desks were old and inconvenient. Music was strictly taboo. The food was wholesome, but very plain and varied little.

Doggedly, R.B.O. set to work. After much effort he had the frst class equippd with separate and (at that time) more modern desks. Later, although in the comparatively early days of his reign, that great boon, the old cricket feld, was secured for the use of the School. Football teams and cricket teams were started and maintained. No longer were the boys' games limited to roughly-organized affairs on the hard School play- ground. Slowly, and step by step, improvements were made in the School, and the School lessons. A drawng master was engaged to come from Banbury one day each week.

The method of learng was mainly "memorizing," reinforced by examinations under The College of Preceptors (E. E. Pinches, barrister-at-law, was the examiner, I remember); and South Kensington Science and Art examinations were held regularly. In my day there were only two forms or classes - the first and the second. From year to year, ably assisted by his much-loved wife, R.B.O. stuck to his work. Children were born to him, and brought up in the School during their early years, and they are now valued and respected Old Scholars.

When one left School and came back after perhaps a lapse of years, one always received a warm and genial welcome from Mr. and Mrs. Oddie. In 1904 the Old Scholars Association was founded. Much of its success is due to the sure foundations on which it was built, not the least important being the great cordiality of R.B.O. and Mrs. Oddie and the liberty granted by them to Old Scholars at the gatherings. In 1906 R.B.O. retired from the headmastership, but he still maintained a keen interest in the School and the Old Scholars' gatherings, and many Old Scholars will feel deeply the loss of his friendship and his ever-genial welcome. Another landmark has gone. As a man, the chief characteristics of R.B.O. was his hatred of "funk," and what boys kow as "sneaking." If when you were brought before him for some offence, and you saw that he was angry (he had a warm temper !), your chance to save yourself from what might be a heavy punishment was to look him in the face without any display of emotion, and to answer him surely and naturally. It was infallible ! I remembr when he left the School at "prep." in the evening, with no master to maintain order, on his return to the Upper Schoolroom - up the stone steps in his rubber shoes - he would rattle his keys or money in hs pocket, so that he might not come- upon us unawares. He had a snse of humour which often tempred his severity. You could at times see the efort when he endeavoured to suppress the amusment he felt, and his attempt to conceal the twinkle of hs eye so that he should yet appar stem. A boy who had the disgraceful habit of sleeping in Meeting was sent to bed at two o'clok by R.B.O. one" first-day." The boy slept the sleep of the just until about 6.30, when, apparently having been tem-porarily overlooked, he was awakened by R.B.O. standing, with a candle, by the bed. The effort of R.B.O. to maintain his severity was delicious. "Thee get up and get thy tea from the teachers' table, and then come at once to Meeting," he said brusquely; but his amusment was hard to conceal. He knew, too, that tea at the teachers' table, with jam and cake, etc., and no teachers there, was a gala feast in those days. Many an anecdote could be told of him - of his jokes and puns, kindness, his warm tempr, and his warm regard for his friends, his steadfastness rightly or wrongly in any cause he espoused. But what are all these virtues or faults to us? We knew him his best, and also in his declining years. We felt, and still feel for him regard and afection. We shall greatly miss him.

General Notes: ELIZABETH ODDIE

IT is with the deepest regret that we record the death of Elizabeth M. Oddie which occurred during the closing days of 1931. Scholars of recent years had little opportunity of knowing her because physical weakness prevented her from leaving home except on rare occasions; but older members of our Association, particularly those who were at the School durin2 Robert Oddie's regime, will remember with gratitude the unique place she occupied in Sibford life over a long period of years. Coming from a Durham family, she was born in 1854, at Darlington and was educated at Ackworth and The Mount. Returning to Ackworth as apprentice and later as teacher, she married in 1877 a fellow member of the staf there, Robert B. Oddie. On his appointment to the Headmaster-ship of Sibford in 1880 she accompanied him to act as Mistress of the Family. That position was not an easy one in a co-educational school 50 years ago, and it called for energy, tact and patience. Elizabeth Oddie supplied these and many other excellent qualities and carried out her ofcial duties, such as acting as hostess and supervising the School's domestic arrangements, in an admirable way; but she always seemed to do more than was actually required of her, and she did it in a manner peculiarly her own. She was the most friendly of women, sympathetic and able to understand the feelings of others. If a newcomer to the School was lonely she gave a word of cheer; if some un-fortunate youth was isolated in "The San" she made his life more bearable by showing a motherly interest in him; if there happened to be an epidemic of colds she would sud-denly appear in the dormitories at bedtime with steaming jugs of black-currant tea. Her Old Scholars can recall many incidents of this kind, innumerable kindnesses which introduced into the School life delightful touches of home-liness. As a lesult of it all she won universal respect and affection, and wielded a splendid infuence for good. Her life was always a busy one because in addition to School duties she had the care and upbringing of her own family of seven children.

Since 1906 Robert and Eizabeth Oddie have lived in re-tirement, first at Burdrop and then in Sibford Ferris, where their home has been the centre of much friendly hospital-ity. Old Scholars have called at Sibford House at all times of the day-very often at inconvenient times-but they have invariably received a warm welcome from Mrs. Oddie who' has shown a lively interest in their welfare. FM many years past a most enjoyable feature of the Whitsun-tide Gatherings has been the Sunday afternoon reception given by Robert Oddie and his wife to the Old Scholars vf their own time. On a sunny day, with trees and fowers in the background, it was delightful to see Elizabeth Oddie quietly dispensing friendliness and hospitality on the lawn of Sibford House; and it is this memory of her which her friends will always couple with the earlier memories of : younger and more active lady working for the good of the school and its scholars.

In 1908 Mrs. Oddie was elected President of che S.O.S.A. In 1927 she celebrated her Golden Wedding with Robed Oddie and received countless good wishes and congratula- tions. When the new premises were opened at Sibford in 1930 she showed her interest by attending the opening ceremony; and a few weeks previously at the Old Scholars' Gathering she assisted her husband to plant an amncal"ia by the new road leading to "The Hill." And so to the end she maintained her interest in all things Sibford. The closing years of her life were made increasingly happy by the constant companionship of her daughter Helen and by the visits of her other sons and daughters, whilst the advent and the visits of her grandchildren were times of special pleasure to her. General Notes: From e-mail Paul Cavill/16/feb/2011 _____

Some notice is due to the memory of this gentleman, whose untimely fate is lamented by all that knew him. His father of the same name, was the proprietor of Frickley Hall, near Doncaster, and Lord of the Manor of Peniston. Two of his sons, a physician and a lawyer, are now residing at Leeds in Yorkshire. Perhaps few families displayed more of the old English hospitality and style of living, than was kept up at Frickley Hall, before landed property experienced a change.

Mr. Payne, who arrived in this Colony at the commencement of the present year, was bred an English gentleman farmer, practically and theoretically; the library at Frickley (as the writer of this well remembers) being stored with all the standard works on Agriculture, and the periodicals of the day. It was Mr. Payne's intention to shew an example of English farming in many points not practised here, if it were possible, as he said, to avoid falling into that state of apathy and carelessness, which struck him with surprise as pertaining to the settlers generally. A few years ago he travelled through France and Switzerland, from which he obtained much valuable information. His loss to the Colony is therefore to be deplored, especially on account of the manner of it, as it may tend to prevent Emigrants of the same useful and superior class, from adventuring to New South Wales.

Noted events in his life were:

- He was educated at Joseph Tatham's Academy in Leeds, Yorkshire.
- He worked as a Farmer in Dunn's Plains, Bathhurst, New South Wales, Australia.

11-Dr. John Arthington Payne¹⁹⁹ was born on 24 Aug 1790 and died on 6 Dec 1833 at age 43.

Noted events in his life were:

• He worked as a Doctor of Thorpach, Yorkshire.

14-Dr. Lionel Sharples Penrose^{2,5} was born on 11 Jun 1898 in 44 Finchley Road, London and died on 12 May 1972 in General Hospital, Harlesdon Road, Willesden, London at age 73.

General Notes: Penrose, Lionel Sharples (1898-1972), physician, was born at 44 Finchley Road, London, on 11 June 1898 of Quaker stock, the second of the four sons (there were no daughters) of (James) Doyle Penrose (1862-1932), portrait painter, and his wife, Elizabeth Josephine (d. 1930), daughter of Alexander (later Baron) Peckover FSA, banker and collector. Sir Roland Algernon Penrose (1900-1984) was his brother. Penrose was educated at the Downs School, Colwall, and Leighton Park School, Reading. On leaving school in 1916 he served in the Friends' ambulance train of the British Red Cross in France until the end of the First World War, when he went up to St John's College, Cambridge. His main interests were in mathematics and psychology. He eventually chose the moral sciences tripos, in which he gained a first in part two in 1921; he was also awarded the Newcombe prize. After a year's postgraduate work in psychology at Cambridge he repaired to Vienna, then a centre of psychiatric research, where he stayed for two years and became deeply interested in mental illness. He decided that for this work a medical qualification was desirable. He did his clinical work at St Thomas's Hospital, London, where he qualified MRCS LRCP in 1928 and gained the Bristowe medal (1929). On 17 October 1928 he married Margaret, daughter of John Beresford Leathes FRS, professor of physiology at Leeds; she was herself a physician. They had three sons and one daughter.

Penrose's first post was at the City Mental Hospital, Cardiff, where his study of schizophrenia formed the basis of a successful MD thesis (1930). In 1931 he moved to the Royal Eastern Counties Institution at Colchester, a mental hospital with a large number of mentally defective patients. He at once became interested in this hitherto neglected branch of medicine, not only because of the human aspects, but also because the 300,000 patients in the general population posed a serious social problem, and little thought had been given to the possibilities of the prevention of mental illness. Over seven years he made a detailed study of 1280 mentally defective patients and their 6629 siblings, plus their parents and other relatives. This was published in a Medical Research Council Special Report and later expanded in two books, Mental Defect (1933) and The Biology of Mental Defect (1949, 4th edn revised by J. M. Berg and H. Lang-Brown, 1972). This work not only shaped Penrose's own research career in mental defect and human genetics, but had a profound effect on the whole future of these subjects.

From 1939 to 1945 Penrose was director of psychiatric research in Ontario, Canada, where he made an important study on the efficacy of shock therapy. He was then appointed to the Galton chair of eugenics at University College, London. He reorganized the department and in 1963 had the name of the chair changed to the Galton chair of human genetics. He continued his work on mental defect, in particular on mongolism, which he renamed Down's anomaly (later Down's syndrome), and he wrote a notable monograph on the subject in 1966, the centenary of J. Langdon Down's first description of the condition.

In the 1950s methods were developed for isolating, counting, classifying, and examining chromosomes. Penrose's use of these methods made striking advances in the knowledge of human genetics. His Outline of Human Genetics (1960) had a third edition in 1973. He was apt at suggesting new and original lines of research. He was an authority on dermatoglyphs-the finger, palm, and sole prints which are of diagnostic value in mental disease. He made contributions to the diagnosis and treatment of phenylketonuria, an inherited metabolic anomaly, which, if not diagnosed and treated early in life, causes mental defect. He was one of the first to determine the mutation rate of harmful genes in man. He followed clues with unusual tenacity. One example was his reconstruction of the Lambert pedigree, dating from 1732. This family suffered from a peculiar skin disease, with an even more peculiar mode of inheritance, and was cited in most books on human genetics. With the aid of his wife, Penrose examined diocesan and parish records in Suffolk and showed that the pedigree abounded in errors and that the mode of inheritance was quite different from what had been claimed. When he retired from the Galton chair in 1965 he continued his work at the Kennedy-Galton Centre at Harperbury Hospital, near St Albans.

Penrose's work gained international recognition. He was awarded honorary degrees by McGill (1958), Edinburgh (1970), Newcastle (1968), and Göteborg (1966), the Weldon medal from Oxford (1950), the Albert Lasker award (1960), the international award of the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation (1964), and the James Calvert Spence medal in paediatrics (1964). He was president of the Genetical Society of Great Britain (1955-8) and of the Third International Congress of Human Genetics in Chicago in 1966. He was elected to fellowship of the Royal Society in 1953, of the Royal College of Physicians of London in 1962, and of the Royal College of Psychiatrists in 1971.

Apart from Penrose's scientific work an enduring interest was his opposition to war, both on moral and practical grounds. He was one of the founders and for over ten years president of the Medical Association for the Prevention of War. He had many other interests, including music, painting, chess, and making ingenious puzzles both for children and adults, some of which were of scientific value in illustrating the biological principle of replication, as seen in the copying of genetic material. The combination of high intelligence, modesty, and a sense of humour made him an agreeable companion. He died at the General Hospital, Harlesdon Road, Willesden, London, on 12 May 1972. He was survived by his wife and their four children-Oliver became professor of mathematics at the Open University and at Heriot-Watt University, and was elected FRS, Roger became Rouse Ball professor of mathematics at Oxford and FRS, received a knighthood and was appointed OM, Jonathan was British chess champion on ten occasions, and Shirley became a consultant paediatrician.

12-Priscilla Hannah Peckover^{2,5,16} was born on 27 Oct 1833 in Wisbech, Cambridge, Cambridgeshire and died on 8 Sep 1931 in Wistaria House, Wisbech, Cambridge at age 97. She had no known marriage and no known children.

General Notes: Peckover, Priscilla Hannah (1833–1931), peace campaigner, was born on 27 October 1833 in Wisbech, Cambridgeshire, third of the eight children of Algernon Peckover (1803–1893) and his wife, Priscilla (1803–1883). The Peckovers were a wealthy banking family, well established in the region; Priscilla's brother Alexander Peckover, first baronet (1830–1910), of Wisbech, was the first Quaker peer. Priscilla Peckover's education was predominantly private and included the mastering of several European languages. She devoted her youth and early middle age to raising the three daughters of the widowed Alexander, though she also worked among the poor, organized a Bible class for girls, and was active in the cause of temperance.

From a family who were long-time supporters of the Peace Society, Peckover began her own peace activities following the yearly meeting of the Society of Friends in 1875 when she discovered that the Quaker testimony against all war was to be addressed to women as well as men. She was put in touch with the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Peace Society and, finding that it had only two hundred members, went from door to door in her Bible district, adapting the technique developed from her temperance work to secure peace pledges from women. Her activism seems also to have been provoked by the Anglo-Afghan and Anglo-Zulu wars in which Britain was engaged in the late 1870s. The result was the founding by Peckover in 1879 of the Women's Local Peace Association (later renamed the Peace Union), which became the central association of a network of more than thirty local groups run mostly by Quaker women and which had affiliated groups in thirty-one foreign countries. In 1881 Peckover also founded the Wisbech Local Peace Association, the annual subscription of which was a penny so as to attract the widest possible membership. It has been cited as having 8000 members by 1914, though a large majority of these were associate members comprising all those involved in affiliated bodies such as chapels, Sunday schools, Primitive Methodist colleges, and railway missions. (The number of full members according to the 1900 report was 942, when the total membership was given as 6429.) As a means of communicating between branches of the Women's Local Peace Association, Peckover began in 1882 to edit and publish a quarterly journal, Peace and Goodwill, which combined her own Christian peace message with relevant excerpts from other publications.

Both the Peace Union and the Wisbech Local Peace Association were opposed to 'all war', as being 'contrary to the mind of Christ'. This stance was more explicit in its absolute pacifism than that of the Peace Society which, while reserving membership of its executive committee for absolute pacifists, asked its ordinary members simply to declare Christian opposition to war. Links between Peckover's organizations and the Peace Society— to which she was a generous contributor— were nevertheless strong.

Like other female Quaker peace activists of the period, including Ellen Robinson (1840–1912) and Mary Lamley Cooke (1841–1916), Peckover emphasized the importance of women to the peace cause, in particular their influence on children (for example, in her pamphlet An Earnest Appeal to All Women, Everywhere). The internationalism of the peace movement was also central to Peckover's activity: she financed continental peace groups, translated European peace literature into English (she learnt Danish for the specific purpose of translating peace pamphlets), and conducted correspondence with European peace activists. Peckover was also a regular attender at gatherings of the Universal Peace Congress, which took place most of the years between 1889 and 1913 having first been held in the mid-nineteenth century. She tended to view the familiar privileged social circle which met at these congresses as a microcosm of a wider internationalism, and was consequently convinced of the growing influence of the peace cause. Although she argued for international arbitration and disarmament, Peckover embodied an evangelical and educational rather than a political or pressure-group form of activism. Her greatest influence in the peace views. The First World War did nothing to shake Peckover's pacifism, though it reduced the membership of the Wisbech Local Peace Association by a half, and adherents continued to fall away during the 1920s. Peckover was a minister and elder of her local Quaker meeting, known for her tolerance and her quiet sense of humour as well as for her thorough knowledge of the Bible. As president of the local Esperanto Society she was instrumental in having the Bible translated into Esperanto. She died a spinster at her home, Wistaria House, Wisbech, on 8 September 1931, while putting together what was to be the last edition of Peace and Goodwill.

12-Jonathan Peckover^{2,16,27} was born on 16 Jun 1835 in Wisbech, Cambridge, Cambridgeshire and died on 8 Feb 1882 in Wisbech, Cambridge, Cambridgeshire at age 46.

General Notes: Jonathan Peckover, 46 8 2 mo. 1882

Wisbech. Son of Algernon and Priscilla Peck- over.

Jonathan Peckover was the younger son of Algernon and Priscilla Peckover, of Wisbech. Possessed naturally of a somewhat warm temperament and strong will, he was an instance of how such may be modified by the earnestly sought for grace of God, so that he early became remarkable for the gentleness of his disposition; while his perseverance in the course he believed to be right was indomitable.

He was educated at Grove House School, where his firm and conscientious conduct gained the respect of his companions, so that his influence for good was felt and acknowledged, lasting even to the present day.

On leaving school he entered the bank at Wisbech, in which he continued till his decease, taking an active part in the management. But although he never neglected secular duties, his aim was elsewhere, and while taking a deep interest in the affairs of the Society of Friends, to the principles of which he was throughout life most firmly attached, he felt the especial need for work in his own neighbourhood. He set himself earnestly to forward every 1 philanthropic object that came in his way; but during the last twenty years of his life his energies were largely devoted to two interests, - his First-day Bible-class, and the Wisbech Working Men's Club and Institute.

In this latter project, which eventually became an extensive concern, he earnestly set himself to assist the working men of the town to provide themselves with suitable accommodation for rational amusements, social meetings, and elevating studies, without being exposed to the baneful temptations of drink.

At first continual difficulties seemed to stand in the way; those whom he desired to benefit looked suspiciously on him; the upper classes feared that he was going to lift the working men out of their sphere. Politicians predicted socialism, and religious people rationalism. But his strong, prayerful belief that the object at which he aimed was right and needed, never wavered; and, as year after year passed on, the working man came to look upon him as his best friend; the educated joined him in the work; high dignitaries of the English Church and Non conformist ministers alike would assist at the meetings, urging the working classes to utilise the opportunities held out to them. Members of Parliament from both sides of the House supported the Institute, and he lived to see it so well established that, deep as was the distress at his loss among those he had so striven to aid, the work is now steadily and successfully going on, under the guidance of the men he had so carefully trained.

Doubtless, one secret of his success was his extreme modesty and unostentation, mingled with never - failing thoughtfulness for others, and a most happy amount of tact. His desire was ever to keep in the background, preferring that others should fill the post of honour before the public; so that only those most intimate with him were at all aware how he was the real mover in many successful enterprises.

But his large Bible-class had his closest affection. He was never happier than when instructing the lads in the knowledge and doctrines of the Holy Scriptures; and after his decease many testimonies were borne to the effects of his faithful teaching. For more than twenty years did he mainly conduct this class, only once, when at home, surrendering it, through indisposition; and on the First-day before his death he was there as usual. That evening he complained of a sore throat, and the next morning, feeling unwell, sent for the doctor. On Third- day he seemed rather better, and was no worse on Fourth- day morning. Late in the day, however, very unfavourable symptoms suddenly set in, congestion of the lungs supervened, and, notwithstanding all that medical skill could effect, before midnight he quietly sank away.

Seldom was the necessity to a Watch and be ready " more strikingly set forth, and his un-looked-for death taught this solemn lesson in a way that was felt throughout the town and district, where it seemed so heavy a calamity that at first the sad news could scarcely be credited.

Let it be remembered that whatever good this humble-minded servant of God might be helped to effect, it was as he sought to follow the guidance of the Holy Spirit, and as his faith was firmly fixed on the Redemption purchased for all who believe in the saving blood of the Lord Jesus.

The following touches of life and character are interesting and instructive : -

" Our dear brother had delicate health as a child, and his good natural abilities developed slowly. Not being quick at his lessons, or skilful in games, he was liable to be somewhat looked down upon among us; which made it all the more remarkable when his strong conscientiousness and moral courage led him on various occasions to put a veto upon questionable proceedings in playtime with a clearly expressed 'I don't believe it is right.' His quiet firmness of will and uprightness of purpose carrying instant conviction to the minds of his playmates, unaccustomed usually to look up to him.

"This endeavour, as a child, to walk by the law and the commandment is strikingly shown in the following incident, which is vividly impressed on my memory. We were sitting together on our high stools at the round school-room table, conning our lessons, when some disagreement arose between us, and I gave vent to my annoyance by a slap on the cheek. To my intense amazement, instead of returning it, he quietly turned the other to me also. I shall never forget the power accompanying this simple literal obedience to the divine command. I felt utterty abashed and condemned. 'He is right, and thou art wrong,' cried my conscience, calling forth a profound respect for my little brother's faithful obedience." As a young man he delighted in home life, participating in the family interests, and pursuing various occupations with one and another. Pleasant hours indeed were passed in the social circle, often in the study of languages, especially of the treasures of German literature, for which his habit of early rising gave excellent opportunity. But as his interests deepened, particularly through the Bible-class and Working Mens Institute, these gave way before the claims of philanthropy.

Ripening years developed his strong taste for the cultivated and refined, with a keen appreciation of beauty both in nature and art, and a special love for whatever threw light on the study of men and manners. The choice manuscripts, early printed books, and other objects of interest which he gradually collected, were largely selected with a view to using them for the culture and elevation of those in whom he was so deeply interested.

The characteristics of his later life are well described in the following lines, written by himself, as the motto of an epic penned in earlier days : -"Bold unwavering steps in the difficult pathway of duty,

Trod by a sentinel mind that is ever prepared for the struggle :

Glances of faith, that follow the polestar of heaven's high calling,

Lead on the militant soul to the gates of the temple of triumph.'

Hence when once convinced that his Divine Master pointed out any path of usefulness, no discouragements or difficulties could daunt him. He could patiently wait through them, caring nothing for personal considerations, and would go on through evil report and good report, taking prayerfully step by step the appointed way. "Content to fill a little space If Thou be glorified."

His singleness of purpose gained the confidence and love of those amongst whom he laboured, and whom he longed to bring into the service which he himself found so full of blessing, while his strong and tender sympathy won their hearts and affections. Not a few exclaimed in the first pain of his sudden removal, " I have lost my best friend." Bearing in mind the uncertainty of life, he was constantly thoughtful not for the present only, but also for the future of the philanthropic works to which he devoted himself, and thus was preparing a way by which, when he was so suddenly called from life to immortality, others were able to step in, and were found ready to bear the burden which had so long rested on him. Amongst the many lessons which, in the Divine loving-kindness tended as line upon line to mould his Christian life, the following may he mentioned, being one which he himself referred to in after years : - " A few days previous to the commencement of the Bible-clas?, hut when it was already in contemplation, the late Joseph Thorp paid us a religious visit, and at a family sitting addressed Jonathan forcibly from the words - ' Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of Life.' "

The following lines, written by a resident in Wisbech, indicate something of the influence which he exercised and of the prevailing feeling towards him amongst his fellow-townsmen : - JONATHAN PECKOVER, President of the Wisbech Working Men's Institute, Fell asleep in Jesus, Feb. 8th, 1882. He talked among us as a law, A law of Peace, of Heaven-born Peace; His influence a force, a gentle force, That made confusion's rancour cease His words were kind, he did not preach at us : His sermon was His life, his guide to borne ; Unspoken prayers were in his intercourse, His smile an antidote to idle moan : We loved him well, how could we help but love. So long we rested in his pleasant smile, We never thought of saying "Fare thee well." Tears would not melt our sighs when we were told That rumour was reality's dread knell. He sent us no last word, he slipped away ; He never stayed to say "Good-bye : " We cannot tell him now how much we cared, Until we meet him yonder, bye and bye. We might have thanked him for the good he did. He turned his face, and then he passed away ; To-day he was, to-morrow was not, yet he is; He is for ever in eternal day.

12-Wilhelmina Peckover¹⁶ was born in 1844 and died on 20 Feb 1910 in Wisbech, Cambridge, Cambridgeshire at age 66.

General Notes: WILHELMINA PECKOVER. 65 20 2nio. 1910 Wisbech. Wilhelmina Peckover was the youngest of the six daughters of the late Algernon Peckover, of Sibald's Holme, Wisbech, three of whom predeceased her, namely, Susannah Peckover, the eldest of the daughters ; Jane Peckover, who passed away last year ; and Katharine E. (Peckover), wife of Christopher Bowley, of Cirencester, who died in 1 870. The two surviving sisters are Priscilla Hannah Peckover, of Wistaria House, Wisbech, and Algerina Peckover, of the family home, with whom our late friend had resided since her father's decease. A brother, Jonathan Peckover, died in 1882, and the surviving brother is Lord Peckover, of Wisbech. Wilhelmina Peckover was a generous helper of religious and philanthropic efforts. Since the death of her sister Susanna she had been President of the local branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society, of which she was a liberal supporter. Only the day before her death she had got everything in readiness in connection with her position as President of the Ladies' Branch, leaving everything in perfect order. She had just received an acknowledgment from London of a sum which the authorities had realised by the sale of some jewellery which had been bequeathed to her, and which she had sent to the Parent Society with the request that it might be used to purchase Bibles for the prisoners in Chinese and other gaols. The local Working Men's Institute, founded by her brother, also had in her a friend ever ready to help in time of need, and who anticipated its wants in a way that showed her deep interest in its welfare. Sibald's Holme has, indeed, long been the centre for many pleasant social gatherings of various classes of workers and others. During the last twelve years of her life, although suffering much, she took a deep interest in the "Question Corner " of the Railway Signal, a monthly journal of Evangelistic Temperance work on all railways, and her band of Bible Searchers (whose answers to the questions were regularly sent to her, and by her copied out and sent up to the Editor) in connection with it numbered between ninety and one hundred members. Again and again have letters and messages come from Searchers, acknowledging the blessing and help that this study had been to them. "How Miss Peckover, in conjunction with her niece. Miss Alexandrina Peckover, gathered together a group now numbering over ninety members" - to quote from the "Question Corner" for last April - "How assiduously she laboured in the interests of all, how happy were the yearly gatherings for prize giving, all this is a blessed monument to the memory of the departed. We hope most sincerely that the work she has dropped will be taken up by a liand and a heart prepared by the Master to carry it forward." One of Wilhelmina Peckover's last thoughts, on the night she passed away, was what would become of her Bible Searching Band. After a illness extending over a month, she died as she had lived, trusting in the finished work of her Lord. When she learned that all hope was abandoned by her doctor she said, "It will be a glorious change for me !" Shortly afterwards, on the last day of her life, she said to her sister, who sat by her bedside, "I can now speak to the truth of the twenty-third Psalm, for 'I am walking now through the Valley of the Shadow of Death, and I fear no evil for He is with me.' Conscious to the last, she passed away in perfect peace. The following "Tribute " appeared in the Friend a fortnight after her death : - " To most of us in different ways the moan- ing of Bunyan's time-honoured parable, in all its varied and wonderful application to our Christian life, has often been made plain. To some it has been given to know the gladness that the pilgrims felt, when - ' leaning on their staves, as is common to weary travellers,' they talked with the Shepherds stationed by ' the Lord of the Hill 'to encourage wayfarers as they passed. And while we rested, the words of gracious, uplifting cheer were spoken to its by the lips and through the lives of His servants. These mountains are within sight of the city; the sheep are His and He laid down His life for them.' Afterwards, as we went on our way, the light of Heaven shone upon the 'mountains,' and our hearts were filled with hope, because we know that our journey was not in vain. " Among those who have thus spoken to us through their quiet, beautiful lives, was our dear friend, Wilhelmina Peckover, who on Sunday, the 20th of last February, was called into the presence of the master. Words full of Christ-like love and tender sympathy have been sent to us through her, and her hand has been laid upon our lives with the touch of the Master whom she loved. When the call came, it found her ready, for the comfort of the Shepherd Psalm was hers, and 'in the valley of the shadow of death ' there was no room for fear. Now, ' the still waters ' of earth are not needed, and our thoughts pass with her passing, to the time beyond, when - ' the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall lead them unto living fountains of waters, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." The sacrifice of Christ as a satisfying remedy for sin was the foundation of her faith, and an unwavering trust in the Love of Him 'Who laid down His life for the sheep.' It was this, we believe, which made her life fruitful and strong in its quiet power upon those who were privileged to know her. The words of the well-known hymn might have been hers - '' I stand upon His merits, I know no other stand, Not e'en where glory dwelleth In Immanuel's Land. 'But those of us who are still left for a time, as witnesses to the same blessed Truth, can, even under the shadow of a great loss, rejoice for her in a race well run; can follow her with love and thanksgiving, while we almost hear ' the bells of the city ring with joy,' and say with Bunyan: ' Now, just as the gates were opened, I looked, and behold the city shone as the sun : and after that they shut up the gates, which, - when I had seen, I wished myself among them.'

General Notes: William Whitwell, 74 19 9mo. 1910 Salthurn-hy-the-Sea. Died at Scarborough. One of a well-known Kendal family, the late Alderman William Whitwell, who passed away last year, was a leader of men, one of our captains of industry. As a prominent ironmaster, his influence was thrown into the scale for jastice, fair dealing, and conciliation; and the Board of Conciliation and Arbitration of the Iron Trade is a standing monument to his wisdom, judgment and good feeling. He was born on the last day of 1835, and a few years after leaving school, he entered the colliery department office of Joseph Pease and Partners, Darlington, with whom, during his five years, he quickly attained a very responsible position. In 1859, in association with his brother, the late Thomas Whitwell, the firm of William Whitwell & Co. was founded at Stockton- on-Tees. William Whitwell has long been regarded as a leading light in the iron trade, and as a mainstay of the Cleveland iron industry. One of the original members of the Iron and Steel Institute, he was on its Council for many years, and for two years served as President. Of peculiar value were his active efforts for harmonizing the interests of capital and labour in a day when Government intervention in labour disputes would scarcely have been dreamt of. More than forty years ago, William Whitwell was an earnest advocate of the system which resulted in that highly successful organization, - the Board of Conciliation and Arbitration for the Manufactured Iron and Steel Trade of the North of England. This Board is composed of employers and employed in equal numbers, with arbitrators called in when needful; and ever since its formation in 1869 it has regulated wages disputes in the finished iron trade of the district, and ensured peaceable settlements of industrial differences. In fact, during the whole period of the Board's existence there has never been in the Northern manufactured iron industry any strike worth noting. "Blessed are the peace-makers." It is better to prevent war than to stop it when it h as broken out. William Whitw^ell was a member of the Standing Committee of the Board from its foundation, and in 1875 succeeded Sir David Dale as its president, retaining the office continuously for thirty-two years. The warm place that he had won in the hearts of his employees is suggested in the minute of sympathy which was passed at a general meeting of the workmen. "We desire to testify to the very great respect and esteem in which Mr. Whitwell was held by all who were privileged to serve under him. A very large number who have had that privilege for many years, feel that their loss of his wise counsel and commercial ability is beyond expression. None ever sought his advice or help in vain, and his memory will long be cherished by those who were permitted to serve under him." In public life our late friend also took his part faithfully. For nearly forty years he was a Justice of the Peace for the North Riding. On the incorporation of Thornaby-on-Tees, he was elected an alderman of the borough, an office he retained to the close of life. He was Mayor of the borough for the two years, 1895-7. At one time he was a guardian for South Stockton, and for two years (1876-8) chairman of the Middlesbrough Guardians. He was also a member of the late School Board for Thornaby, and of the County Council; and his public services were recognized by the conferment of the Deputy-Lieutenancy of the North Riding and the County of York. In politics he was a Liberal, being for many years president of the Stockton and Thornaby Liberal Association. Forty years ago William Whitwell went to live at Saltburn-by-the-Sea, where the pleasantly-situated residence, Overdene, was built and remained his home to the close of life. In the nature of things he was a conspicuous figure in the religious and social life of the little town. A regular attender of the small meeting at Saltburn, his beautiful and impressive reading of the Bible added much for many years to the religious feeling of the gatherings. The meeting-house was the outcome of his efforts. For some years he had retired from active participation in his business, but his interest in public affairs had been maintained till the last year or two, when his health began to fail. Only a few weeks before his death he resigned his presidency of the Cleveland Liberal Association. While staying at Scarborough, he suffered two seizures at short intervals, and he passed away on the 19th of September, 1910. William Whitwell married, in 1862, Henrietta Jane, daughter of Joseph and Mary Ann Fry, of Bristol, who, as has been shown in the previous memoir, survived him barely six months. The funeral, in Saltburn cemetery (after a short meeting at Overdene), was largely attended. It was held after the manner of Friends, and addresses were given by Jonathan B. Hodgkin and Joseph Henry Taylor, who drew appropriate lessons from the commercial, political, and religious life of the deceased.

Noted events in his life were:

- He worked as an Ironfounder. Wm. Whitwell & Co. Ltd. Thornaby Iron Works.
- He had a residence in Saltburn, Yorkshire.

William married Henrietta Jane Fry,⁶³ daughter of Joseph Fry^{2,5,11,68,94,203} and Mary Ann Swaine,^{2,5,11,94} on 17 Sep 1862 in FMH Friars, Bristol. Henrietta was born on 3 Feb 1840 in Bristol, Gloucestershire, died on 13 Mar 1911 in Overdene, Saltburn, Yorkshire at age 71, and was buried in Saltburn Cemetery, Saltburn, Yorkshire. They had ten children: Helen Mary, Henrietta, Marion, William Fry, Joseph Fry, Janet Elizabeth, Francis Albert, Arthur Percy, Hugh, and Cecily Margaret.

General Notes: Henrietta J. WHITWELL, 71 13 3mo. 1911 Salthurn-hy-the-Sea. Widow of William Whitwell. Henrietta Jane Whitwell was born at Bristol on February 3rd, 1840, and was the youngest of the eight children of Joseph and Mary Ann Fry. Her early years were spent among a large circle of relations, and for several years she was, with her sisters and brothers, a teacher in the First-Day School belonging to their Meeting at The Friars, Bristol. In 1862 she married William Whitwell, of Kendal, and settled at Stockton-on-Tees, where the early years of their married life were spent, and where their eldest children were born. Later they removed to Saltburn-by-the-Sea, which became their home for the remainder of their lives. Never was wife and mother more loved and honoured; and under her wise and gentle rule a family of many sons and daughters grew up in unbroken harmony and affection. She had a very humble opinion of herself, and her only trust was in the love and forgiveness of God as revealed in Jesus Christ. In daily life she was watchful and prayerful, but it was in the great trial of gradually lessening sight and the dread of complete blindness that her Christian character shone most brightly. Of a sensitive and rather anxious temperament and keenly alive to all that blindness involved, she yet bore the trial with most exemplary submission. She knew where to look for the strength she needed, and in the constant privations and hindrances which were inevitable, she never gave way to irritability or impatience. She fully recognised her many alleviations and remaining blessings, and adapted her life to its increasing limitations. Her heart was full of tender sympathy and of interest in the lives of others; always ready to si: are their joys and sorrows, and by constant acts of thoughtful kindness she brightened the lives and ministered to the needs of many. Being a very attentive listener to reading aloud, and to what she heard in other ways, her mind retained its freshness and its lively interest in the questions of the day, and her mental outlook was observed to widen rather than to narrow in these many years of failing sight. It has been remarked by one who knew her well that no one in conversation with her could fail to be impressed by the high level to which she lifted every subject under consideration. She much enjoyed attending sittings of the Yearly Meeting when able to do so, and on many occasions she was present at the annual conferences of the National Union of Women Workers, listening with keen interest to papers and discussions affecting the welfare of women and children. She was president of the local branch of the National Union from its formation and her deep interest in its work was very inspiring to others. At their conferences she took special note of anything that would interest the members of the large Mothers' Meeting over which she presided at Thornaby-on-Tees. This Mothers' Meeting she attended and conducted week after week for nearly twenty-five years, latterly with strength hardly equal to the effort. With a daughter's help she prepared the Bible Lesson for the women, and none who heard her speak, on these or other occasions, could perceive any trace of the difficulty under which the subject was prepared. Since H. J. Whitwell's death very touching testimonies have been given to the help and cheer brought to many members of the meeting, by her loving messages and advice. Circumstances did not lead to her taking a prominent part in the business of our Society, but she was a sympathetic and discerning Elder. Except in her own small meeting at Saltburn her voice was never heard in our Meetings for Worship, although the freshness of her thoughts and the beautiful manner in which her message to her own smaller circle was given would have made her ministry helpful in larger gatherings. In the autumia of 1910 her beloved husband, William Whitwell, died after a short illness, and this loss seriously affected her already enfeebled health. She only survived her husband six months, never having rallied from an illness in the autumn of 1908; but she was sweet, loving and thankful, and there were many flashes of her old brightness even while her strength was failing. This failure of strength was very rapid during the last few weeks of her life; she fully realised this and sent beautiful messages to her children and grandchildren. As the end drew near those who loved her most were thankful that her sensitive spirit was spared, by a state of unconsciousness which resembled a long restful sleep, the immediate anticipation of death, and the pain of parting from the children and grandchildren whom she so dearly loved. Now and then a bright look of happiness came into her still lovely face, as if some sweet thought or anticipation were given her. It was only when her gentle breathing ceased that it was known that the spirit had fled. As with Bunyan's Mr. Fearing, the water of the river was very low when she went over.

14-Joseph Frv Whitwell^{114,213} was born on 22 Jul 1869 in Saltburn, Yorkshire, died on 6 Nov 1932 in Langbaurgh Hall, Great Ayton, Yorkshire at age 63, and was buried on 9 Nov 1932 in Great Ayton, Yorkshire. The cause of his death was Committed suicide with a shotgun.

General Notes: Sunday 6 Nov 1932 - A most dreadful thing happened today. In the afternoon Betty went to the telephone & came back crying & said Joe Whitwell (Langbaurgh Hall) had shot himself this morning while Ruth was at Church - He was not to be found at lunch & about 1.30 the gardener found him by the Summer house on the grass having blown the top of his head to pieces with his shot gun - He has had a nervous breakdown since August, but we thought after his 2 months in a nursing home under an "expert" nerve Dr (Russell) that he was recovering - he wrote to me at the beginning of this attack & said he was determined not to get as he was about 12 years ago - He was such a kindly, friendly & nice neighbour & relation - a fine good looking man - not brilliant in any way but pleased with himself & very popular - it is a great loss & shock. I have been told that Reid who lived at Langbaurgh before him committed suicide - I do not know if this is correct as I should be abroad then - but Charlie Bell who lived there before that shot himself there - People will say he was insane - & the Inquest will find the same - but it is an illness where you can reason quite well but cannot explain the horror & terror of facing life and each day, it is an indefinable dread and misery which I can understand can become really unbearable -Wed 9 Nov 1932 – Betty & I went to the very large funeral of Joe Whitwell at Ayton.

General Notes: MOWBRAY, STEPHEN DE, A graduate of New College, Oxford, Stephen de Mowbray joined the Secret Intelligence Service (SIS) in 1950, at age 25, and two years later, was posted to Cairo. In 1953, he undertook a two-year tour in Baghdad and then returned to Broadway. In 1957, he was appointed head of station in Montevideo and was back in London in 1961.

During his period in SIS's counter-intelligence branch, he was indoctrinated into the mole hunts that had beset the Security Service, and he acted as one of SIS's two representatives on the FLUENCY Committee, on which Arthur Martin served for MI5, which investigated Soviet spy suspects. One of the cases he pursued was that of Donald Prater, whom he interviewed in New Zealand after the latter's retirement from SIS, ostensibly on health grounds. De Mowbray transferred to Washington, DC, in 1964 and succeeded the head of station in 1966. He remained in the United States for a further two years and then came back to Broadway. In June 1974, de Mowbray became concerned that evidence of Soviet penetration of the Security Service was being overlooked and decided to alert Prime Minister Harold Wilson. His visit to Downing Street, where he was received by the cabinet secretary, sparked off the inquiry conducted by Lord Trend into the allegations made against Sir Roger Hollis At the conclusion of his investigation, which de Mowbray expressed severe reservations about, Trend concluded that "there was no compelling evidence against Hollis, or even that MI5 had suffered hostile penetration,"

De Mowbray retired in 1975 to start a new family in Kent, and he has helped edit Anatoli Golitsyn's hook New Lies far Old and has embarked on an ambitious project to record a comprehensive chronology of the Soviet Union. In the July/August 1984 edition of Encounter he also contributed an article entitled "Soviet Deception and the Onset of the Cold War."

By Gordon Corera Security correspondent, BBC News

26 January 2010

For 30 years Stephen De Mowbray has maintained a self-imposed silence on a career that once took him to the heart of one of British intelligence's most controversial episodes.

In 1979 he guit his job with the Secret Service because he believed officials had failed to take seriously the claim that British intelligence had been further penetrated by its enemy - the Soviet Union's KGB.

A number of spies had been discovered in the 1960s but De Mowbray believed there were more. But he found no-one at the top willing to listen. "People thought I was either mad or bad because I was trying to do something," he says of that time.

Three decades later, De Mowbray decided to tell his side of the story after reading the authorised history of the Security Service (MI5), published last October. It dismisses the view that there were further traitors in the Security Service.

Conspiracy theories?

In the book, De Mowbray's claims are the subject of a chapter subtitled "paranoid tendencies" which recounts his work as well as that of two colleagues, Peter Wright (author of the controversial Spycatcher) and Arthur Martin. The book quotes an MI5 director saying of the group: "Involvement in counter-espionage cases induces in some a form of paranoia."

De Mowbray himself is referred to - although not by name - as "the leading SIS (Secret Intelligence Service) conspiracy theorist". "I was this SIS officer," De Mowbray confirms.

De Mowbray joined the Secret Service shortly after World War II and in the 1960s was assigned to work in the field of Soviet counter-intelligence investigating the operations of the KGB.

The British establishment was in the process of being rocked by a series of scandals in which a number of individuals were revealed to be working for the other side. De Mowbray was assigned to work on the case of a KGB officer named Anatoliy Golitsyn, who defected in 1961.

Golitsyn remains a controversial figure. De Mowbray argues he provided a number of crucial leads. Critics say he became prone to exaggeration. Golitsyn's information suggested there were more traitors in the West, including within its intelligence agencies.

At the same time, two MI5 officers - Arthur Martin and Peter Wright - had also both come separately to the same conclusion - that there was a penetration at the highest reaches of the Security Service.

Extraordinary times

They called on MI6 to help and De Mowbray was assigned to assist them.

"There were extraordinary things going on," recalls De Mowbray.

"Martin was running people against the Soviets and those operations were going wonky."

Meanwhile Peter Wright's bugging devices, which had been installed in Soviet premises around the world, were also failing to produce intelligence. These operations were known only to very few senior officers in MI5.

"I was utterly horrified at the thought that this was happening," says De Mowbray.

When the small group added in Golitsyn's claims they came to believe that there was a mole at the very top - either Graham Mitchell, the number two at MI5, or his boss Roger Hollis.

"I vowed to myself that I would never let go of this case," recalls De Mowbray.

In his authorised history of MI5, Christopher Andrew describes the investigations into Hollis and Mitchell as "the most traumatic episodes in the Cold War history of the Security Service".

Mitchell was investigated first. As recounted in the authorised history, this involved bugging his phone, feeding him false information and putting him under close surveillance. "We followed Mitchell all over the place, downtown when he left from the office, trying to chase him up the steps in Waterloo when he went home," recalls De Mowbray. Even after his retirement, Mitchell was still monitored. Nothing was found. Next Hollis was investigated but eventually also cleared. "There were suspicions with both of them," De Mowbray argues. "There are not suspicions now. But somebody was doing it."

'KGB campaign'

In 1964, De Mowbray was posted to Washington where he worked more closely with Golitsyn and his sponsor in the CIA, James Jesus Angleton, Angleton became convinced that the KGB was mounting a wide-scale deception campaign to hide its true capabilities and the presence of its spies in the West. He was eventually dismissed from the CIA. Critics said he damaged the organisation through his investigations into a CIA "mole" who never existed. In the authorised history of MI5, it is argued that Golitsyn became an increasing "liability" because of his "passionately paranoid tendencies". De Mowbray disagrees with the portrayal of Golitsyn. He says he has been misrepresented and disputes details presented of Golitsyn's visits to the UK, arguing that some of them were genuinely productive in terms of intelligence leads.

De Mowbray became increasingly frustrated at the lack of action and complained repeatedly to his superiors through the 1970s. He was moved away from the investigation. "I could not reconcile myself to doing nothing: I had made so many commitments to myself and to others to pursue the problem to the end that I could not wash my hands and forget about it," he explains.

He argued that MI5 had not properly investigated itself and was incapable of doing so. "It was a very difficult situation for years on end," he says now of that time. De Mowbray went as far as approaching the Cabinet Secretary, Sir John (later Lord) Hunt. He referred De Mowbray on to a former Cabinet Secretary, Lord Trend, who conducted a review of the subject and found insufficient evidence to support the allegations.

"Don't expect me to tear Whitehall apart about all this," De Mowbray recalls Lord Trend telling him.

He was told he could not have his old job back in counter-intelligence and soon after De Mowbray applied for early retirement. He went off to the US initially to help Golitsyn write a book on Soviet deception and later to help him on his unpublished memoirs. He had no further contact with the intelligence services and steered clear of public comment until reading the authorised history of MI5.

The consensus view has now developed, reflected in Christopher Andrew's book, that there were no further high-level penetrations in British intelligence. But De Mowbray remains convinced that there is a dark secret that has still not come out.

"When I left most people were oblivious of the situation", he says. "Maybe I was wrong? But I don't think I was."

15-Stephen John Whitwell was born on 30 Jul 1920 in Darlington, County Durham and died on 6 Oct 2010 at age 90.

General Notes:

Stephen was at one time, a regular correspondent of Sir Joseph Gurney Pease Bt., who said of him, "Stephen was such an interesting correspondent and I rather wish that I had known him better." They never met in person.

On 2nd March 2012, Sir JGP wrote to myself (CEGP) and said, "I had suspected he might have died but in spite of looking through the deaths every day, I obviously missed seeing it at the time. I didn't know about his time in Seoul or in Tehran pre-Ayatollah times. I think he told me it was because his sight was starting to fail he had decided to move from Aston Tirrold in June 1996, and sold his house there very quickly, and said he'd sold it to people who were 'partners', but didn't embroider on that as to whether or not they were same sex 'partners' or man and woman. He moved to a Residential Home (38 Pythouse, Tisbury, Salisbury, Wilts) in about September 1996 and wrote to me from there 10 days after he'd shifted with everything all in a great jumble (a family failing perhaps?) – 'cheque book stubs mixed up with socks' he said. I don't know that he was terribly happy there – anyhow because of his sight problem, our correspondence came to an end, but I always enjoyed getting his letters and he said he wondered if he and I were the only people left in England who corresponded regularly."

Coldstream Guards officer who overcame polio to win the MC in the battle of Ornito

In spite of contracting polio at the age of six which left him with a shortened leg and required visits to consultants throughout his childhood, Stephen Whitwell joined the OTC after going to Oxford, in 1939, and secured him a commission in the Coldstream Guards, joining the the regiment in December 1940. From January 1943 he served in North Africa, including Tunisia, and thereafter in Italy during a miserably cold winter in 1944 when his physical endurance was particularly tested. At the battle of Ornito in mountainous conditions, the citation for his Military Cross details the way in which his platoon bore the brunt of a double attack during the first part of which he "played a leading part with a Thompson sub-machinegun and grenades". He "later led his platoon into the assault with complete disregard for his personal safety and was largely responsible for clearing the enemy from the hill and taking 20 prisoners".

Unable to lead a second assault because his legs had given up, he nonetheless directed the action, so that further success was achieved. He remained with the Army until February 1947 being stationed for a time in Austria. The controversial repatriation of Cossacks back to the Soviet Union happening at this time concerned him all his life. Stephen John Whitwell was born in Darlington in 1920 the eldest son of a successful solicitor. Because of his limp, his parents chose to send him to Stowe rather than to the more sport-minded Uppingham to which both his younger brothers went. Urged by his history tutor at Stowe, he went up to Christ Church, Oxford, in October 1939 and had an enjoyable year. Though he chose not to return to Oxford after the war, he was awarded a degree and then sat the examination for the Foreign Service, as it then was. In 1947 he was sent to Tehran which he found chaotic, but across which he was able to travel widely, and in 1949 to Belgrade. In 1952 he was sent to New Delhi, possibly his favourite posting. After a posting to Seoul in 1961 he was appointed in 1964 Political Adviser to the Commander-in-Chief, Middle East, in Aden, where he witnessed the fraught ending of Britain's involvement.

He returned to Belgrade as a Counsellor in 1965, and his diplomatic his career culminated in his being appointed Ambassador to Somalia from 1968 to 1970. He was appointed CMG in 1969.

Retiring in 1971, and moving to Aston Tirrold in Oxfordshire, he became involved in many local activities, including the renovation of Wallingford Museum, membership of the British Institute of Persian Studies and the Oxfordshire Historic Churches Trust.

He never married, but the unofficial guardianship of the two sons of a diplomatic colleague gave him great pleasure. Stephen Whitwell, CMG, MC, diplomat, was born on July 31, 1920. He died on October 6, 2010, aged 90

Noted events in his life were:

- He was awarded with CMG. MC.

Henry was born on 27 Aug 1878 in Limpley Stoke, Wiltshire and died on 8 Jan 1962 in Monkton Combe, Bath, Somerset at age 83. They had three children: Cecilia Mary Fergusson, Henry Denis Whitwell, and Rosalind Margaret Perv.

15-Cecilia Mary Fergusson Powell was born on 31 Aug 1917 in Monkton Combe, Bath, Somerset and died in Oct 1989 in Aylesbury Vale, Buckinghamshire at age 72.

15-Dr. Henry Denis Whitwell Powell was born on 23 Apr 1919 in Monkton Combe, Bath, Somerset and died on 11 Aug 2014 in Leicester, Leicestershire at age 95.

General Notes: Henry Denis Whitwell Powell ('Denis') was a consultant orthopaedic surgeon in High Wycombe and Amersham. The middle child and only son of Henry and Margaret Powell, he was born on 23 April 1919 and brought up with his two sisters Celia and Rosalind at Monkton Combe near Bath, in a large house with seven staff and good, tall trees for climbing in the garden.

He and Celia shared a governess until he went to boarding school aged eight. Brought up in a Christian family, he regularly attended the school chapel in term time and visited a whole range of churches in the holidays. He was clearly keen on and good at sport. He enjoyed inspirational teaching from Bill Wilson, his biology teacher. Trips to his aunt meant going out with his GP uncle Cecil, visiting patients on Exmoor. Denis waited outside in the car, but he said this experience helped him decide to do medicine. Cambridge came next, an expansion of his world. Here he met Leonore Elisita Trench ('Leo'). Although Denis moved on to Edinburgh for his clinical studies, he stayed in contact with Leo and they became engaged in 1943. He used to tell stories of the times he cycled between either Bath or London and Edinburgh at the beginning and end of term, stopping in youth hostels or with friends and family on the way, taking roughly a week for each journey.

In 1943 he worked through the summer in Hull and wrote a thank you letter after he left to his consultant, who responded, giving a delightful and recognisable picture of Denis. The consultant wrote: 'The hospital now is a remarkably peaceful place. The deathly silence of the corridors at night is most marked, no more are we uplifted by a melodious baritone voice raised in song, not even the mildest yodel can be heard. It is almost like a hospital. I'm not sure I have got your address right. I have tried a microscope on your writing in vain!'

Denis and Leo were married on 3 February 1945 and spent three weeks together before he was called up. Their first daughter, Margaret, was born in December 1945, although she was not seen by Denis until he came home from India in June 1947. Janet was born in 1949, John in 1951, with Clare arriving in 1954. Denis joined the RAF and worked on flying stations in the UK. He took decisions about prisoners of war arriving back from the Continent, and whether they should be allowed to go home, which they were longing to do. He hated having to tell them 'No, you cannot go home as you need to be hospitalised' and 'Yes, you need to be de-loused again'. The other job he hated was having to take decisions about operational aircrew who were no longer fit to fly. While during the First World War what we now know as post-traumatic stress disorder was called 'shell shock', in the Second World War it gained the more blaming label of 'lack of moral fibre'. He hated having to give this label to men, but this was the only way to release them from active flying service. In the summer of 1945 he flew to India, and was there for most of the next two years. When he left the RAF in the summer of 1947 he struggled to find work, as he was competing with a flood of demobbed doctors chasing too few jobs. He eventually found jobs as a demonstrator and in house posts, and was excited by being part of the new NHS. He began his orthopaedic career, gaining his fellowship in 1953 after several attempts. The next milestone was 1956, when he moved to registrar and senior registrar posts in Manchester. At last, in 1960, he got a consultant job covering High Wycombe and Amersham hospitals, and the family moved to Cryers Hill on the edge of the Chilterns, roughly between the two towns.

He did not often talk to his family about his work, but on the rare occasions he did, he would tell us how he cared for babies with spina bifida and thalidomide-affected children. We saw him at work on Christmas Day, when we always went with him to the hospital to visit. It was very clear he was loved by his nurses, whom he teased and was teased back by remorselessly - his way of making a more human connection than hospital roles often allowed. At the same time, he was also very clearly head of the team. He was utterly committed to his work and sincerely respected other peoples' contributions to the work of the team.

Kim Cheetham, a paediatrician, writes: 'I soon discovered Denis was a marvellous colleague, very supportive of me, when I was new. We were always able to work together to make an effective treatment plan. He developed a system of treating young infants with broken legs without the need for hospital admission. This meant babies still very dependent on their mothers were not separated from them for the six weeks that was standard practice at the time. A quiet, highly competent man, who had high standards of personal practice that were very widely admired, and, of course, copied.'

Another cause that engaged him was the care of patients who had undergone electro-convulsive therapy and had sustained femoral fractures during their seizures: this led him to research appropriate muscle relaxants.

When walking around High Wycombe with his family, people would came up to him and say 'I worked in theatre with you in the 70s' or 'You did my hip in 82'. Their gratitude, and their pleasure at seeing him, delighted him.

Much of his working life was before we had seat belts and before motorcyclists wore helmets. So his work included a lot of road traffic accidents. He struggled with breaking bad news to families, and with the operations where he worked for hours to try to save a badly hurt young motorcyclist, but still had to tell the parents at the end that the young person had died.

He worked long hours, with full clinics and theatres, adding the hours on call and at the weekends to an already unlimited working week. He stayed at hospital until the work was done and his family never knew when he would come home. He showed great determination to do his best, was meticulously careful, and had real commitment to both the quality of his work and to his individual patients. The emotional demands of mending damaged bodies were enormous. He recovered by mowing the extensive lawns and gardening, and sometimes by eating alone and retreating to the study, where he wrote notes on every operation he did. There were significant costs to this way of working, both to him in his tiredness and in his absence from family life. So holidays became very important.

The family youth hostelled, camped and caravanned. They walked and climbed the hills, and he ran down scree slopes, starting little avalanches and terrifying his children. He was a very good photographer of landscapes and occasionally included his family!

Denis loved to combine work and travelling. He went to Denmark and Sweden to study what they had learned from a polio outbreak and to apply this to a 1958 UK outbreak. Working in northern Nigeria fascinated him. He was a professor in Sudan for a term, accompanied by Leo (and Clare joined them for a holiday), examined students in Libya, worked for the Eritrean People's Liberation Front in their struggle for independence from Ethiopia, which involved operating in an underground hospital and, last but not least, in Botswana, where, as well as treating people, he also operated on a lioness with a broken leg.

Retirement meant more time and New Zealand was short of orthopaedic specialists in the late 1980s. Denis and Leo went three times to Dunedin, where he was known as 'the golden oldie', and once to Invercargill. They never repeated a journey, managing to cross Russia on the Trans-Siberian railway, visit family in western Canada and ex-colleagues in India.

There was always music in his life. Denis listened, he sang and he played. One of his early memories was listening to his dad in the Bath choir, singing the Messiah every year at Christmas. Listening to good music gave him real joy.

Denis started singing in the school chapel choir, and loved being part of the annual Gilbert and Sullivan school production. He was in choirs all his adult life, including the BBC Northern Singers in Manchester and, in his final years, the Humberstone Choral Society in Leicester. Singing for him was a way of expressing feeling, which was so much harder in words. As a youngster he played the cello and then passed his instrument on to his daughter, Margaret.

Denis was a man who initially could look stern, especially to a child, and then came the twinkle, the tease and the laugh. His feet were firmly rooted in valuing the old. 'You can't throw that away, I bought it in India' he said of a decrepit bag spotted during the clearing of his home in 2007. The bag was at least 60 years old. He could be stubborn, always doing things in his own time, and unaware of the impact of this on other people. Denis could express his feelings very strongly, but not always in words. This could make communication with him difficult and sometimes impossible. Under stress, whether from work or family matters, he tended to withdraw and not see the pain this caused others and was often not able to engage in the discussions that, sometimes, can reduce pain.

Finally, his faith, which was centrally important to him, but about which he rarely talked; it was a private matter, but he had great certainty. It was displayed in his work and his caring for his patients, as well as in his wider life. He loved visiting churches and cathedrals, whether ruined or still in use.

Leo died in 2004 and, after three years, Denis moved from High Wycombe to Leicester, close to his middle daughter. He was able to live alone initially, but in time needed increasing support and moved into a care home for the last three and a half years of his life. He died on 11 August 2014, aged 95.

His memorial service was attended by family and friends, representing many aspects of his life, from a lady who had been present at his wedding and a physio who had worked with him in High Wycombe, to four of his 10 great-grandchildren.

12-Edward Smith^{1,71} was born on 28 Dec 1826 in Doncaster, Yorkshire and died on 22 Oct 1911 in Belfast, Ireland at age 84.

General Notes: Edward Smith 84 22 IOmo. 1911 Belfast. Minister. In the passing away of Edward Smith, Belfast Meeting has lost the Friend who sat at its head for over thirty years. Born in Doncaster in 1826, he was the third son of Henry and Maria Smith. As a young man he wrote in his diary : "The large family (of which I was the fifth) had been brought up with no common assiduity by most careful and affectionate parents." In later life, during his parents' declining years, he was the mainstay of the home. After some years at Ackworth School, he was apprenticed to Robert and William Marsh, Drapers, of Dorking. Subsequently he was with the Spences of North Shields, afterwards in Liverpool, and in 1869, he joined his brother Francis in business at Brighouse. While there he married Helen Marsh, eldest daughter of the Friend with whom he had served his apprenticeship at Dorking. In 1880, on the dissolution of his partnership with his brother, he left Brighouse to take a confidential position in the office of his brother-in-law, John Marsh, biscuit manufacturer, of Belfast. When the business grew, and was, in 1884, made a limited liability company, Edward Smith became a director, and so continued until his death. Edward Smith lived a long and uneventful life. His story is not that of a conspicuous personality, but of a man who faithfully performed the day's work, day after day. Just and conscientious in his dealings, he was highly respected by all with whom he came in contact, and was much beloved by the staff with whom he worked. Moderation in all things, faithfulness, unselfishness and generous kindness to his relations were marked traits in his character. When 23 years of age he wrote in his diary : " My shortcomings are great, but the forbearance of God is more astonishing, and my desires again return for more diligence unto holiness, even to bringing forth fruit into the glory of His name." On his 25th birthday he wrote : " Redeem the time. Use diligence. Pray for the light of God's Holy Spirit to guide unto all truth, and may my heart be sanctified through Grace. O that more of the leaven of the Spirit of Jesus were infused through my nature. O that I were more entirely changed by a new birth unto righteousness. Keep me, O Heavenly Father, from the pollution of the world. Let not sin have dominion over me. Guide me by Thy mighty power from the allurements of the evil one, and preserve me unto the end." About the age of 38 he passed through much conflict of spirit on feeling called to the public ministry, an experience very trying to one of so retiring a disposition. He first spoke at a small meeting called "The Wash," while on a walking tour in Derbyshire. He was recorded a Minister shortly after his removal to Brighouse, and he was warmly welcomed by Friends when, in 1880, he and his wife settled in Belfast, where there had been no acknowledged minister for some years. His voice was regularly heard in Meetings for Worship, and he delivered an encouraging and impressive address on the Tuesday previous to his death. It may be added that he maintained the practice of daily family reading and prayer until the last. A diligent attender of Meetings for Discipline, his short and pithy advice was very helpful. But although he was an acknowledged minister for about forty years, he never asked for a minute for service outside his own Meeting, and it may be said that he was comparatively little known to Friends beyond the pale of his own Monthly Meeting. Although keenly interested in politics, he took no part in public life. He was a great reader, and had regular days for reading the different weekly periodicals. His chief hobby was the keeping of bees, and by his death Ireland has lost one of its ablest bee-masters. Amusing stories are told of how his own bees persisted in swarming on Sundays- an experience, by the way, well known to all who have much to do with hives. Not until a few months before his death did he ever lose a swarm. Quite recently, however, two swarms deserted him, thus fulfilling an Irish tradition. Edward Smith dwelt much in his ministry on the mercy and love of God as revealed in Christ Jesus. Whilst deeply attached to the tenets of the Society of Friends, his sympathies were wide, and he was ever ready to recognize the good in other denominations. His sermons were concise and very helpful, increasingly so towards the end of his life. In the course of an address delivered some years ago, he pointed out that Courtesy should ever be one of the marks of a follower of Christ. All who knew him, even slightly, can recall what an example he himself was of this Christian virtue. The gentlest and most retiring of men, he could, when duty called, reprove in the spirit of love. His grasp of spiritual truths was such that it was next to impossible to doubt whilst listening to him. He did not so much warn or teach, as recommend the love of God ; and as he became older his manner became extremely persuasive and gentle, and one felt that he had a very real insight into heavenly things. In prayer, he led as it were into the presence of God, and seemed like a child talking to his Father with the full and perfect confidence of love. " So we have guides to Heaven's Eternal City, And when our wandering feet would backward stray, The faces of our dead appear in brightness, And fondly beckon to the holier way."

General Notes: Henry E. Clark, 69 1 5ino. 1906 Doncaster. A Minister. Henry E. Clark was born on June 28th, 1836. He was the seventh child, and fifth son, of Joseph and Ann Clark, of Doncaster. His parents earnestly desired the best welfare of their children, who, in future years, were able to look back upon, and speak of, a very happy childhood, till the death of their beloved mother, in 1847, threw a cloud over the home, though Joseph Clark earnestly strove to fill her place as well as his own. Before going to Ackworth, Henry E. Clark and his brothers attended a school in their own town of Doncaster. He went to Ackworth when ten years old, afterwards going to Bootham, York. One of his teachers at the latter school thus wrote of him in his note-book : "A very hopeful character ; conscientious in all his transactions ; truthful, honourable, and kind." On leaving school H. E. Clark was appren- ticed to the firm of Daniel Tuke and Son, of Bradford, and afterwards lived at Liverpool, where for a short time he was in business for himself. Later on he was at Kirkstall and Doncaster, before settling at Leeds. During his residence in Doncaster he assisted at the commencement of an Adult School, and ever afterwards took a great interest in its progress and welfare. Whenever he was at home on furlough, and in Doncaster, it was a great delight to him to be present at the School on First-Day mornings, and at the monthly business meetings when possible. In 1863 H. E. Clark entered into business in Leeds with Samuel Southall, and in 1866 he married Rachel Maria Rowntree of that town. He threw himself heartily into Adult School work in Leeds, in conjunction with his friend, William Johnson. Samuel Southall writes of this time : "Looking back upon the period of years when H. E. Clark and I were connected in business in Leeds, I am impressed with the recollection of his great diligence. While many a young man, having a family to support and often considerable pressure of business engagements, would have felt himself excused from working on Sundays, he was not only never absent from his Sunday class, but gave his whole energies to the affairs of the Adult School." In 1870 the call to foreign mission work came to both H. E. and R. M. Clark, to each individually, and unknown, for some time to the other. It was a definite call to work in Madagascar, where help was much needed at that time. Joseph Sewell, who had gone out in 1867, had appealed through letters in The Friend, etc., for more helpers, and H. E. and R. M. Clark and William Johnson were led to respond to the call. They were accepted by the F.F.M.A., and in April, 1871, they sailed for Madagascar; and thenceforth, for more than thirty years that island was the scene of H. E. Clark's life work. Many and varied were the branches of mission work in which he was called to take part during these years. Preaching on Sundays and other occasions, holding Bible classes, teaching and examining schools, serving on the Bible Revision Board, taking charge of some of the country districts under the care of Friends, superintending the printing office and the Boys' High School in Tananarive, besides undertaking a large amount of literary work. He wrote a "History of the Church in Madagascar," commenced, and was for many years editor of a monthly periodical entitled "The Church and School," besides writing many books on Biblical subjects for use in schools and Bible classes. "One of these books consisting of simple lessons on the life of our Lord (entitled 'Ny Mpamonjy,' or 'The Saviour') has had, it is beheved, a wider •circulation in Madagascar than any other book, except the Bible and the Pilgrim's Progress, and from the first was adopted by all the Protestant missionary societies in the island, as the standard text-book on the subject for their elementary schools." He also frequently acted as secretary or treasurer for the mission, and was several times elected treasurer of the native missionary societies and the native Bible society. In connection with this work he found the business training he had had at home of great value. But although undertaking and enjoying so many different branches of the work at one time or another, Henry E. Clark always felt that his first and greatest work was to preach to the Malagasy of the love of God and salvation through Jesus Christ; and many, both in Tananarive, where he resided, and in the country districts, heard the good news from his lips. For several years of his missionary life his wife was unable to be with him, family duties detaining her in England, but the separation thus involved was cheerfully borne by both for the sake of the work which was so dear to their hearts. In 1903 they returned to Madagascar together for a "lengthened visit," at a time when help was much needed, but in July of the following year Rachel M. Clark contracted typhoid fever, and after eleven weeks' illness, passed peacefully away to the home above. H. E. Clark felt his loss most keenly, and though he bravely continued at his post and kept on with his work he was never the same again. In September, 1905, he returned home, and though in somewhat feeble health, and suffering much from the cold of an English winter, he entered as fully as his strength would permit into Adult School and other work in connection with the Meeting at Doncaster, and his ministry there,, as well as his visits to many of the members in their own homes, will long be lovingly remembered. The home-call came somewhat suddenly. On Saturday, April 28th, 1906, he was seized with paralysis and on May 1st he quietly breathed his last. "Though he could give no parting words or dying testimony, we know that he died in the sure and certain hope of eternal life, through the Saviour whom he had loved and served for so many years. Prayer and thanksgiving for his life were offered in the death-chamber." The funeral, on May 4th, was largely attended, friends and relatives from a distance being present besides many from his own town. Representatives of the Board of the Friends' Foreign Missionary Association and of the London Missionary Society were also present. One Friend, a York school fellow of H. E. Clark, "who was unable to attend, sent as his message the fitting stanzas : - " Servant of God ! well done ! Rest from thy lov'd employ ; The battle fought, the victory won Enter thy Master's joy. " Soldier of Christ, well done ! Praise be thy new employ. And while eternal ages run Rest in thy Saviour's joy."

Rachel was born on 22 Jul 1839 in Kirkstall, Leeds, Yorkshire, died on 25 Aug 1904 in Tananarive, Madagascar at age 65, and was buried in Tananarive, Madagascar. They had seven children: Edith Mary, Ethel Maria, William Ecroyd, Lilias Annie, Hannah Emmeline, Susan Emily, and Charles Henry.

General Notes: Rachel M. Clark, 65 25 8mo. 1904 Madagascar. Wife of Henry E. Clark. (This name appeared in last year's volume.) Rachel Maria Clark was bom at Kirkstall, near Leeds, on July 22nd, 1839. She was the eldest child of William and Ann Rowntree, and with her brothers and sisters passed a happy childhood almost beneath the shadow of the beautiful old Abbey of Kirkstall. In after years she loved to tell her children of the happy days in the old home, of the drives into Leeds to meeting on First and Fourth-day mornings, - nothing was allowed to interfere with this - and to Monthly Meetings; departures to, and happy returns from Ackworth School, until there came the first break in the hitherto united family circle, in the death of William Rowntree, in 1854. The next few years of R. M. Clark's life were mainly passed first as pupil and then as teacher in the York Quarterly Meeting's Girl's School at York, and in 1863, she, with her widowed mother, removed to Leeds, and in conjunction with one of her sisters commenced a school for boarders and day scholars. In 1866, her marriage with Henry E. Clark took place, and their home continued to be in Leeds until the call came, both to herself sind to her husband, to enter upon Foreign Mission work in Madagascar. This call came to each individually, some months before it was made known to the other; and when both became aware of this, almost by accident, it was naturally taken as a confirmation of the call. Their united offer of service in Madagascar was accepted by the Committee of the Friends' Foreign Missionary Association, and they sailed for that island, in company with their friend, the late William Johnson, and several other missionaries, early in the year 1871. Their two elder daughters were at that time too yoing to be left behind, and so accompanied their parents to Madagascar, where both of them subsequently became missionaries. Ann Rowntree early imbued her children with a deep love and reverence for the Holy Scriptures. This was as "seed sown on good ground," and impressions thus made in Rachel M. Clark's early years were never lost or forgotten, and when she arrived in Madagascar, and took up what may be almost called her life's work, they bore abundant fruit. That which she had received from her niother was by God's blessing increased and extended. and not only was she enabled to impress her own children in the same way, but in her lessons with the numerous Malagasy women who were taught by her, she was eminently successful in impressing them with much of the same love and reverence. At the present time there are many women in Tananarive and neighbourhood who testify to the impressive way in which she taught them the truths of Holy Scripture. She was an earnest Bible student herself, and it was her delight to teach it to others, and her one aim, whether teaching from the Old or the New Testament, was to lift up Christ before her hearers. There are some who well remember now the joy with which she used to look forward to and speak of these lessons, and her delight when she and her scholars had had some specially good time together. To the preparation of these lessons she devoted most earnest, careful and prayerful study. In one of her earliest reports (for 1875) she writes of her longing " that these lessons might be one means of leading her dear scholars to seek and copy the one true and great Example." From the year 1887, R. M. Clark and her husband made Doncaster their home, when in England on furlough, and in 1890 she was recorded a minister by Balby Monthly Meeting. In the Meeting at Doncaster she very frequently spoke and her loving ministry was much appreciated. She also occasionally spoke on her visits to other meetings. Her communications were never at great length, always with much feeling and with a very evident sense of responsibility. Her prayers were always of an exceedingly solemn character; she knew that she was representing the congregation, speaking to the Eternal and the Invisible, and she spoke accordingly. In the Mothers' Meeting at Doncaster and the local branch of the Missionary Helpers' Union also she was an earnest worker. She regularly attended, and always with great interest and joy, the Mission Meetings at Doncaster, and was always ready to take her share of service in them. Except when it was her turn to take the reading at these meetings, she generally sat near the bottom in order to be able to speak to the people as they dispersed; this she looked upon as a very important service. She visited regularly at the homes of the members and attenders of the meeting, and to many in Doncaster the news of her deatli brought the deepest sorrow, and many have testified to her influence on their hyes. Although twice prevented by family duties at home from being with her husband in Madagascar, R. M. Clark's love and thought for the Malagasy never failed, and though she had at one time thought that her work in that island was finished, when the call came again in 1903, through a request from the committee in London, and by two cables from the island, that she and her husband should go out again for a lengthened visit, at a time when help was very much needed, she obeyed the call, and there in the land where she had spent eighteen years, her life of devoted service came to an end. Not quite a year after their final arrival in Madagascar, Rachel M. Clark was taken ill with an attack of typhoid fever from which she never recovered. Her illness was long and very trying, lasting nearly three months, in the last week of which an attack of pneumonia terminated fatally on September 24th, 1904. The funeral took place on the morning of the 26th in the public cemetery, Tananarive, and was attended by a very large number of people; the coffin was carried to the grave by the teachers in the Ambohijatovo Friends' Boys' School, and by the workmen in the printing office of the Friends' Mission. Rachel M. Clark had a very humble estimate of her own attainments, and was very sensible of her short-comings, but she was still more sensible of her great salvation through the blood of Jesus. Her favourite text was Rev. vii. 9-17, which was placed on her tomb stone.

Noted events in her life were:

- She was educated at The Mount School in Jan 1855-Jun 1857 in York, Yorkshire.
- She worked as a Quaker Missionary in Madagascar.

13-Edith Mary Clark¹³³ was born on 10 Aug 1867 in Leeds, Yorkshire and died in Madagascar.

General Notes: Edith Mary Clark . . 46 8 1 1914 Doncaster. Died in Madagascar. On the 8th of January there passed away, in the capital of Madagascar, one who during the greater part of her lifetime had lived with and laboured for the Malagasy- our dear friend Edith Mary Clark. Born in Leeds in 1867, she went out, when only four years of age, with her parents, Henry Ecroyd and Rachel Maria Clark, who were then going for the first time as Missionaries to the Island of Madagascar. Her sister Ethel, who has also had a long Missionary experience, was one of the party, who left England in a sailing vessel, the "Sea Breeze"; and they were accompanied by William Johnson, who afterwards lost his life in the riots which followed the French invasion. He, too, was going out for the first time. Edith Clark's childhood being thus spent in the Island, and often cared for by Malagasy girls whilst her mother was busy with her classes, she grew up with a perfect mastery of the beautiful and sibilant language, enriched, as it is, with proverb and poetic suggestion, so dear to the hearts of the Malagasy people. Six years later, when Edith was ten years of age, her parents took their first furlough, and v/hen they returned to the Island, after a couple of years in England, their three elder children were to remain at home for education. Edith was to have been left behind as well, but her chest was so delicate that the doctors advise her return to a warmer climate, and so she went back with her parents in 1879, and from that time till her death in 1914 she continued to live in Madagascar, with only four intervals of furlough, each of about two years, spent in England. It will thus be seen that out of her life of 46 years only 14 were spent in her native land, so that she had exceptional opportunities of acquiring a unique knowledge of the people and their language and modes of thought. She also became proficient in French, which is now an absolute necessity since the occupation of the Island by the French Government. Her intimate knowledge of the two languages was of great value, notably so on the occasion of the visit of the F.F.M.A. Deputation last year, when her services as interpreter were often employed. In connection with Ambohitantely Church, which was under the care of Friends, was an infant school, and it was here that Edith Clark first engaged in the work of teaching, which was afterwards to occupy so much of her life. Some of her own early lessons had been learnt in Lucy Johnson's little class for the children of Missionaries. In 1887 Doncaster became the permanent home of E. M. C. and her parents when they were in England on furlough, and she there endeared herself to all who knew her. Her simple ministry in the Meetings was most acceptable, and went to the hearts of all. Her pastoral work, diligently visiting the members and attenders of the Meeting, as well as the poor and sick, was much blessed. Her love and care for little children were also great. The Missionary Helpers' Union Meetings had her deep interest, and very shortly before she finally left she invited all the members to tea in the Meeting-house schoolroom, and gave an earnest address. She was formally accepted as a Missionary of the F.F.M.A. in 1889, and took up work at the Girls' High School in the capital, remaining there, with intervals for furlough, till 1906, when she went into a country district. She was adored by the girls who came under her care during those years, and the way in which she remembered their names, and kept in touch with them, even after they had left school and were married and had families of their own, was simply wonderful. Hundreds must have been directly influenced by her for Christ. She never thought anything too much trouble for her Master or for the Malagasy, for v/hom she literally laid down her life. For some years she was associated with the late Henrietta Deane in the Girls' School at Faravohitra, whilst the Infants' School at Ambohitantely, where about half the children were slaves, was put under her special charge. Mrs Leavitt had recently visited Madagascar, and Temperance efforts, in school and out, were soon added to her other work, as well as Sunday School and weekly classes at different places in the near district, for women and girls, some of whom she describes at the time as " the dirtiest and most ignorant children " she had ever come across. In 1891 some special Meetings for the young were held in Tananarive. In these E. M. C. took deep interest, and she rejoiced over the awakening that followed in the Girls' School, whilst through the Christian Endeavour Society, and in other ways, she continued to watch over and help those who were exposed to so many and so great temptations. She took a great interest in the work of the native Bible Society, which distributes Bibles and Testaments in the distant parts of the Island, and much of her very scanty leisure was filled up with Hterary work, for which her perfect knowledge of the language specially fitted her. Many of her short stories, either translations or original compositions, have a very large sale. Some of the books are : " Lessons from the Acts of the Apostles," which is in use in nearly all the Protestant mission schools for younger children; "Talks on the Lord's Prayer; "Talks on the Ten Commandments ; " short lives of Moses, Paul, Joseph, etc., for children, sold at about one penny each, and numerous Temperance stories. At the time of her death she was engaged on a small book on the Prophets, but had only finished the first part when she was called away. In common with many other Missionaries in the capital, E. M. C. retired to the F.F.M.A. Hospital when Tananarive was taken by the French, and those who knew her best can well picture for themselves her quiet readiness to help all she could in that time of greatest need. In 1906 she took her first furlough, spending part of it in Paris to improve her French. On returning she again took charge of the Girls' School during Clara Herbert's furlough, and had also a dozen girls as boarders, daughters of teachers and Evangelists. The number of day scholars continued to increase, reaching 450, and in 1900 special meetings were again held with the object of leading them to decide for Christ, with considerable result. In 1904 she welcomed her first girl from the unenlightened Sakalava country. She had been brought several days' journey by her parents, with enough money to pay for her keep in advance for a whole year. Later, Edith Clark joined Henrietta Deane at Ambohimiadana, in the care of the "Near District," with its 18 churches, and she remarked : "After being a 'town missionary,' and residing in the capital during two terms of service, the more varied and difficult work of a country missionary 'could not but seem very strange to me." In 1910 she joined her younger sister, Ethel M. Clark, at Amboniriana. This has always been regarded as one of the most backward parts of the Friends' district, but at a recent Quarterly Meeting there, Ethel Clark writes under date December 2nd, 1913 :- " It was encouraging to hear the Malagasy themselves speak of the blessings of the Christian religion, and the changes which it had wrought in their lives and homes." In the same letter Ethel Clark says :- " My sister (Edith) has been poorly almost all the time since she returned from the capital in October, and with the third atta-ck of fever she had rheumatism, which made me anxious about her." Since going to the country districts she had had bad attacks of malarial fever, and they weakened her very much, her heart being already far from strong, as the result of two attacks of rheumatic fever in her younger days. In her work in the country she had never spared herself, and was most earnest in visiting in the homes of her people, and in itinerating work, the long rides in the palanguin tiring her very much. After three severe attacks of fever, accompanied by rheumatism, which came on in November, she was induced in December to go for rest and change to the Friends' Sanatorium. The weather, however, was very damp, and the rheumatism was increased; so, after a fortnight there, she returned to the capital, still hoping to be allowed to return to her district and rejoin her sister for Christmas. This, however, the doctors forbade her to do; she had to go to bed, and never again left it. She was unfailingly patient, and was constantly thinking of others even in her sickness and pain. The end came suddenly and unexpectedly, for she passed away in her sleep in the early morning hours of January 8th, 1914. The news of her death quickly spread throughout the capital and its suburbs, and her funeral on the 10th was attended by hundreds of natives, amongst whom were a very large number of her former scholars, who, with streaming eyes, followed her to her last earthly resting place in the same grave as her mother, who had died in the Island some years before. The whole Missionary community of the S.P.G., the L.M.S., the Norw^egian and French missions were also present. Of her it is literally true that " she being dead yet speaketh," both in the books she has left behind and in the memory of her beautiful, unselfish, humble and self-denying life. One of the deputation from the F.F.M.A. writes of her : - " It has been well pointed out by the Imerina District Committee of the L.M.S. that Miss Clark did not belong simply to one mission, but to all. She was a beloved Missionary and fellow-worker, and in a special manner, the sympathetic friend and helper of the Malagasy girls and women. The great service she was enabled to render to young and old in writing, translating, and editing books, etc., will be remembered for many years, and will form a fitting memorial of her self-denying and consecrated life. Her wish was fulfilled that she might die in the land of her adoption. ' ' Oh blessed waking, oh divine surprise, To see her Saviour with her opening eyes. To hear Him answer to her questioning word, 'Where am I?' with 'For ever with the Lord.''

General Notes: Joseph Firth Clark . . 80 6 1 1918 Doncaster. A Minister. Joseph Firth Clark was born at Doncaster in 1838. His parents traced their descent from a long line of Quaker ancestors. His brother, Henry Ecroyd Clark, carried the message of the Gospel to the people of Madagascar, and J. F. C. devoted his powers to the spread of the Redeemer's Kingdom at home. He dates his life -long interest in the Temperance question to a meeting which he attended when seven years old in company with his mother, at whose solicitation he signed the pledge. In some recollections of his early life he writes : - " I have that pledge book still. It contains the names of William Dent, my father and others of the early adherents to the cause. I have kept the pledge ever since, and it has been one of the great blessings of my life, all the more sacred as written for me by the hand of one who was taken from us two years afterwards. The date of the pledge is 1845." J. F. C. in the same autobiographical notes speaks of the fun the sisters and brother, nine in all, had in the fine old garden adjoining the house in Frenchgate, with its mulberry tree and other attractions. When 11 years old J. F. C. became an Ack- worth Scholar. His father drove him over in a gig. He tells us he spent four happy years there, and that he cannot sufficiently be thankful for the education given and the moral and religious training he received. He had a great reverence for Thomas Pumphrey, the superintendent. J. F. C. repaid with compound interest any benefits he received from Ackworth School. For 40 years he was a member of the Committee, and rarely a month passed without a visit to the School, when his sympathy, loving interest and business powers were freely placed at the disposal of the institution. In 1907 he was President of the Old Scholars' Association. In his address he says : - " My connection with Ackworth is hereditary as well as personal. My grandfather, John Clark, who died in the year of Waterloo (1815), my great-uncle, Joseph, and my father (who was a member of the Committee for a period of forty years), all took a deep interest in the welfare and j prosperity of the school. I am the last surviving * of six brothers, who were all educated here, and I have been a member of the Committee myself for over thirty years." J. F. C. finished his schooling at Bootham under John Ford, whose earnest and powerful addresses on Sunday evenings made a great impression on the boys. J. F. C. says : - " I have always been glad that at Ackworth and at Bootham we were made to learn off by heart long passages from Cowper and from Milton, which I have not forgotten, and which I am sure had a very good influence on our minds and thoughts." He was always fond of books, biographies having a special attraction for him. J. F. C. throughout his life was an enthusiasts worker in the Adult School. His first introduction to the work was at Nantwich, where for five years he was bound an apprentice to Samuet Harlock. The apostles of the new movement who fired his ardour were William White, Joseph Storrs Fry and John S. Rowntree. At Doncaster he made a practice of being early at School in order to greet with a warm handshake his fellow sholars. His genial loving spirit developed a fine spirit in the school and meeting, and this power of comradeship was very noticeable in the co-operative gatherings at Eastertime, where he and Joshua Rowntree were living illustrations of a saying of the latter "Social service follows automatically on spiritual aw^oning. as warmth flows from fire." After spending some time in Kendal, J. F. C. 1868, on the death of his father, joined the firm of Joseph Clark and Sons, whose tannery dates back to the year 1756. In 1878 J. F. C. married Sarah Anne, a daughter of the late James H. Barber, of Sheffield. The marriage proved an ideal one. The three surviving children were completely at one with their parents on the outbreak of the War, and the youngest son, Oswald, gladly upheld his strong love of peace, even though it entailed a long imprisonment. This same unflinching devotion to duty of conscience was a characteristic of J. F. C. Archdeacon Sandford, in an address he delivered at the funeral, spoke of the beautiful atmosphere this Christian home. But he pointed out that here strength and inspiration was gathered for unceasing work for his fellows. The list of activities which the Archdeacon enumerated was a striking one. The long services rendered by him to his native town included the Infirmary, Bible Society, British School, Rescue and Temperance Work, Adult School, Board of Guardians, Grammar School, Corporation, Magisterial Bench. J. F. C. never aimed at popularity, but diligently performed what he felt to be his duty. A noticeable illustration of this occurred in 1908, when he was occupying the post of Mayor for the second time. He received an invitation through the Rt. Hon. L. V. Harcourt to meet the King on the race course immediately after the St. Leger had been run. He felt compelled to decline the honour, and wrote in a strain which would be appreciated by our late broad-minded King, though the Conservative paper, in an otherwise sympathetic review of J. F. C.'s career, says : ' This was an incident for which many of the burgesses never forgave him, but which showed, nevertheless, the length to which he was prepared to go for principles he held dear, and for the sake of his convictions. The incident caused a great sensation at the time, and many people were little short of horrified that Doncaster's mayor should have declined to meet His Majesty." J.

F. C.'s letter was as follows : " It would indeed have been a great honour, which I should have looked back upon all my life with the greatest gratification, as I have a profound respect and regard for our most gracious King, whom I desire to honour in every way as one of his most loyal subjects. Though I have lived in Doncaster all my life, I have never once attended the races, and did not therefore feel that I could consistently break through the rule even for so great an honour." J. F. C. was a recorded minister for many years. His simple evangelical message was commended by his life, and so found ready acceptance. On his memorial cards were the words " I determined not to know anything among you but Jesus Christ and Him crucified." On the last Sunday morning before his death he quoted John xiv. 1 and 2, " Let not your heart be troubled." He recalled the fact that his father's last message to the meeting, 50 years before, had been from this text, and " then" says one who was present : " Raising himself up with power and force, he passed on the message to those present, To all this message comes with help and power in these dark times ; let us believe in the power of the Lord Jesus Christ to save and to help and to comfort.' " Four days before his death J. F. C. with two other Friends was engaged in drawing up a report of the state of the Doncaster meeting. The following sentence appeared in this report : - " We have rejoiced of late in the loving helpfulness and kindly forbearance shown one to another.' 'This was largely the result of his own personal influence. One of his fellow -members writes of him : "How he watched over the meeting, took a personal interest in each one, young or old. None were neglected. How he visited the sick, how concerned he was with the ministry of every kind, and most of all how he longed for and rejoiced in any evidence of the fruits of the Spirit being shown in our daily work-a-day lives." J. F. C. was present at the Ackworth Committee on January 1st. Two days afterwards he had

ECROYD.— On May 20th, at Artana, Provincia de Castellon, Spain, Alfred Russell Ecroyd (1856-60), aged JJ yyears.

Noted events in his life were:

- He was educated at Bootham School in 1856-1860 in York, Yorkshire.
- He worked as a Steel Manufacturer in Sheffield, Yorkshire.
- He had a residence in Spain.

Alfred married Hannah Maria Neild,^{18,20} daughter of Isaac Neild^{18,59} and Hannah Thorp,^{18,59} on 13 Jan 1870 in Wilmslow, Cheshire. Hannah was born on 17 Mar 1839 in Greenheys, Manchester, died on 26 Apr 1915 in Chelston, Torquay, Devon at age 76, and was buried in FBG Torquay. They had five children: Russell, Ethel Mary, Wilfrid Thorp, Cuthbert Wigham, and Alfreda Maria.

General Notes: Hannah Maria Ecroyd . . 76 26 4 1915 Chelston, Torquay. Wife of Alfred Russell Ecroyd. A Minister. Hannah Maria, the fourth child of Isaac and Hannah Neild, was born in 1839. Her father was of an old Cheshire family, which included James Neild, the prison philanthropist, members of which joined the Society in its early days. Her mother was a sister of Joseph Thorp, for some years Clerk of the Yearly Meeting, and still remembered for his Temperance work. Her parents, Isaac and Hannah Neild, who were members of Manchester Meeting at the time of the Beaconite Controversy, resigned their membership at the same time as Isaac Crewdson, William Neild, and others in 1836. Consequently Hannah Maria was not a Friend by birth. Isaac Neild, by profession an accountant in Manchester, conducted for many years, first mainly among the poor, gospel services at Cheadle; this led up to the establishment of a vigorous Congregational Church. After his death, however, Hannah Neild rejoined the Society, and five of her children, including Hannah Maria, were also admitted into membership. One of her brothers writes of her early life :- " She was high-spirited, had a good deal, of initiative, was always bright, and made the best of things, often with a playful remark. She was the next elder sister to three boys, over whom she exercised a very trustworthy but companionable elder sister's care. She went to a day school for some years, then to a boarding- school, and the Mechanics' Institute in Manchester, but mother wit was always more with her than book-learning." Her many natural gifts were very early and definitely consecrated to the service of God and her fellows, and this in spite of her inborn himility and self-distrust, shown in the following story of her childhood : - "What are "you good at ?" asked an old family friend of some of the children. " Oh, I'm good at geography," replied one brother with boyish readiness. "And thou, Maria ? " to which the girl answered with drooping head, "I'm good at nothing.:" Another brother remarks . - " From a child H. M. Ecroyd was of a singularly hopeful and helpful disposition, and the Graces of the Spirit rested upon her so as to commend the Gospel of her Saviour to her three younger brothers and sister who feel that to her good influence they owe much." The formation of a Band of Hope in Cheadle early led to her taking an active part in Temperance work when quite young, and this branch of Christian service became her life-work. After leaving school H. M. Neild filled a useful place as governess in well-known families near Manchester, two or three prominent Man- chester men of to-day having been her pupils. She also taught in a Friend's family at Bradford, where she joined the Society of Friends in 1869. She was married the following year to Alfred R. Ecroyd, then of Sheffield. For about six years she filled a very useful place as Overseer in that Meeting. Her sister-in-law, Mary Ecroyd, herself an acknowledged Minister, recognizing shortly before her death in 1877 that H. M. Ecroyd possessed an undoubted gift in the Ministry. encouraged her to use it. Soon afterwards she began to speak in Meeting, and was recorded a Minister by Balby Monthly Meeting in 1884. About this time also she began to address Temperance gatherings, her first step in this direction being when she was persuaded to fill the gap caused by a London speaker, Mrs Hind-Smith, having missed her train. She was thus one of the founders of the Sheffield Women's Temperance Association, on the committee of which she was an earnest worker until she left that city in 1890. During this period she was also an active member of the Executive of the local Gospel Temperance Union, speaking frequently in all parts of the city. After a six weeks' Mission, during which some ten thousand pledges were taken, she was one of the speakers at the closing demonstration to a crowded audience in the largest hall in Sheffield. The intense pathos of her vitterances was very marked in tier Temperance addresses, and also to some extent when speaking in Meetings for worship. She was exceedingly rich in illustration, speaking of the things which she had herself seen and known. From 1887 to 1892 she was one of the two lady representatives of the United Kingdom Alliance, and during the two following years, was a speaker and organizer on behalf of the Women's Total Abstinence Union. In the ten years ending 1894 she addressed over a thousand Meetings in more than a hundred and fifty places in Great Britain and Ireland, sometimes addressing as many as five in one day. She was in great request as a speaker in drawing-room Meetings, but always preferred speaking to large gatherings of the working classes. In London she addressed a drawing-room meeting at Dr. Clifford's on the legislative aspect of Temperance, her audience of sixty being all Nonconformist Ministers and their wives. A Birmingham Friend writes ; - " My recollection of H. M. Ecroyd is that of a most effective and thrilling speaker. I remember being with her in 1892 in some shop meetings, where she held the attention of the girls as few could have done." She had opportunities of speaking to the prisoners in Dublin and Glasgow. In the last-named city and neighbourhood she addressed eighteen meetings in the latter half of January, 1890. The "Greenock Herald" reported her as saying :- "I remember the first time my little boy saw a drunken woman. 'Mother,' he said, 'do you think she has any little children ? Because if she has, you must bring them home to our nursery.' My boy, child as he was, and surely God speaks to us through our little ones, saw that a woman who takes drink is not fit to take charge of a baby," and then the journalist continued : - " This is a very plain and simple story and yet to hear Mrs Ecroyd tell it at the Women's Temperance Meeting was a lesson in oratory. It is the opinion of several of the gentlemen present that for touching and inexpressive speech it would be hard to find that lady's equal." A Biblewoinan who was associated with her in Sheffield says : - " Not a few were won for Christ both in the Bible Class and Mothers' Meeting, and quite a number have passed away to the higher life blessing the name of Hannah Maria Ecroyd." This was the class to which on leaving Sheffield she penned the following farewell verses ; - " One is your Master, even Christ." "Father, I will, that those whom Thou hast given Me, be with Me, where I am." Often has our Saviour's blessing Been our happy portion here, When on highest themes discoursing, Christ Himself has drawn so near. Trust more fully for the future, Christ your Leader still shall cheer. Leading still to greenest pasture And to rivers pure and clear. Christ your stay in life's rough battle, When the world and self combine, To destroy your faith's true vision Of the sacrifice divine. Yet I long O dearly loved ones, God's ambassador to be. Pleading still with one who wanders - Christ hath surely died for thee. Pardon, peace, a full salvation. In God's name I offer thee, So, for thee, "no condemnation," Pure in heart, thou God shalt see. Still my words, though weak, would linger On the one atonement made, On the offering, sacrificial. Freely on God's altar laid. Ponder well this wondrous lesson, God's appointed loving plan, When to save the lost, the ruined, Christ became the Son of Man. Ma^y each name within our class-book On our gladsome hearing fall. When the book of life is opened, When we hear the great roll-call. Washed each robe in that blest-fountain. Opened once for sin and shame. Join we all in praise perennial. Worshipping the Lamb once slain. Join we all in that blest chorus Pealing through our Father's home ; Blessing, glory, wisdom, power Be to God, to Him alone. In 1890, the fauiily removed to Liverpool, where she devoted herself almost exclusively to Temperance propaganda in that city and elsewhere. A Dutch co-worker in Liverpool says of her: - " The world is the poorer for her departure. She was one of the loveliest souls I ever came in contact with. She was loved by all who knew her, and her beautiful life is always with us. The Master will say - 'She hath done what she could.'" At the close of 1894, H. M. Ecroyd went to Spain, where her husband and two of her sons had preceded her. Here she resided for fifteen years, and made her influence felt by example and quiet talks on religious and temperance subjects with the natives. Their house was two miles from any other, but, during their residence there, thousands of people used to toil up the rough path to visit them in their mountain home. It was indeed touching to see how greatly she was beloved by the peasantry, who delighted to call at the house, where, after a warm welcome, they were shown the novelties of an English home, regaled with a cup of coffee, and inspirited by a bright and kindly smile. One poor woman exclaimed, after listening to an explanation of some Protestant views : - " Oh, I see the difference now, your religion is inside, and ours is outside." As one result of their united efforts the first Temperance organization in Spain was started soon after she left, and is still flourishing. Whilst living in this ultra Roman Catholic country, H. M. Ecroyd became increasingly alive to the evils of Roman Catholicism, and after returning to England was constant in seeking to open people's eyes to the insidious advances by which that form of religion is propagated. A few years after her going to Spain, her eldest son began business in the neighbouring city of Castellon, and much valued the home he obtained during his frequent week-end visits. Her younger daughter had already joined them, and her other children, one daughter-in-law and three brothers all came to see her in this foreign land, and were struck by the way in which her bright, cheerful spirit overcame what to others at her age might have appeared discomforts. She really enjoyed the simplicity of the rural life, the walks among the mountains, the visits to neighbouring villages, and the long evenings, generally spent in sewing or reading. Her loving letters to absent children and other relatives, were always full of interesting details of home life and family news, and her birthday and Christmas letters are specially treasured. During this period she paid three visits to the home-land, attending Yearly Meeting each time, and was able to be at the weddings of two of her sons, which would have been sadly incomplete without their mother's presence. With increasing years, however, she felt it better to return to England, and settled in Torquay in 1910. The following extracts are taken from the Testimony of Devon and Cornwall Quarterly Meeting : - " Our dear friend was filled with love and hope for even the lowest and most degraded, the outcast seemed to appeal specially to her sympathy, and she was always ready to spend and be spent on their behalf " Our friend's ministry was felt to be help- ful and inspiring, always seeking to lift us up, and draw us close to the Source of all good. A special characteristic of her ministry was that she constantly sought to magnify her Saviour in His redeeming work. " She was universally beloved for her sweet and humble spirit, always willing to take the lowest place, and seeking to draw others to Christ who was to her so exceedingly precious. "Her long illness was accompanied by much weariness, but through all she was sustained by the love and presence of her Saviour, and shortly before she passed away, she quoted the verse : 'Surely goodness and mercy have followed me all the days of my life." On a beautiful spring day her remains were laid to rest in the Torquay Cemetery, and among the large number who gathered were many Friends and representatives of the local Women's Total Abstinence Union, the Good Templars, and other societies with which she had been connected. She was much beloved by the tradespeople who had served the family for the last five years, as was shown by the expression of the Chelston Postmaster : - Her face was the face of an Angel,' which will be endorsed by all who knew her. Numerous letters of sympathy and regret from England, Spain, and elsewhere bear witness to the saintliness of her character and the value of her work. We conclude with four letters from writers of different Christian denominations, which show how widely she was appreciated by others outside the Society of Friends. The first thus alludes to words on her memorial card : - " The splendid record for good works that she had left behind will endear her memory to all who knew her. Her example has, I know, been an example to many in the past to follow in her footsteps, and I feel that she will indeed 'dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.' "A colleague in the local W.T.A.U. declares : - " Dear Mrs Ecroyd's patient, loving gentle-ness was an example to us all, she was always sweet, and one could not help loving her. It will be hard to fill her place, for there are few so enthusiastic as she was in her work, and in her earnestness to do all the good that came in her way." A Sheffield co-worker in the eighties writes : - "You and we may be thankful beyond words when thinking of the blessed life of your wife. Her path was more than the path of the just. It was the path of the generous, the merciful, the gracious - of self-surrender, of faith, hope, and love." The following is part of a long letter from an aged Congregational minister now in London ; - "A host of Christians like myself have had to thank God for many a wise word spoken and a life lived so pure and true that we were inspired to listen to the voice of the Master, and to labour with greater fervour for the incoming of the kingdom of Righteousness and Love and Peace. I shall never forget the addresses which the loved one gave in the Friends' School at Hartshead (Sheffield) and elsewhere. They illumined life, they strengthened the soul, they made Christ more precious, they made God seem more real - they influenced many of us so that we prayed God to give us the pure heart so that we might see Him. I have constantly hoped that I might again listen to words that she would speak, for she walked with God."

- General Notes: Richard Ecroyd Clark. 87 3 3 1916 Doncaster. An Elder.

The death of Richard Ecroyd Clark is a distinct loss to the Society of Friends, of which he was throughout life a consistent member, and to the town of Doncaster, where for half a century he took a prominent part in local and municipal affairs. He was born in 1828 at Oakham, in Rutland-shire, but when he was only three years old his father, William Clark, removed with his family to Doncaster, so that practically his whole life was associated with that town. He was educated, first at a school in Doncaster, then for some years at Bootham, completing his scholastic life at a private school at Hitchin, then conducted by the late Isaac Brown. After a period of continental travel he entered his father's office, later joining his uncles in their grocery business, and, finally setting up as a stockbroker, in which profession he succeeded in building up a large and valuable connexion. He had striking mathematical abilities, and his clear insight and cool, calculating business instincts made him eminently suited for the profession of his adoption. He married his cousin, Hannah, daughter of the late Joseph Clark, and this marriage was a supremely happy one. He felt her death, some years ago, most deeply, but through this and other of life's trials, he ever showed resignation and absolute willingness to submit himself unreservedly to the will of God. He filled various offices of influence in the Society of Friends, being for many years a valued Elder, and for some time Assistant Clerk and then Clerk to Yorkshire Quarterly Meeting. He also served for long as a Director of the Friends' Provident Institution. Always greatly interested in Education, he was a member of the Committees of Bootham and The Mount Schools. In Meetings for Worship and Discipline he was an earnest and impressive speaker, and a man of exceptionally sound judgment. His gift in vocal Ministry was much appreciated, but he would never give his consent to having it "acknowledged." His addresses were simple, earnest and impressive, and his acceptance of the Bible as an inspired revelation of the Divine Will, together with his belief in the Deity of the Lord Jesus Christ, His atoning sacrifice and High Priesthood, were dwelt upon with great power. For more than thirty years R. E. Clark conducted a Bible Class for women, maintaining this service for eleven years after his wife's decease. He attended this class to within a fortnight of his death, and the bond of attachment between him and the members was deep, warm and enthusiastic. In conjunction with his brother-in-law, Henry Ecroyd Clark, he commenced a men's Adult School, about the year 1860; this is still in existence, and has proved a great blessing to the town and neighbourhood. After his death, one of the local papers spoke of him as the "Grand Old Man" of Doncaster, and went on to say that he was " perhaps the most brilliant and able man who ever placed his remarkable abilities at the service of his fellow townsmen. He spent nearly half a life-time in public work. He filled the office of Chief Magistrate on two occasions, the first in 1860, and again in 1880, retiring in 1888, to the regret of the whole borough. He occupied for many years a seat on the Aldermanic bench, and was chairman of the Finance Committee. He had been for many years chairman of the Licensing Bench, and only a year ago attended the Court as usual. He took a great interest in the work of the Charity Trustees, over which he presided, and was also Chairman of the Governors of the Grammar School." A mere list of his services to what was practically his native town would occupy more space than we have at command, but we may specially allude to his successful efforts to obtain a good water supply for Doncaster, to the way in which he placed his great financial abilities at the service of his fellow townsmen, and to his consistent support of so many local charities. Archaeology was one of Richard Ecroyd Clark's favourite pursuits; old books, ancient documents, faded church registers, he revelled in. When he was a young man he would tramp many miles to examine the registers of country churches. During all the earlier years of his life he was a staunch Liberal in politics, but at the great Home Rule split he became a Unionist, and his services to that party, especially his powerful platform advocacy, were greatly valued. As might be expected, his funeral was very largely attended, and representatives were present from the numerous local bodies with which he had been so long associated, whilst, in spite of the very inclement weather, the members of his women's Bible Class were there in large numbers. The service at the grave-side was necessarily brief, for a heavy snowstorm was raging, and it was a very cold day, but Frederick Andrews, Headmaster of Ackworth School, in a short address, alluded to the combination of sweetness and strength in R. E. Clark's character. Some Christians, he said, did not bring the thought of God wholly into their lives, but they knew that their friend, both in the counting-house and in his public work, in the home and in the quiet of that Meeting House, had the thought of God ever before him. Amongst the addresses afterwards given in the Meeting House was one by Archdeacon Sandford, who, speaking from the body of the meeting, said he had been attracted by R.E.C.'s personality when he first came to Doncaster, and the more he saw of him the more he revered and loved him. He did not think it was possible for anyone to be in his presence for a moment without feeling the strong power of his Christian influence. He was endowed by God with great mental gifts, and was a man of infinite value to the common life of the town, and one who led in many of its most worthy enterprises. Yet they could not sorrow as men without hope, for they knew he had entered into Life Eternal, and that God would give him opportunities of higher usefulness in the great life upon which he had entered. The inspiration of R.E.C.'s life would live in that place for many a long day, and they all had occasion to thank God for the wonderful gifts which fructified in the life and conversation of their dear departed friend.

12-William Farrer Ecroyd^{5,12,42,44,82,87,107} was born on 14 Jul 1827 in Lomeshaye, Marsden, Burnley, Lancashire, died on 9 Nov 1915 in Credenhill Park, Hereford, Herefordshire at age 88, and was buried on 11 Nov 1915 in Credenhill, Herefordshire.

General Notes: Of Lomeshay, Lancs. and of Credenhill Park,, Hereford. JP DL Lord of the manor of Credenhill and of Whitbarrow Lodge, Westmorland, (Cumbria). Contested Carlisle 1874; NE Lancs 1885; MP for Preston 1881-85; and Rossendale 1885.

Ecroyd, William Farrer (1827–1915), worsted manufacturer and politician, was born on 14 July 1827, at Lomeshaye, near Burnley, Lancashire, the first of the four children of William Ecroyd (1796–1876), worsted spinner, and his second wife, Margaret (1797–1835), the eldest daughter of William Farrer, a farmer at Wythmoor, Kendal, and his wife, Mary. Yeomen in origin (their ancestry was traced back to the fourteenth century by Ecroyd's second son, the historian William Farrer), the Ecroyds became members of the Society of Friends in the 1680s. They added further small estates to their existing property in the early eighteenth century, and in 1747 set up the worsted spinning and weaving firm at Edgend, moving in 1780 to Lomeshaye, where the family was to continue to run the firm until 1933.

Educated at Lower Bank Academy, Blackburn, Ecroyd went on in 1837 to the Quaker Ackworth School before joining the family firm in 1841. Having learned the trade under his father, a good-humoured, fat, and communicative mill owner, Ecroyd was made a partner in 1849. This was a period of rapid growth and prosperity for the firm, as it extended its manufacturing capacity to over 3000 looms, and its workforce to about 1250. By the 1860s, it was one of the few remaining houses producing soft woollen fabrics in 150 varieties for the home and foreign trade. Imbued with a strong religious sense of the stewardship of wealth, Ecroyd was involved in a wide range of activities designed to improve the condition of the workpeople and to mollify the embittered industrial relations which had marked north-east Lancashire in the early 1850s. He ensured that the Lomeshaye mills were equipped with healthy, well ventilated rooms and provided dining-rooms, a sick club, a mill library, and half-time schools. He was widely esteemed not only for his business sense but his upright conduct, fair dealing with the workforce, and unselfish actions. However, Ecroyd's broadening theological vision, derived from Kingsley, Maurice, and Arnold, increasingly separated him from his father and from the narrow tenets of the Quakers, which he now believed inhibited the proper Christian endeavours of employers. In 1851 Ecroyd had married, within the Society of Friends, Mary (d. 1867), daughter of Thomas Backhouse of York, a railway and bank director with strong botanical interests; they had three sons and six daughters. Following his second marriage in 1869 to the Baptist Anna Maria (1831–1913), daughter of another local employer George Foster (once a partner of Cobden and a strong free trader), Ecroyd and his wife continued to attend Quaker meetings but he was to renounce formally his membership of the Society of Friends following his father's death.

Having abandoned his family's Quakerism, Ecroyd also abandoned its Liberalism, standing unsuccessfully for parliament in 1874 as Conservative candidate for Carlisle, upholding in politics the Church of England principles which he had now embraced. He also spoke widely on behalf of denominational education and served on the executive of the National Educational Union from 1875 to 1879. His political views, however, were to move in less conventional directions by the later 1870s, when the worsted industry began to suffer more than most from the impact of foreign, especially French, competition. Ecroyd, a member of the Anti-Corn Law League as a youth and a keen reader of political economy, now became one of the more thoughtful critics of free trade and the most articulate exponent of the alternative creed of 'fair trade'. In 1879 he composed its leading tract, The Policy of Self-Help, arguing that Britain's policy of free trade would only be reciprocated by other nations if Britain herself imposed import duties both on foreign wheat and manufactured imports. At the same time, free imports from the colonies would strengthen the empire (on the federal model of the United States) and help prevent Britain's decline to the rank of third-rate power.

Ecroyd stood unsuccessfully on this platform ('Ecroydism' as his opponent Lord Hartington called it) in North-East Lancashire in 1880 but won a dramatic by-election victory at Preston in 1881. 'Fair trade' was now at its peak and, with several spokesmen in the House of Commons, was able to bring considerable pressure to bear during the unsuccessful renegotiation of the Anglo-French commercial (Cobden) treaty of 1880–82. Ecroyd did not defend Preston in 1885 (on grounds of ill health) but did unsuccessfully oppose Hartington in the Rossendale division of Lancashire. He was not to stand again but in 1885 he was appointed by Lord Salisbury to the royal commission on the depression in trade and industry, which provided the most effective outlet for the 'fair trade' analysis of the British economy in the later nineteenth century. Ecroyd himself dropped from the forefront of this movement after 1886 but its central strands were to be taken up by Chamberlain, with Ecroyd's warm encouragement and approval, in his advocacy of tariff reform in 1903. Ecroyd was ready to campaign locally for tariff reform and reputedly wrote several tariff reform pamphlets.

After 1886 Ecroyd moved back from the national scene to the family firm, and increasingly to the Herefordshire estate at Credenhill which he had acquired in 1880. There he devoted himself to agriculture but also to replicating in the countryside the paternalism he had first practised in the town, erecting model dwellings and new schools, taking over the patronage of and restoring the local church, rebuilding the parsonage, and aiding the Revd Charles Henry Bulmer in his campaign against the adulteration of cider. Yet Ecroyd still spent much time in Lancashire, and at his estate at Whitbarrow in Westmorland. Having overseen the reconstruction of the family firm on limited liability lines in 1896, he remained nominally its chairman until his death, but increasingly withdrew from its affairs. By the standards of its time, it was now only a modestly sized enterprise and Ecroyd's own fortune probably owed more to prudent speculation in overseas railways than to his industrial shareholdings. In 1896 he commemorated over fifty years' service with a retirement address on the duties of employers (A Few Words to the Workers at Lomeshaye Mills, 1896), with the factory evoked more as a site of moral training than of profit-making. His own practice of such duties had been exemplary, not only within his factory but in his providing the adjoining town of Nelson with schools, a new Anglican church (St Mary's) in 1884, and generous support of Burnley Hospital. He also acted as JP in both Lancashire and Herefordshire and was deputy lieutenant of Herefordshire.

An invalid in later years, Ecroyd died at Credenhill on 9 November 1915, and was buried there on 11 November. Between the 1850s and 1880s he had been a frequent traveller in Europe, and in England, a keen admirer of natural beauty, much influenced by Wordsworth. Ecroyd's own interest in history (he believed his name was derived from the Mercian King Croyda, also providing the derivation of Credenhill, which itself abutted Offa's Dyke) was taken up by his sons, while his eldest son Thomas Backhouse Ecroyd (1857–1945) took over the declining firm. Part of the Credenhill estate later became home to the Special Air Service.

General Notes: Sir Alfred Edward Pease Bt., writing in his diary, 15th October 1905, whilst on board the RMS Carpathia, (she who saved so many of the Titanic, years later), wrote of Thomas Backhouse Ecroyd.... "The fourth was a deaf & dumb man, Thos B. Ecroyd, a son of [William Farrer] Ecroyd who was in the H of C, a Quaker family – his mother was a Backhouse & he knew many of my relations & also Sir R. N. Fowler – he was a good sample of a man who in spite of his being deaf & Dumb was happy, contented & making the best of his talents – he wrote English. French, Spanish easily, is married, has 3 children & is on his own showing the one active partner of the name in the family business of Cotton Spinning – he travels alone & takes an interest in all that goes on. -----/ As it happens, AEP and TBE were twice fifth cousins, had they but known it at that time. They were fifth cousins by mutual descent from the marriage of Thomas Richardson to Mary Mayson and ditto, by mutual descent from the marriage of William Richardson to Elizabeth Wilson. Charles E. G. Pease August 2013

Noted events in his life were:

• He worked as a Lord of the Manors of Credenhill, and Armathwaite with Nunclose and Ainstable, Cumbria.

14-William Edward Bedingfield Ecrovd was born in 1901, died on 20 Jan 1951 in Northumberland at age 50, and was buried on 23 Jan 1951 in Hesket in the Forest, Cumbria.

15-Edward Peter Ecrovd was born on 24 Nov 1932 and died on 27 Sep 2002 in Low House, Armathwaite Estate, High Hesket, Cumbria at age 69.

General Notes: COUNTRYMAN and landowner Edward Peter Ecroyd, who helped improve conditions for all River Eden fishermen has died, aged 70. Mr. Ecroyd, of Low House, Armathwaite, who was known all his life as Peter, was born on 24th November, 1932, the son of W. E. B (Toby) Ecroyd and Iris Bloxsome Ecroyd. He went to prep school near Bagshot and then on to Harrow. He did his national service with the Royal Artillery, after which he studied estate management at the Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester, before returning to Cumbria to take over the running of the family estate at Armathwaite which he had inherited on the premature death of his father in 1951. THREE CHILDREN

In 1957, he married Felicity Graham Roberts and they had three children. His whole life was centred on the countryside, including agricultural, forestry and sporting matters, and he strove constantly to improve the agricultural and residential properties on the 1,800-acre Low House Estate. Forestry was another of his great loves and about 400 acres of trees were planted on the estate.

Because of his deep interest in fishery matters, and the River Eden in particular, he sat on various committees dealing with fisheries at local, regional and national levels for many years from the early 1970s, including serving as chairman of the River Eden and District Fisheries Association and subsequently becoming president. He also became vice-chairman of the Salmon and Trout Association, having sat on the council and numerous committees for a number of years. Mr. Ecroyd was founder and initial chairman of the Eden Owners' Association whose strenuous efforts led to the buyout of the boating rights on the bottom beats of the river and some netting rights on the Solway, thus significantly reducing the netting of salmon and sea trout and helping enormously to improve conditions for all River Eden fishermen. He was also a lifelong member of the Country Landowners Association (CLA) now the Country Land and Business Association. He served as both chairman and president of the Cumberland branch and sat on the CLA council.

As well as being a true countryman, he was very religious, being patron of the livings of Armathwaite and Ainstable and shared patron of Hesket-in-the-Forest. He was also Eden area chairman of the Carlisle Cathedral Appeal in the early 1980s and continued to support the cathedral in subsequent fund-raising. HIGH SHERIFF

He was appointed High Sheriff of Cumbria in 1984 and served for many years as a General Commissioner for Income Tax.

Until recently, his main recreations were fishing and shooting, at which he excelled. He drew immense pleasure and satisfaction in organising his shooting syndicate, which he had run for the past 43 years.

Mr. Ecroyd, who died suddenly at home, is survived by his wife Felicity, a former Carlisle city councillor, son Charles and daughters Emma and Susanna, and five grandchildren. The funeral takes place at the Church of Christ and St. Mary, Armathwaite, on Monday at 11-30am.

Noted events in his life were:

• He worked as a High Sheriff of Cumbria in 1984.

General Notes: Given as "Hilton" Laurence Slingsby in the book "Into the silence", which appears to be erroneous.------The Times on Monday August 27 1917

The Times on Monday August 27 1917 LIEUTENANT and ADJUTANT HENRY LAURENCE SLINGSBY, M.C., K.O.York L.I., attached Duke of Cornwall's L.I., who died of wounds on August 11, aged 24, was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Cecil Slingsby of Beetham House, Milnthorpe, Westmorland. He was educated at Eastman's, Southsea, and Charterhouse, and received a commission in the Special Reserve in February 1913. He went to the front early in August, 1914, and was all through the first six months of the fighting, receiving his Regular commission in October, 1914, and being mentioned in one of Lord French's early dispatches. He was badly wounded in February 1915, and was promoted lieutenant about the same time. His Captain (soon after killed) wrote:- "He was my right hand in the company..... I cannot speak too highly of your boy's work.... His experience in the war was invaluable to us all, and I had to rely on him to a great extent. Besides doing his duty steadily and regularly at all times, he was always active and resourceful in devising means of worrying the enemy, and kept the men up to the mark by his bearing and example under fire and gained their admiration and respect.... On many occassions he has displayed great gallantry.... He took good care of the men and was very popular with them." In May 1916, Lieutenant Slingsby was appointed adjutant to a Service battalion of the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry. He was lately awarded the Military Cross.

Noted events in his life were:

- He was awarded with MC.
- He worked as an Officer of the 2nd Battalion King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry.

15-Jocelin Slingsby Winthrop-Young was born on 25 Oct 1919 in Heversham, Cumbria and died on 8 Feb 2012 in Heiligenberg, Germany at age 92.

General Notes: JOCELIN Slingsby Winthrop-Young sailed with HRH the Duke of Edinburgh at the outset of the Gordonstoun Coast Guards Service; was a keen musician; a respected educationalist; a naval officer who saw action on D-Day, later serving in the Far East; a one-time news department officer in the Foreign Office; a disciple of Kurt Hahn and a chess player with an interest in travel, politics and democracy. The son of Geoffrey Winthrop-Young, the highly-respected mountaineer and educationalist (and a foremost HM inspector of schools and one-time Alpine Club president), Jocelin was, above all, a man devoted to his friends and family with a lifelong interest in history and contemporary politics.

By birth, Geoffrey and Jocelin were linked into an extraordinary network of families and friends, including the Trevelyans, Arnolds, Arnold-Forsters and Huxleys. While HRH the Duke of Edinburgh was a contemporary, his rather wider Gordonstoun contacts included members of the Byatt, Campbell, Packard and Crole families, as also Peter Carpenter, founder of the Kurt Hahn Trust and a close friend of my late parents, and Prince Max von Baden.

Geoffrey Winthrop-Young is credited with close involvement in the appointments of governors in the early years of Gordonstoun. Educated at Salem and later private tutor to Crown Prince Constantine, Jocelin was, however, no elitist but rather an educationalist with a concern to ensure the offering of scholarships by schools, a life-long promoter to "all nature and condition of men" of the Gordonstoun ethic, the philosophy of Hahn and the Plus est en vous (the Gordonstoun motto).

At one stage, given just five minutes by the determined and persuasive Hahn to decide whether he wanted to go to Greece to open a "Hahnian" school there, Jocelin became private tutor to Constantine and then, in 1949, co-founder and head of Anavryta School near Athens, set up following the ideals and guidelines of Salem and Gordonstoun. He founded and set up the Kurt Hahn Archives in Salem in 1965. In 1966, he founded that which was to be the most lasting of legacies, the Round Square, privileged to have HM the King Constantine as president and HRH the Duke of York as patron, and from which educationalists across the world have learned, continue to learn, and must equally continue to learn, much.

He was a man who believed in the importance of discussion as much as did Hahn in persuasion.

Round Square is a worldwide association of schools which share a commitment beyond academic excellence to personal development and responsibility. Jocelin had one key, profound and significant belief, over and above the aims and ideals of Hahn. While Hahn believed students of different nations co-operating in acts of service would help remove prejudice, Jocelin believed schools also needed to encourage the understanding of students' basic differences in order to gain enrichment from their varied cultures and mentality.

Bishop's College found the correct formula many years later in a conference it named "Celebrating differences".

Jocelin retired in 1985 and continued to be sought after for interviews about education and Hahn. Also sought were his views on United World Colleges, the Duke of Edinburgh's Award and Outward Bound, given his interest in the courses run by each.

And so one must revert to a legacy so cherished by many young and middle-aged pupils of both recent and more distant decades: giving children the chance to discover themselves; allowing children to experience both success and defeat; providing periods of silence; training the imagination, the ability to anticipate and plan; taking sports and games seriously, but only as a part of the whole; and freeing the children of rich and influential parents from the paralysing influence of privilege. Hahn's obituary in The Times stated: "No one else in our day has created more original ideas and at the same time possessed the gift of getting them into practice." Getting them into practice – and on a scale Hahn might never have imagined – was achieved by Jocelin with his Round Square, United World Colleges, Outward Bound and Duke of Edinburgh's Award colleagues.

Such encouragement of pro-social behaviour chimes strongly with the work of the Royal Society of Arts and Goodison Group in Scotland with which I am involved in significant and peripheral measure respectively.

Jocelin's distinctive encouragement of, and engagement with, young people is something many in our troubled world should emulate, and soon. It is, surely, the urgent and lasting duty of each and every one of us to cherish and nurture future generations – be they among the less advantaged or the young emerging future leaders of all creeds and nationalities.

Should that famous Gordonstoun Plus est en vous? be extended to those of us not educated at Gordonstoun so that we may practice Plus est en nous? Jocelin is survived by his three children: Mark, Sophie and Geoffrey. He and his first wife, Countess Ghislaine de la Gardie were divorced in 1974. She died in 1987. His second wife, Countess Sibylle von der Schulenburg, died in 1998.

13-William Farrer^{5,107} was born on 28 Feb 1861 in Little Marsden, Burnley, Lancashire and died on 17 Aug 1924 in Forsjord, Mosjoën, Norway at age 63. Another name for William was William Ecroyd.

General Notes: Mr. Farrer, who was educated at Rugby, and assumed that surname in lieu of Ecroyd by royal license 1896, is Lord of the Manor of Carnforth. — Whitbarrow Lodge, Grange- over-Sands, Lancashire ; Hall Garth, Over Kellet, near Carnforth, Lancashire; Westmorland County Club, Kendal.

Farrer, William (1861–1924), historian and genealogist, born at Little Marsden, near Burnley, Lancashire, on 28 February 1861, was the second son of William Farrer Ecroyd (1827–1915), tory politician and worsted manufacturer, and his first wife Mary, née Backhouse. The son changed his surname to Farrer in 1896 in compliance with the will of a great-uncle, William Farrer, a Liverpool merchant. After leaving Rugby School Farrer entered the family business, but found it uncongenial, and, retiring in 1896, settled down to a country life, first in Yorkshire at Merton, near Skipton, then at Thornburgh House, Leyburn, later at Hall Garth, Over Kellet, Lancashire, and finally at Whitbarrow Lodge, St Pauls, Witherslack, Westmorland. In 1895 he married Ellen Jane, daughter of Henry Ward, of Rodbaston, Staffordshire; they had one daughter. In 1900 he married his second wife, Eliza, daughter of John Boyce, of Redgrave, Suffolk, and they had one son and two daughters.

Farrer's interest in his yeoman ancestry widened into a taste for local history; and the acquisition in 1895 of the collections for a new history of Lancashire made by John Parsons Earwaker induced him to take up this unfinished task. He spent large sums on the transcription and local publication of unprinted materials, unravelled the obscure problems of the Domesday survey of north-western England in papers contributed to the Transactions of the Lancashire and Cheshire Antiquarian Society, and in 1903 published the first instalment of the work History of the Parish of North Meols. It was on so large a scale that it may be counted as fortunate that Farrer was presently persuaded to take part in the more manageable scheme of the Victoria History of the Counties of England. With the appointment of a co-editor, John Brownbill, the work was pushed forward rapidly, and the Victoria History of the County of Lancaster appeared in eight volumes between 1906 and 1914.

Turning his investigations to Yorkshire, the original home of the Ecroyds, Farrer contributed a searching analysis of the Domesday survey of Yorkshire to the Victoria history of the county, and between 1914 and 1916 published privately three volumes of Early Yorkshire Charters, which was planned to be an almost complete collection of charters before the thirteenth century. Unfortunately, the war and other adverse circumstances put an end to this valuable undertaking when some 1900 charters had been printed, most of them for the first time. The arrangement by fiefs which Farrer had chosen for this work perhaps suggested the history of fiefs which he began as soon as the war was over. Started on a county basis in Feudal Cambridgeshire (1920), it was continued on a more logical and time-saving plan in his general history, Honors and Knights' Fees, in which the fees of each honour are dealt with together, irrespective of the counties in which they lay. When Farrer died in 1924 only two volumes of this ambitious work had been published (1923–4). A third appeared in 1925, and the history of the honour of Warden was printed by the Bedfordshire Historical Society (1927); but several others still remain in manuscript.

Farrer had the appearance of a man of the open air rather than of the study; he loved rural quiet and sports, and disliked towns and publicity. He received the honorary degree of LittD from the University of Manchester and he was an honorary lecturer in local history in the University of Liverpool. He died, while on his annual fishing holiday, on 17 August 1924 at Forsjord, Mosjoën, Norway.

Among Farrer's more important publications, besides those mentioned above, are: Court Rolls of the Honor of Clitheroe (3 vols., 1897–1913); The Chartulary of Cockersand Abbey (3 vols., Chetham Society, 1898–1909); Final Concords of the County of Lancaster (4 parts, Record Society of Lancashire and Cheshire, 1899–1910); Court Rolls of Thomas, Earl of Lancaster in the County of Lancaster (ibid., 1901); Lancashire Pipe Rolls and Early Charters (1902); Lancashire Inquests, Extents, and Feudal Aids (3 parts, Record Society of Lancashire and Cheshire, 1903–15); An Outline Itinerary of King Henry I (English Historical Review, 34, July 1919, and reprint, Oxford); Records Relating to the Barony of Kendale (with J. F. Curwen, 2 vols., Cumberland and Westmorland Antiquarian Society, 1923–4).

KBE (1972) CBE (1962) MRCS LRCP (1933) MRCP (1935) PJG Singapore (1967) DTMH (1969) DJMK Datuk (1969) Hon MD Singapore (1969) Gordon Ransome was professor of medicine at the University of Singapore, and a pioneer of modern medicine in Singapore and the territories of Malaysia. He was born in Salop, England, the son of Maurice John Ransome, rector of Pulverbatch, and was educated at Dauntsey's School and London University. He qualified in medicine from St Bartholomew's Hospital in 1933, subsequently holding house appointments in several London hospitals and obtaining his MRCP in 1935. During this time he also attended courses at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine. After six years of postgraduate training he left England for Singapore in 1938, on his appointment to King Edward VII College of Medicine as associate professor. Together with RB Hawes, then head of the department of medicine, he established a clinical laboratory at Tay Tock Seng Hospital and there, with the help of other outstanding physicians, turned out many well trained doctors with the LMS diploma. They formed the nucleus of those men and women who cared for the sick and wounded in Singapore during the second world war and the Japanese occupation. Today, the standing of the medical graduates of the University of Singapore is second to none in Asia, and much of the credit for this must go to Gordon Ransome. An able clinician and administrator who never allowed his outlook to be blinkered by specialization, he set a high standard and fine example.

After the capitulation of Singapore to the Japanese, Gordon Ransome was the subject of some criticism because of his decision to escape to India to carry on his work. To do this, he deliberately faced great dangers and his later work in India and Burma fully justified his decision. He investigated the problems of salt and water balance, pioneered the management of unconscious patients, dealt with cholera epidemics and established specific methods of treatment for cerebral malaria. He held the rank of major in the 12th Army, was twice mentioned in despatches, and ended the war as a lieutenant colonel. He was elected a fellow in 1947.

On demobilization he returned to Singapore as acting head of the department of medicine at the General Hospital, and in 1948 he was appointed professor of medicine at King Edward VII College of Medicine. Among his many professional appointments he was honorary consultant to the Sultan of Kelantan, who bestowed the Datoship (DJMK) on him in 1969; the same year in which he was awarded an honorary doctorate of medicine by the University of Singapore. In 1967 he received the Meritorious Service Medal (PJG) in Singapore's National Day Awards. He was appointed a CBE in 1962, and a KBE in 1972. He was the first master of the Academy of Physicians and Surgeons in Singapore, which he had been instrumental in founding, and which later became the Academy of Medicine, Singapore. He was a member of the Singapore Medical Council, and ex-president of the Association of Physicians, Malaya. He contributed some 22 papers to scientific journals, both in Singapore and abroad. Although an excellent general physician and outstanding administrator, his greatest interest was in neurology. His name is perpetuated in Singapore by such foundations as the Academy of Medicine and by the biennial Gordon Arthur Ransome oration. Gordon married twice. In 1940 his wife was Eryl Arundel and they had a daughter. In 1955 he married Daphne Mary, daughter of Colonel Lawrence George Beach RE, and they had three children: two sons and a daughter.

As a man Gordon Ransome was kind and softly spoken. He had the serenity to accept what could not be changed, the courage to change what could be changed, and the wisdom to know the difference. He was always ready to answer any cry for help from patients, staff or colleagues. He had a reputation for being absentminded, but time was of no consequence to him if someone needed him. He would sometimes wax philosophical and regarded worry as a destroyer of clear thinking. Although a prominent figure in Singapore society, his life style was simple. He enjoyed hunting, shooting and fishing, and read military and medical history. He had many devoted friends and his influence on the multiracial culture of Singapore was unique. He can be said to have served Singapore and medicine to the utmost of his ability. GW/VL

Those of us who knew Hilda Lapage were more than sad at her passing but we have many happy memories of her. She was born at Kirkoswald in Cumberland where her father was a doctor. At his death she moved to Manchester and it was there she met her husband, Dr. C. P. Lapage. She was particularly interested in the Lake District and in North Wales and she accompanied her husband on many of his week-ends in the hills. Apart from her family, to whom she was devoted, her other interests were reading and the theatre. During the last war she played an active part in the W.V.S. and St. Dunstan's organisation. Survived by two sons and one daughter Hilda will always be affectionately remembered for her graciousness and quiet charm.

General Notes: Poem by Robert Laurence Binyon (1869-1943), published in The Times newspaper on 21st September 1914. and whose words (in part), are repeated at the Remembrance Day services.

For The Fallen

With proud thanksgiving, a mother for her children, England mourns for her dead across the sea. Flesh of her flesh they were, spirit of her spirit, Fallen in the cause of the free.

Solemn the drums thrill: Death august and royal Sings sorrow up into immortal spheres. There is music in the midst of desolation And a glory that shines upon our tears. 3. rds (in part), are repeated at the Remembrance They went with songs to the battle, they were young, Straight of limb, true of eye, steady and aglow. They were staunch to the end against odds uncounted, They fell with their faces to the foe.

They shall grow not old, as we that are left grow old: Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn. At the going down of the sun and in the morning We will remember them.

They mingle not with their laughing comrades again; They sit no more at familiar tables of home; They have no lot in our labour of the day-time; They sleep beyond England's foam.

But where our desires are and our hopes profound, Felt as a well-spring that is hidden from sight, To the innermost heart of their own land they are known As the stars are known to the Night;

As the stars that shall be bright when we are dust, Moving in marches upon the heavenly plain, As the stars that are starry in the time of our darkness, To the end, to the end, they remain.
